Silk Strike of 60,000 Threatened by C. I. O. In Contract Demand

Manufacturers in East Given Two Weeks to Sign.

General Pay Rise Of 10% Is Sought

On the Labor Front.

A strike of 60,000 silk workers was threatened unless manufacturers sign a union contract within two weeks.

A truce was called in a "labor holiday" which had paralyzed industrial activity at Lansing, Mich.

A steel strike showdown was averted when Pullman cars were brought into the Republic Steel Corporation's South Chicago plant to provide quarters for 1,400 nonstrikers. Mayor Edward J. Kelly had ordered that the company cease housing its employes in a wire mill inside the gates.

President Roosevelt referred a plea for intervention in the steel strike to the National Labor Relations Board and Secretary Perkins.

Silk Strike Threat.

By the United Press.

New York, June 7.—Sidney Hillman, chairman of the Textile Workers Organizing Committee, said tonight he would call a strike of 60,000 silk workers unless manufacturers signed a union contract within two weeks.

The T. W. O. C. is affiliated with John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization.

Hillman said the strike—first major one ever called in the industry—would affect plants in upState New York, New England, Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

The union demands: $15 a week minimum wage for unskilled labor; $18 a week for weavers; a general 10 per cent wage increase; a 40-hour week; time and a half for overtime, and sole collective bargaining rights for the T. W. O. C.

Hillman said the T. W. O. C. had a membership of 40,000 among silk workers and that between 7,000 and 8,000 already were working under union contracts. Present wages, he said, are between $10 and $12 a week and some of the employes work as many as 50 hours a week.

Hillman estimated that the silk industry did an annual business of $291,000,000.

Plant to Reopen.

Monroe, Mich., June 8 (Tuesday) (AP).—With Mayor Daniel A. Knaggs' assurance of police protection, officials of the Newton Steel Co., a Republic subsidiary, announced today that operations in the strike-bound plant would resume at 4 p. m. Wednesday.

The announcement came after a conference which lasted until midnight. Plant officials said they would notify the C. I. O. that the plant is to reopen and give strikers whose picketing led to the shutdown ten days ago an opportunity to return to work.

The company had offered, following a "straw vote" which authorities said indicated a majority of employes favored an immediate return to work, to reopen the plant.

Truce at Lansing.

Lansing, Mich., June 7 (U.P.).—A truce between the United Automobile Workers and the Capitol City Wrecking Co., removing the cause of a day-long "labor holiday" which paralyzed Lansing business, was announced tonight.

The truce, according to E. De Witt Rathburn, attorney for the company, provided that the firm would not attempt to operate until negotiations with union leaders resulted in settlement of a strike dispute. Rathbun said negotiations would begin at 10 a. m. tomorrow. A union official said that "it's all over now."

"All of the workers will return to their jobs tomorrow," he added. "This was not a strike against Lansing industry generally. It was just a labor holiday."

Eight union pickets who were arrested at the company were released late today.

The truce came shortly after a clash between union workers and Michigan State College students in East Lansing resulted in the dousing of three U. A. W. organizers in the Red Cedar River.

President Robert S. Shaw, of the State college, announced that he would conduct an investigation into the part played by students.

Chicago, June 7 (AP).—Twenty-one Pullman cars were shunted into the Republic Steel Corporation's big South Chicago plant today in a surprise move that forestalled evacuation of the mills by nonstriking workers.

Simultaneously, Mayor Edward

Morgan Assails 'Moral Issue' Set Up by President on Taxes

Defends Right to Do Anything Allowed Under Law.

J. P. Morgan yesterday took issue with President Roosevelt and objected "strenuously to treating income tax evasion as a moral issue." Taxing, he declared, "is a legal question pure and simple, not a moral one. Anyone has a right to do anything as long as the law does not say it is wrong."

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau said in reply:

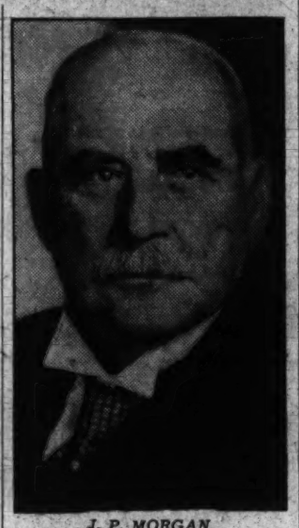
"I think most of the American people disagree with Mr. Morgan in his philosophy. I certainly do."

Several members of Congress joined in criticism of the noted financier's views.

Morgan, just returned to New York following an illness in England, commented sharply on some of the President's statements made at the time he asked Congress to close loopholes in the income tax law which the Administration blames for loss of several hundred millions of dollars in revenue.

The President, citing a Treasury report on its investigation of tax evasions, referred to one man incorporating his yacht and saving himself $50,000 a year in tax payments thereby.

"I have never incorporated my yacht (the famous Corsair) because I did not think it worth while," Morgan told reporters. "If the Government objects to tax evasion it should change the laws. You only do what you are compelled to do by law, for it is never any pleasure for anyone to pay taxes.



J. P. MORGAN.

"Congress should know how to levy taxes, and if stupid mistakes are made it is up to Congress to rectify them, and not for us taxpayers to do so."

"You don't pay any more than

Brewster Tells Delegates Education Best Weapon in Liquor Fight.

Although repeal has failed notably to produce the results its sponsors promised, it is entitled to the loyal support of all thoughtful Americans, Representative Ralph O. Brewster, of Maine, last night told delegates to the sixteenth triennial convention of the the world's W. C. T. U. at Constitution Hall.

"The many patriotic citizens who believed that there is a better way to control liquor traffic than by prohibition are now having their day in court. They are entitled to co-operation and not to harassment such as believers in prohibition had to face," he declared.

Education is the one and only final answer to the liquor question, in the opinion of Brewster. The problem is settled for each individual only when he finds "life happier without alcohol than with it," he said.

"Repeal did not even stop bootlegging. The best authorities indicate that from one-quarter to one-half of the liquor now being consumed still is manufactured and sold outside the law.

"Liquor revenues in the past three years have paid less than one-fifth of the Federal expenditures necessary for relief. Last year, only $500,000,000 was contributed to the budget by liquor taxes. Repeal advocates promised $1,000,000,000.

"But repeal was legally voted and we should not say that we do not believe in it, and so will work to break it down. We should continue our work toward conversion and not toward compulsion."

Alcohol was blamed for many automobile accidents by Miss Bertha R. Palmer, of Evanston, Ill., director of alcohol education for the W. C. T. U. She said that 60 per cent of the drivers involved in last year's 38,500 fatal auto accidents had been drinking.

Once a drinking driver gets into a tight place, she said, his slowed

Woman Reveals Keene's Threat To End His Life

Says Sister Now Dead Feared He Would Kill Himself.

By Edward T. Folliard

Charles F. Keene had threatened to commit suicide. He had threatened it not once, but many times.

It may be that the mystery of his death—his disappearance May 14 from a blood-spattered stateroom on the Norfolk night boat and the finding of his body with a bullet in his skull and a loaded brief case around his neck—never will be definitely cleared up. But out of the murk surrounding the case there emerged last night the seemingly incontrovertible fact that Keene did threaten to take his life.

He made the threats to his sister, the late Florence Robins Keene, head of the music department of McKinley High School, who died November 25, 1934.

A woman who was Miss Keene's closest friend, and who asked that her name be withheld, told The Post last night that Miss Keene was deeply worried by her brother's suicide talk.

"I haven't any interest in this case," the woman said. "But I make a practice of telling the truth, and this is the truth. Florence told me time and again that her brother was threatening to kill himself.

"I used to tell her, 'Oh, stop worrying; people who talk about committing suicide, never do it.' But she continued to grieve over his threats, anyway."

On top of this development last night came these reports:

That Miss Keene owned a brief case, and that since she left all her effects to her brother, Charles, this must have been among them. Whether it was the brief case which, loaded with an automobile jack and other objects, was found around his neck is yet to be determined.

That the pistol which Miss Keene bequeathed to her brother was a .32 caliber. The bullet found in his skull and three unfired bullets

Lewis Backs Wage Measure, But Objects to U. S. Pay-Fixing

By Sidney Olson.

The booming bass drawl of John L. Lewis, chairman of the Committee for Industrial Organization, told a joint committee hearing yesterday the Black-Connery wages-hours bill "will mean at least a glimmer of sunlight to millions of submerged American workers who now live in economic darkness and despair."

Lewis indorsed the bill as "a modest beginning" in "industrial planning under Federal auspices" but made one strong reservation in his recommendation it be enacted.

This was a straightforward attack on provisions in the bill empowering the Labor Standards Board, to be set up under the act, to guarantee workers who are underpaid or overworked, a 40-hour week and a minimum wage of $1,200 yearly.

The brown-maned labor leader assailed "wage-fixing by a Federal agency," asserted this provision conflicted with another guaranteeing workers a flat 40-cents-an-hour minimum, and said "such a procedure is very confusing and extremely difficult of application."

His objections, boiled down, were against Federal investigations of wage agreements which are made in industries now operating less than a 40-hour week and paying more than a 40-cents-an-hour minimum.

He said he saw no reason for Government interference in fields in which the collective bargaining agencies now functioned effectively. In this he agreed in the main with contentions of William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, a witness of last week.

Lewis' testimony was followed by that of Isador Lubin, chief of the Bureau of Statistics of the Labor Department, and Jay C. Hormel, president of George A. Hormel Co., packers, of Austin, Minn.

Lewis indorsed the bill for four

Senate Bans D. C. Loans, Boosts Debt

Borrowing Is Barred as Deficit Is Increased to $7,500,000.

Many Items Slashed by House Restored in Budget.

Repartee marks budget hearing—Page 14.

By James D. Secrest.

While increasing the anticipated District deficit for the next fiscal year to approximately $7,500,000, the Senate Appropriations Committee yesterday refused to recommend that the Commissioners be authorized to obtain temporary loans from the Federal Treasury.

The committee approved a bill carrying $46,301,181, which is $1,184,597 in excess of the amount voted by the House, but it refused to accept the sub-committee's recommendation as to the Treasury advances.

"The committee was afraid that if this authority were granted," Senator Thomas, chairman of the sub-committee, explained, "that there wouldn't be any District tax legislation."

Maj. Daniel J. Donovan, District auditor, who urgently had requested the authority on the ground that a fiscal crisis would confront the District government after July 1, declined to predict what the result of the committee's action may be.

Donovan admitted that if the tax bills do not pass promptly District employes may miss a few pay days and municipal bills may go unpaid.

Enjoyed Until 1927.

The authority to obtain Treasury advances, a right enjoyed by the District government until 1927, is carried in the omnibus tax bill approved by the Kennedy sub-committee of the House District Committee and introduced yesterday in the House.

This tax bill, which is designed to raise only $6,149,000, still must be approved by the full House District Committee, pass the House, and then run the gantlet of the Senate District Committee and the Senate.

The Senate Committee on Appropriations yesterday sprung a surprise in authorizing Senator Thomas to offer on the Senate floor a legislative amendment to transfer Gallinger Hospital and the District Tuberculosis Sanatoria from the Welfare to the Health Department.

The transfer had been eliminated from the House bill on a point of order raised by members of the House District Committee, but appropriations for the hospitals were still under the heading of the Health Department.

Opposed by Street.

While Senator Thomas has indicated his opposition to the change, other members of the committee insisted that it go through as proposed by the Collins sub-committee.

The change includes the funds paid to Children's Hospital, Emergency Hospital and Casualty Hospital.

Practically all other departmental changes proposed by the House sub-committee were rejected by the Senate committee.

A score of playgrounds shifted from the Playground Department to the Community Center Department were restored to status quo. Restrictive riders affecting school teachers and librarians were eliminated. The Department of Vehicles and Traffic and the trees and parking division were taken off the gas tax fund and returned to general revenues.

More than 3,000 per diem employes were assured holidays and

Washington Gains Respite as Mercury Dips Slightly to 86

Only one heat prostration was reported. Bernard Weaver, 55, colored, of 2016 Georgia avenue, was overcome while working on a WPA project at Mount Olivet road and Montello avenue northeast. At Casualty Hospital his condition was called serious.

The mercury reached its peak at 2:45—86 degrees. The day's low—73—came at 6 a. m.

No hope for immediate relief was held by the Weather Bureau, which forecast "generally fair" for today.

Dutch East Indies Best Arms Buyer

The Dutch East Indies were this country's best customers in sale of arms, ammunition and implements of war in May, the State Department announced yesterday.

Sales totaling $2,514,194.20 mostly in military planes, were reported by American exporters during the month. The Netherlands Indies has also led in several monthly reports recently. Brazil was second in the value of purchases in May, with a total of $457,907.30.

Sales to Germany were only $21,406.51; to France, $11,007.50; to Great Britain and Northern Ireland, $202,045, while Italy did not appear on the list at all.

Doctors Ask Public Help For Indigent

Group Offers Precedent-Breaking Plan at Parley.

Overcomes Fear of Political Control in Spending State Cash.

By the Associated Press.

Atlantic City, June 7.—A new precedent was set in organized medicine here today when the Medical Society of the State of New York recommended to the American Medical Association's assembled house of delegates that public funds be used to provide adequate medical care for those too poor to pay their way.

The New Yorkers stepped boldly across a deadline which has for years kept the medical profession from agreeing to permit the State to take care of the sick other than special cases like war veterans and the insane. The deadline was fear that with State money also would go political control, and that Federal contributions would result ultimately in Federal domination of medical education.

Today's precedent-breaking resolution proposed that the American Medical Association co-operate with the Federal Government. The house of delegates which received the New York resolution represents 106,000 physicians, members of the American Medical Association. This number is all except about 35,000 of the doctors in the United States.

Another action today foreshadowing change in organized medical thought was a request from United States Senator J. Hamilton Lewis, of Illinois, to address the house of delegates on medicine and social security measures about to come up in Congress.

Senator to Speak.

In a ten-minute secret session, the house of delegates replied with an invitation to Senator Lewis to talk tomorrow afternoon, at an executive session, from which newspapermen and all except medical delegates will be excluded.

There was speculation whether Senator Lewis would bring a message from Federal authorities. He would be a natural spokesman because the American Medical Association is incorporated in his State.

The New York resolutions also recommend a Federal department of health, independent of other Government agencies.

An independent Federal health department was likewise favored in the annual report of the trustees of the American Medical Association. The trustees too discussed medical care for the indigent, but favored State and local rather than Federal action.

The New York recommendations will be discussed in the secret session tomorrow afternoon, at which Senator Lewis speaks. The same session will consider birth control.

Dr. Samuel J. Kopetzky, of New York, read the New York proposals, which stated in part:

"The health of the public is a direct concern of government and a national public health policy directed toward all groups of the population should be formulated.

"In the formulation of such policy the opinions and suggestions of organized medicine should be given preference.

"The house of delegates of the A. M. A. should create a group which shall formulate the principles and proposals of a national health policy to be submitted to the government. * * *

"The house of delegates of the A. M. A. should establish a working definition of the term 'adequate medical care.'

"The problem of economic need

Traces of Wife's Death Kiss Sought On Spouse's Lips

Los Angeles, June 7 (AP).—A husband's last kiss, impressed upon the lips of his wife as she lay dying in the bathtub of their home, became a focal point in the investigation of her death today.

Police held the husband, 31-year-old Basil L. Giles, on suspicion, although investigators said they believed his wife shot herself. Officers examined scrapings from Giles' lips to determine if they bore traces of rouge he would have collected in the "last kiss."

Giles frantically called the Wilshire police station: "I believe my wife has committed suicide. Come on over."

Police found Mrs. Louella Giles, 29, dying in the bathtub. She had been shot in the chest. Pinned to the shower curtain was a note, reading: "Turn on the radio. I won't be hurt. Don't look behind the curtain. You're right; I'm not fit to live."

Detective Lieut. R. B. McCreadie said Giles told him: "I went to the grocery store. When I returned I heard a shot in the bathroom. I found Mrs. Giles nude in the bathtub. I grabbed a towel, wiped off the blood. Then I kissed her. I ran to the telephone and called police."

Eugene Meyer Confers With Belgian Premier

Jean Harlow Is Dead Of Uremic Poisoning; Powell Grief Stricken

Wirephoto: In Unfinished Role

Jean Harlow, whose film career was cut short by death yesterday, is shown here in the latest role she was taking in the unfinished picture "Saratoga." In contrast to some of the blatant ladies she had portrayed, she assumed a more subdued air in this picture.

By the Associated Press.

Los Angeles, June 7.—Jean Harlow, the young actress millions knew as the screen's "platinum blonde," died today in a hospital bed a victim of uremic poisoning.

William Powell, the actor who had been her constant companion, sat beside the actress' mother.

He comforted her as best he could as the 26-year-old star slipped from several hours of unconsciousness into death.

For an hour those at the bedside knew there was no hope. Uremic poisoning spread to cerebral oedema. That is a swelling of the brain.

Two doctors worked over the slim form. Two blood transfusions were given. Dr. E. C. Fishbaugh found her respiration weakening. He called the fire department inhalator squad. She was placed in an oxygen tent, but showed no signs of rallying.

"It's so hopeless," the doctor said.

There were five in the hospital room—Mrs. Jean Bello, the mother; Powell, two doctors, Fishbaugh and his assistant, Dr. L. S. Chapman, and the still, scarcely breathing patient.

Across the hall was one of her friends, sitting silent in grief, and glancing up when one entered to whisper the latest report. It was Warner Baxter.

Powell in Tears.

But death came at 11:37 a. m. Pacific standard time (2:37 p. m. Eastern standard time).

When Dr. Fishbaugh indicated with a nod that Miss Harlow was dead, Powell rushed sobbing from the hospital room, an arm flung across his face.

As he joined Baxter in a nearby room his muffled sobs could be heard through the quiet corridors of the hospital.

Next to leave the death room was Mrs. Bello. She was weeping and leaning heavily on Dr. Fishbaugh.

Miss Harlow was taken ill May 29 and subsequently she was reported both in a serious condition from inflammation of the gall bladder and improving from a cold.

Funeral on Wednesday.

Mrs. Bello said private funeral services for her daughter would be held Wednesday.

Louis B. Mayer, M.-G.-M. executive, said the picture, "Saratoga," in which Miss Harlow and Clark Gable were being co-starred, as photographed to date, would be discarded.

"We were within a week of the picture's completion," Mayer said. "When we have chosen a new personality for the story, it will be reconstructed to fit that personality."

"Funeral services will be private because her mother wishes it so," said Marino Bello, Miss Harlow's stepfather.

"She wants Jean to remain in the memory of her fans as she was in life, so the body will not lie in state."

The star's body was placed in a massive burnished copper casket, said to have cost $5,000.

Miss Harlow, who was earning approximately $4,000 a week, left an estate of nearly $1,000,000, largely in insurance policies and annuities.

The death of the thrice-married actress, who rocketed into stardom in "Hell's Angels" in 1930, stunned the motion picture community. Some studios stopped production on their sets for a few minutes of silence.

The actress had so often been the life of Hollywood parties. Despite the tragedies of her life, she sought to make others happy by her personality and charm.

It was four years ago that one of the bitter tragic chapters of her life was written. She had wed Paul Bern, beloved director and film executive of Hollywood. It was yet in their honeymoon days when Hollywood was startled by the finding of the nude body of the husband on the floor of the bathroom of their Beverly Hill's home. There was a

Homes in D. C. Are Offered Young Basques

'Dozens' of Householders Willing to Aid Child War Refugees.

By William V. Nessly.

"Dozens" of householders in Washington and vicinity, it was learned last night, have made applications to care for some of the 500 Basque children, refugees from the civil war in Spain, whom it is proposed to bring to America for duration of the war. One of the applicants is a prominent horsewoman of Warrenton, Va.

These disclosures came last night while it appeared a showdown was rapidly approaching on whether the children shall be admitted to the United States, in view of the existing laws on admission of aliens, and opposition from several sources, especially high officials of the Catholic Church.

A reported plan for the Red Cross to care for the children of Europe, without their being brought across the ocean, immediately was opposed by officials of the American Board of Guardians for the Basque Children. They asserted that the number of child refugees already removed from their besieged homeland is taxing the facilities in France and England, and cited a

Franco Rushes 14,000 Troops From Morocco

Rebels Plan 'Win-the-War' Attack on Bilbao and Madrid.

By the United Press.

Hendaye, Franco-Spanish Frontier, June 7.—Insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco tonight rushed 14,000 troops across the Straits of Gibraltar from Spanish Morocco for a supreme "win-the-war" assault on Bilbao and Madrid.

The fresh battalions, including 1,500 foreign volunteers and a nondescript collection of youths in their 'teens, will be thrown against Bilbao's "iron ring" of defenses on the northern Basque front.

If the costly Basque campaign, that appeared near victory when Franco's right-hand strategist, Emilio Mola, was killed last week, can be ended with the fall of Bilbao the new troops will be transferred to the Madrid front.

Franco is anxious, according to frontier reports, to isolate the torn and bleeding capital, cutting it off from the rest of loyalist Spain.

Franco must, within a few weeks, release thousands of his troops from the fighting lines for the July harvests in order to provide his armies

Earhart Plane Lands in Africa After Crossing South Atlantic

By the United Press.

St. Louis, Senegal, Africa, June 7. Amelia Earhart Putnam arrived here tonight in her "flying laboratory" after a 1,900-mile flight across the Atlantic from Natal, Brazil, and sat down to a hearty dinner with French air mail pilots.

She was the first woman to make the eastward South Atlantic crossing, although two women—Jean Batten, of England, and Maryse Bastie, of France—made the westward flight in 1935 and 1936, respectively.

The tousle-haired flier, completing the sixth leg of her leisurely round-the-world flight at the Equator, landed at the Air France flying field at 7:35 p. m. 2:35 p. m., E. S. T.) after 13 hours and 22 minutes in the air across the ocean.

St. Louis is 100 miles north of Dakar, and she chose this landing spot because of Air France's transatlantic aviation facilities, all of which were placed at her disposal.

She was informed, in the name of the French air ministry, that all facilities would be extended to her on her flight across Africa.

As soon as her $80,000 plane had been rolled off the runways she was invited to dine with the French air mail pilots stationed here, and accepted eagerly.

After dinner she studied French meteorological reports of the weather ahead of her on her flight across central Africa, where she runs the risk of encountering sand storms and monsoons.

She said she would not decide until tomorrow when to take off on the seventh lap of her globe-circling flight.

"I may wait a day or two," she said, "and I have not yet decided whether to fly straight across the Sahara Desert by way of Fort Lamy and Khartoum or go northward around the coast in order to use the Air France air mail bases as far as Algeria."

Nazi War Chief Reviews Duce's Sea Strength

'Understanding' Between Italy, Reich Reaches 'Perfection.'

By the Associated Press.

Naples, Italy, June 7.—Premier Mussolini, having paraded his army for Germany's war minister, put the navy on display today for the visiting diplomat, Marshal Werner von Blomberg.

Il Duce smiled as he stood on the bridge of the cruiser Emanuele Filiberto Duce D'Aosta and pointed out phases of the sham battle staged by more than 70 submarines and 60 surface ships.

He got an idea of what naval strength Italy could provide—as a friend or as an enemy. He had seen Mussolini's land forces last week.

Hitler Bestows Honor.

(In Berlin, Reichsfuehrer Hitler conferred on Mussolini and his foreign minister, Count Galeazzo Ciano, the Grand Cross of the Order of the German Eagle, Germany's highest decoration.

(Hitler said the award was "a sign of my friendship, in honor of his (Mussolini's) great merits and in furtherance of the hearty understanding between Italy and the Reich.")

Von Blomberg's visit, said the authoritative writer, Virginio Gayda, brought "perfection" of a simple understanding already existing between the two countries.

Military matters of interest to both Italy and Germany had been discussed, Gayda said in the Giornale d'Italia, in view of "the confused European panorama."

No New Agreement.

He insisted there had been no new agreement to augment the Rome-Berlin "axis" established last October, however, and said the talks did not constitute "preparation for or sign of international developments in the near future."

No sooner were the warships well under way than submarines of the "enemy" fleet began to pop up, firing dummy torpedoes at the advancing craft. Then "enemy" airplanes roared overhead, and Mussolini's men replied with simulated antiaircraft fire.

Finally the advancing squadron struck at the large ships of the defenders at close quarters and the planes of Mussolini's fleet were unleashed to aid the attack.

Then Mussolini started back to Rome by airplane, while Von Blomberg boarded the royal yacht Aurora for a pleasure cruise to Palermo, Sicily.

Girl-Shy Slayer's Confession Bared

"But I just coludn't do it," Precinct Capt. Glenn H. McClellan quoted the 19-year-old "model boy" as saying.

Smith sat quietly, head bowed, throughtuot the testimony.

McClellan said the oral statement came suddenly as he pressed Tommy for more details of an ice-pick attack upon a 14-year-old girl, for which Smith had been arrested.

"'I know what you want,'" he quoted Tommy as saying. "'You want to know who killed the Babcock girl. Well, I did it.

"'She put up an awful fight. She tried to bite my hand. Finally I cut her in the thigh and after that she quivered and was still.'"

McKinley's Niece Dies.

Somerset, Pa., June 7 (AP).—Mrs. Mabel McKinley Baer, 57, niece of President McKinley, died today. Somerset became the "summer capital" during the McKinley Administration when the President attended the wedding of his niece to Dr. Hermanun Baer. Ambassadors and foreign representatives accompanied the President to this little western Pennsylvania town.

New Fire Truck Added.

Annapolis, Md., June 7 (AP).—The Independent Fire Company added a new $15,000 fire truck, capable of pumping 1,500 gallons of water a minute to its equipment today.

Politics and People

Capitol Hill Is in Doldrums, and Not Simply Because of Heat; Confusion General.

By Franklyn Waltman

CAPITOL HILL is in a state of doldrums. So is downtown Washington. And it is not entirely due to the heat, either.

WALTMAN.

Wherever one goes there seems to be lacking a sense of direction—a knowledge of where we are going. Confusion regarding purposes and objectives seems to be general.

Here it is, the second week of June—five months since Congress convened—and all of national importance that has been accomplished on Capitol Hill can be counted on the fingers of one hand. The annual appropriation bills have moved along as is usual. Several expiring executive powers and agencies have received an extension of life. Another neutrality act has been enacted and another attempt has been made to subject the bituminous coal industry to Federal regulation.

The remaining accomplishments have been trivial or of a routine nature. Such major programs as housing and slum clearance, farm tenancy, the "ever-normal granary," hydroelectric power, land and water conservation, reorganization of the executive departments, economics and industrial wages and hours remain in their preliminary stages.

So little business has the Senate had to transact that for the most part it has met only three times a week since the session started. Now and then it has held meetings on three or four days a week, but on other occasions it has met only twice a week. In May, for instance, the Senate met on only 12 days of the month. It was in session on only two days last week.

One might imagine that being a Senator is a pretty soft life and indeed, the baseball fans and the golfers in the Senate have derived a great deal of pleasure out of the leisurely schedule of that body. But on the whole there is widespread chagrin in the Senate that so little work has been accomplished, because it is generally recognized the members will have to pay, and pay dearly, in the hot summer months for the leisure they have enjoyed from attending sessions.

The absurdity of this Congressional performance is that Capitol Hill is just now—when the weather is hot and sticky, when tempers are frayed and when human vitality is nearing its lowest—preparing to get down to the serious business of legislating for the Nation. And then, of course, in a month or two, we will witness night sessions and the railroading of legislation with hasty or no consideration at all.

But it is not wholly the fault of the Senate. If the responsibility rests anywhere, it is on President Roosevelt. It was he who brought the legislative machine on Capitol Hill almost to a halt early in the session with his Supreme Court reorganization program and his plan not to submit other programs until that was passed.

It is rather ridiculous that with Senate having so little to do through the winter and spring months that it was able to recess for two or three days at a time that Mr. Roosevelt should wait until the last week of May to submit his industrial wages and hours program—to wait until the first week in June to send up his message on national planning and conservation.

Congress receives these proposals at a time when it should be cleaning up its calendars and preparing to leave Capitol Hill. There is no apparent reason why Mr. Roosevelt should have delayed these undertakings so long. There is nothing novel or intricate about either.

Can it be that there is a hidden reason for holding back on such proposals and then unloading them on Congress late in the session? Can it be that the reason is to get hasty action, without opportunity for searching inquiry and study? Is the purpose deliberately to create confusion so that neither the legislators nor the country will know too much about what the New Deal is doing?

The answer is anyone's guess. Some observers on Capitol Hill believe that the answer to these questions is in the affirmative. They point out that Mr. Roosevelt has used such a technique ever since he has been in the White House—that he found successful the strategy of letting Congress stew in its own juice—to use an inelegant phrase—and then to shove through what he wants.

Mr. Roosevelt has never followed the practice of other Presidents in outlining in substance his legislative program at the beginning of the session. His messages on the state of the Union have been devoted to generalities and abstractions when they were not political tirades.

Instead of unfolding his plans at the outset of the session and letting Congress get down to the task of incorporating them into legislation, Mr. Roosevelt has followed the practice of laying his proposals before Capitol Hill, one by one, in separate messages. Thus Congress is unable to move until the Chief Executive desires it to do so.

In the past this method had the effect of bringing about an orderly consideration of legislation. But this year the President muddied up the waters with his highly controversial Supreme Court reorganization bill, so that Congress has not gone to work on matters laid before it early in the session.

Many weeks ago it was apparent to most observers that the Roosevelt Supreme Court bill in its original form did not have a chance of being passed. The Democratic leaders on Capitol Hill knew this—in fact, knew it the day the bill was sent up by the President. Had Mr. Roosevelt listened to them, he could have beat a strategic retreat by urging that Congress get on with its work. Instead he sulked in his tent until now things are in a real mess on Capitol Hill.

One of the amusing developments of recent weeks has been the way several of the New Deal's foremost apologists refer to the Supreme Court bill, now that its defeat seems certain, as the Maverick-Ashurst bill. As long as there was a slight prospect of success for the measure they called it the "Roosevelt" bill.

Regional Rates Of Rails Called Trade Barriers

Roosevelt Submits TVA Report on Charges to Congress.

By the Associated Press.

Congress received from President Roosevelt yesterday a TVA report declaring the country's regional freight rate structures are arbitrary barriers to commerce, competition and widespread industrial development.

The report, prepared by an economist for the TVA after a survey ordered by the President, said the United States has no national freight rate structure.

It said rates in what is known as Eastern or official territory are far less than in other regions.

Terming the average of rates in Eastern territory 100, the report said Southern rates average 139, Western trunk-line 147, Southwestern 175, and Mountain Pacific 171.

"Official territory shippers," J. Haden Alldredge, the economist, said, "can come into the other territories on somewhat lower levels of rates, mile for mile, than shippers residing in those territories have to pay for shipping similar articles wholly within their own territories.

"Thus, one has here something remarkably similar to the working of a protective tariff, to the extent that certain favored interests effectively strive to protect themselves at home while retaining privileges elsewhere."

Manufacturers or producers are at a disadvantage because of the lower rate available to competitors in Eastern territory, where the largest markets exist, the report said.

The Interstate Commerce Commission, meanwhile, refused to suspend a new rate structure on textile products from Southern territory, but agreed to reopen the case for further hearings.

The new rate structure, which the Associated Southeastern Textile Mills said will mean a 20 per cent increase on products from Georgia and Alabama, takes effect today.

The textile association, joined by Gov. Bibb Graves of Alabama, petitioned for a suspension on the ground the industry would be "seriously crippled."

Graves and lawyers for the association also filed a petition asking reduction of rates on Southern manufactured and processed articles.

In both cases, they complained particularly about the tariffs to official territory—the area north of the Potomac and Ohio and east of the Mississippi.

Townsend, Ex-Aide Quarrel Over $16,000

Chicago, June 7 (AP).—Dr. Francis E. Townsend, old age pension advocate, and his former vice president and general manager, J. W. Brinton, who resigned after a policy dispute quarreled tonight over $16,000. The elderly physician said in a prepared statement Brinton had withdrawn the $16,000—comprising prizes for the Townsend weekly subscription contest—and the Prosperity Publishing Co., headed by Townsend wanted the money. The prizes, Townsend said, had to be awarded and Brinton "cannot be located at this time."

Woodring Asks Quick Action on Flood Control

Urges $36,122,000 Levee System Be Started Immediately.

By the Associated Press.

Secretary Woodring urged Congress yesterday to authorize an immediate start on a $36,122,000 system of levees and flood walls "for the protection of those cities which suffered most in the last Ohio River flood."

He told the House Flood Control Committee this expenditure to meet emergency needs would permit a more "mature consideration" of a new $800,000,000 flood control program recommended by Army engineers for the Ohio and Mississippi river basins.

President Roosevelt has asked that the larger program be delayed at least until next January, pending a comprehensive report by all interested agencies on water conservation.

Woodring declared floods caused approximately $400,000,000 damage last winter and necessitated expenditure of an additional $30,000,000 for relief.

Many Cities Involved.

The emergency program he recommended would provide levees, flood walls and drainage structures of the protection of Dayton, Paducah, Louisville, Covington, Newport and Russell, all in Kentucky; Jeffersonville, Clarksville and Lawrenceburg, in Indiana; Cincinnati, Manchester and Coal Grove, Ohio.

Maj. Gen. Edward M. Markham, chief of Army engineers, told the House committee that the long-range program, necessitated by the floods of the last two years, would require construction of 45 reservoirs in the Ohio River basin at a cost of $246,000,000 in addition to projects already authorized.

Markham also recommended 24 additional flood control reservoirs on other tributaries of the Mississippi at a cost of $277,000,000; construction of levees and flood walls costing $190,000,000, exclusive of land and damages and authorization for a $52,000,000 appropriation in addition to sums already supplied for the strengthening of levees, extension of the levee road system and for increasing the discharge capacity of the main stem of the Mississippi.

In a letter to Chairman Whittington (Democrat), Mississippi, of the House committee, President Roosevelt approved the Army engineers' recommendations that the Government acquire fee-simple title to floodways on the Mississippi.

"At the same time," he wrote, "it may be well to consider the possibility of renting these lands, once fee-simple title is acquired, to neighboring farmers, with the definite understanding that tillage of these lands is solely at the risk of the individuals renting them."

Americans See Eclipse Today On Pacific Isle

To Broadcast as Sun Is Hidden Longest Time in 1,200 Years.

On tiny Canton Island, 5,000 miles out in the Pacific, a handful of American astronomers today will observe in detail a total eclipse of the sun, which will be the longest in duration in more than 1,200 years.

A dress rehearsal was put on yesterday. Intricate telescope eyes, the best a scientific age can devise, were focussed on the point in the heavens where the moon apparently will devour the sun, and engulf part of the world in darkness.

After testing their 11-inch temporary observatory in their practice observation, the scientists reported to headquarters here that the sky would be clear.

The total eclipse, historic and epochal in the history of this world and of science, will occur at 2:06 p. m., Eastern Standard Time today.

Three Broadcasts.

Three 15-minute broadcasts from the island, to be relayed over the National Broadcasting Co., will be on the air today, the National Geographic Society announced last night.

First will be at noon, when the scientists on Canton Island make their last-minute report on the weather. The second will start two hours later, covering the period when the sun will be totally eclipsed by the moon, and a great lane of darkness will be spread in the Far Pacific. The sun at Canton Island will be eclipsed for three minutes and 33 seconds. The broadcast will describe the solar spectacle and tell of the activities of the scientists during the 213 precious seconds.

A final broadcast will follow at 9:45 p. m. It will explain the significance of the eclipse, and any discoveries that may have been made.

Hardly Visible in United States.

For the most part, the eclipse will not be visible in the United States.

It will be observed as a partial eclipse, however, in a part of the South and Southwestern States, southwest of a line drawn from northern California to southern Florida. The partial eclipse will be visible in California about noon and Florida about 5 in the afternoon.

It was not alone far out in the Pacific science cocked a watchful eye. Astronomers also assembled in Peru, on the north coast.

Members of the eclipse expedition on Canton Island included Dr. S. A. Mitchell, director of the University of Virginia Observatory; Capt. J. F. Hellweg, superintendent of the U. S. Naval Observatory; Dr. Paul A. McNally, S. J., director of Georgetown College observatory; Dr. Irvine C. Gardner, of the Bureau of Standards; Dr. F. K. Richtmyer, Cornell University; Dr. Theodore Dunham, jr., Mount Wilson Observatory; Charles G. Thompson, Foundation of Astrophysical Research; John E. Willis, U. S. Naval Observatory; Charles Bittinger, Washington artist; Richard H. Stewart, staff representative of the National Geographic Society; Walter Brown, radio engineer; M. S. Adams, radio engineer; George Hicks, radio announcer, of New York, and Lieut. Herman H. Gross, U. S. Navy surgeon.

Principal post of observation in Peru is Trujillo, where the American-Grace expedition is stationed. In this group were Miss Dorothy Bennett, assistant curator at the Hayden Planetarium, Cerro Pasco; Hans Christian Adamson, of the American Museum staff at Punta Llanca, and Prof. William H. Barton, jr., assistant planetarium curator at Llanca. Miss Bennett's observation post was 14,000 feet, the highest group ground station.

Miss McNantz, A Teacher 42 Years, Is Dead

Retired Principal, 76, Had Noted Persons Among Her Pupils.

Miss M. Alice McNantz, 76, retired principal of the Edmonds School and a teacher in the public schools of Washington for 42 years, died yesterday after a long illness. She made her home with her nieces, Miss M. Louise Underwood and Mrs. Lee Sudwarth, Pelham Courts Apartments, 2115 P street.

Many persons now prominent in business and professional circles are former pupils of Miss McNantz. Stephen Early, assistant secretary to the President, once studied under her, as did David A. Hart, the lawyer, and Louis Potter, the musician.

Before becoming principal of Edmonds School, from which she retired about ten years ago, Miss McNantz taught for many years at the Wallace School.

Widely known in educational circles, she was instrumental in organizing the Teachers' Aid and Annuity Association as well as the Edmonds School Parent-Teacher Association. She was a charter member of the Women's City Club and the National Education Association.

Miss McNantz was born in Washington, the daughter of the late Patrick Henry McNantz and Mrs. Louise J. McNantz. In the family lineage are included such notables as the Right Rev. Leonard Neale, second Archbishop of Baltimore and founder of the Visitation Convent here, and the Rev. Charles Neale, who established the first Carmelite Monastery, near Port Tobacco, Md.

Miss McNantz is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Howard Brooks and Mrs. Moxley, both of this city; by two other nieces, the Misses Anne and Louise Repetti, also of Washington, and by seven nephews, Joseph, Fred, Vincent and Edward Repetti, of Washington, and Harry, Francis and Charles Underwood, of Prince Georges County, Md.

Services will be tomorrow at 9 a. m. at St. Matthew's Catholic Church. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Gov. Nice to Enter Hospital June 14 For Eye Operation

Annapolis, Md., June 7 (AP).—Gov. Harry W. Nice will enter Johns Hopkins Hospital at Baltimore next Monday for the removal of his right eye.

Nice today said physicians had told him he would be in the hospital for a week prior to the operation "for observation."

The Governor injured his eye in a fall shortly before his election to office. He has been troubled with it since that time and his physicians announced its removal would be necessary some time ago. Nice has delayed undergonig the operation until State business was completed.

Today he cleared his desk of long waited State appointments.

After the operation, Nice said, he expects to remain in the hospital for two weeks or more, after which he plans an extended rest at his home and a vacation trip by motor with Mrs. Nice.

Woman Reveals Keene's Threat To End His Life

Says Sister Now Dead Feared He Would Kill Himself.

found in his vest pocket were of .32 caliber.

That Keene was an amateur yachtsman in his earlier days, and that he therefore must have known something about tying a knot. Fishermen at Smiths Island, where the body was first taken, said the knot in a rope tied to the brief case must have been tied by a sailor. When it was reported here, therefore, that Keene "couldn't tie a bundle" the murder theory was strengthened.

Much of this informatoin came from a woman who must be described as one "close to the Keene family," since she asked that her name be withheld. She talked at length yesterday to Headquarters Detectives Jeremiah Flaherty and Charles Carver, who have been assigned by Inspector Bernard W. Thompson to help the Maryland authorities.

This woman told The Post:

"There is no doubt in my mind that Charles Keene took his life. He was a very miserable man—harassed for money, hopeless of getting any, and unhappy for a great number of other reasons.

"He was devoted to his sister, Florence, and I think that's why the mesh bag and tea strainer she left him were found in the brief case tied to his neck. Why else were they there, along with a lot of heavy junk?

"I have read that Charles Keene could not tie a knot. Why, that is nonsense. When he was young, he and his brother, Dr. Walter Keene, used to build and sail boats on the Potomac. They jointly owned a boat called the Wachakee, and unless I am mistaken, they belonged to one of the boat clubs up near Key Bridge, although, of course, it was Aqueduct Bridge then.

If Keene committed suicide, it is clear to police he took elaborate precautions to make his death appear a murder.

In this connection, the "close friend of the family" revealed last night that Keene was fond of reading murder mystery stories, and liked to try his hand at solving the mysteries before reaching the end.

Sergts. Marlin Brubaker and J. J. Cassidy, of the Maryland State Police, officially in charge of the Keene case, have never stated publicly they thought Keene committed suicide. They may not say so in the report they are making this week to State's Attorney F. Kirke Maddrix, of Somerset County, Md., within whose jurisdiction the body was found.

However, the preponderance of the statements and evidence they will include in the report will point to suicide. How they will handle many unanswered questions remains to be seen. These are:

Whence came the automobile jack, the hammer, the tire iron and many other articles in the brief case, and whence came the rope tied through a buckle of the brief case and looped around Keene's neck?

How account for the blood in Keene's stateroom?

Two Boys Hurt, One Seriously, By Autos Here

George Ross, colored, 7, of 1034 Sixth street northeast, suffered concussion of the brain and a possible skull fracture when he was struck by an automobile in front of his home. The car, police said, was driven by Annie Faber, of 522 F street northeast. The child was taken to Casualty Hospital.

A messenger boy, Woodrow Atkinson, 17, of 1918 Eighteenth street northwest, suffered a possible fracture of his shoulder when he was knocked from his bicycle by an automobile at Ninth street and Rhode Island avenue northwest. The automobile, police said, was driven by James Keys, 25, of 1205 N street northwest. He was treated at Casualty Hospital.

The driver's license of Abe Plisco, also known, police say, as William Dietz, was suspended by the Board of Revocations for at least 60 days, it was announced yesterday.

Plisco had pleaded guilty to charges of speeding before Judge Edward M. Curran on May 6 and was fined $10. He was arrested while speeding 50 miles an hour on the highway bridge, police said.

Awaiting trial on charges placed against him when he was arrested in a series of gambling raids by police, Plisco is under bond.

Announcement was made of revocation of 11 permits and suspension of 10. All actions were taken on speeding charges except one which followed a reckless driving charge.

Others whose permits were revoked were Willie Gordon, 629 Gresham place northwest, 52 miles an hour; Ernest Harris, 1332 V street northwest, 60 miles; John Hunt, 1436 Meridian place northwest, between 45 and 60 miles per hour; Robert Manson, 3905 M street northwest, 60 miles; Clyde Stiles, 622 F street northeast, reckless driving; Wilton Smallwood, 2900 Twenty-second street southeast, 65 miles; James Sneed, 2024 Fourteenth street northwest, 55 miles; Everett U. Thompson, 1745 D street southeast, 60 miles; Eddie Campbell, 1309 Thirteenth street northwest, 60 miles; Thomas A. Cummings, 3042 Cambridge place northwest, 56 miles and Gussiemay Hanley, 1450 Girard street northwest, 75 miles.

Indefinite suspension went to Harold David, 640 1 street southwest, 50 miles; James Farrington, 2127 Third street northeast, 50 miles; Ferman Ferguson, 138 Tennessee avenue southeast, 50 miles; Wesley Hobbs, 1321 Linden street northeast, 58 miles; Allen Stonnell, 628 Seventh street northeast, 55 miles.

Forty-five day suspension: Wesley Chiles, Silver Spring, Md., 45 miles. Thirty-day suspensions: Richard C. Clark, 821 Buchanan street northwest, 36 miles; Clarence Jones, 1446 T street northwest, 38 miles, and James Mills, 1844 Kennell street northeast, 44 miles.

Tax Dodging Study Assailed by Borah

By the Associated Press.

Senator Borah (Republican), Idaho, opened fire yesterday on the Administration resolution for an inquiry into "tax dodging." He contended it would give Treasury employes too much power to act for Congress in investigating.

The resolution sped through the Senate last week, but Borah threatened yesterday to demand reconsideration. He asserted that Senators were not provided with copies at the time the resolution passed.

D. C. Committee Will Make Study Of Auditoriums

The Capital Auditorium Advisory Committee yesterday decided to send a representative to seven or eight of the cities having large auditoriums to obtain first-hand data on their uses, operating costs, capacities and special problems.

In making the announcement, Chairman C. Marshall Finnan withheld mention of the cities to be covered in the survey, whose ultimate purpose is to gather facts which will guide the Capital Auditorium Commission, headed by Secretary Harold L. Ickes of the Interior Department, in making recommendations for a Washington auditorium.

The committee's representative will endeavor to learn how each of the halls he studies is faring financially, compare capacities, examine parking facilities and, in short, gather all information available which might be of use in planning Washington's first Federal-municipal auditorium.

Puerto Rico Shutdown Blamed on Wage Law

San Juan, Puerto Rico, June 7 (AP).—Tobacco companies and fruit canneries operating here notified Acting Gov. Menendez Ramos today that validation of Puerto Rico's minimum wage law for women is forcing them to close down.

The decision was announced as 75,000 women needle workers and 50,000 other employed women were thrown out of work. The textile industry was shut down after a recent supreme court decision revived the 1919 law which set the women's minimu mwage at $1 daily.

Jean Harlow Is Victim of Uremic Poison

William Powell Weeps as Famous Actress Succumbs.

Finally a verdict of suicide was rendered by a coroner's jury.

She later wed Harold G. Rosson, movie photographer, but this failed to bring domestic happiness and they were divorced.

Throughout her last illness, Powell has been constantly at her bedside.

Miss Harlow was born March 3, 1911, in Kansas City, the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Mont C. Carpenter. She was called Harlean but her film name later was adapted from her mother's maiden name and she made it permanent by court proceedings.

"Her hair was always blonde," her grandmother, Mrs. S. D. Harlow, once recalled in Kansas City. "At school the children would call her 'cotton top.' It made her furious.

"In our home we always called her baby.

"She spent several childhood summers with us in our summer home, Red Gables, near Bonner Springs, Kans., overlooking the Kaw River. There is where I grew to know what kind of a child my granddaughter was. It's the picture I like best to remember of her, a picture that many people who saw her only as a hussy or a vamp in movie roles, would hardly believe. I can understand.

Called "A Good Girl."

"She was really a serious girl at heart, and a good girl. Imaginative, and impulsive, full of life, too. I remember she came to our home one day and handed me her baby ring and bracelet she had outgrown. 'You keep them for me, grandmother,' she said. 'I don't ever want to lose them or forget them.'"

She was 7 years old then. The next three years she lived in California with her parents, and returned when she was 10 to Kansas City. Her parents were divorced next year. The grandmother was too ill today to be told of Miss Harlow's death.

She attended the Barstow private school for girls, and when her mother, who married Marino Bello in 1929, moved to Chicago, the daughter attended Ferry Hall private school there. She studied dramatic art, took part in school plays. From an earlier age she had shown interest in singing roles and in school dramas.

She was 16 and a student at Ferry Hall when she ran away and married Charles F. McGrew, son of a Chicago manufacturer. One story is that she made her first bid for a screen career through a girl guest at a party at the McGrew home. The guest had an appointment with a dressmaker, after which she was going to make a screen test. Jean volunteered to furnish a motor car and chauffeur to take the guest to the dressmaker, and followed it up by accompanying her to the screen testing.

At the casting office, the story continues, the young bride was also given the chance to take a camera test. She registered as Jean Harlow for the test, and was successful in it. This started her active interest in pushing herself toward a screen career.

Got Small Film Part.

She was offered small screen jobs, went to Hollywood, and worked in mob scenes, as a bathing beauty, and in two-reelers. Her success was mediocre, and for a period her ambitions for stardom seemed to have hit the same rut in which accumulate the ambitions of thousands of screen girls.

The lure of the camera persisted, however, and she got her big chance in 1930 to take a star role originally planned for Greta Nissen, a more experienced actress, as the "blonde menace" in a picture planned by Howard Hughes, the oil millionaire and movie producer. The picture was "Hell's Angel," and in it Harlow scored sensationally.

Marital troubles punctuated Miss Harlow's rise to stardom and her fame as an actress.

She divorced McGrew in 1929 and three years later was married to the film executive, Paul Bern. A month later the middle-aged Bern was found shot dead.

He left this cryptic note:

"Dearest dear: Unfortunately this is the only way to make good the frightful wrong I have done you and to wipe out my abject humiliation. I love you. P. S. You understand that last night was only a comedy.

The note was addressed to Miss Harlow, who was not at home when the body was found. During a prolonged investigation police learned the discovery of Bern's body had not been reported for about two and a half hours. Doctors said he had been dead 12 hours. Evidence that the executive was subject to fits of depression and expressions of a belief he had been killed kept the movie colony on edge until a suicide verdict was given.

The actress' third marriage, to ace Film Camerman Rosson, ended in divorce March 11, 1934, on a cruelty complaint. Among other things she complained he disturbed her sleep by reading in bed.

Blonde Miss Harlow was known in Hollywood as a good hostess and good social mixer. Friends often commented on her alert sense of humor and her attitude of not being impressed with her career or the glamour of her calling. For hobbies she collected phonograph records and wire-haired terriers.

Her screen "type" role was that of an impetuous woman, sometimes on the "rough-tough" side. At the time of her fatal illness she was working with Clark Gable in "Saratoga," a picture with a horse racing theme. She appeared there as a woman with more refinement than in her usual roles.

Throughout the theatrical world she was known as a "good trouper." Once on a personal appearance she was so ill that she had to be carried by her stepfather from theater to hotel.

But, of her own determination, she carried on.

Miss Harlow's film life was threatened with complete collapse early in her career when her grandfather in Kansas City saw her on the screen, scantily clad in lacy black underthings.

He protested bitterly. Miss Harlow asked for and obtained a release from her contract.

But the lure of the camera was too great, and after an interlude of doing nothing, she re-entered motion pictures.

The result of her performance in "Hell's Angels" were far-reaching. The world became platinum blonde-conscious. Several years later, Miss Harlow transformed her shining hair into red tresses, but only temporarily.

A fortune teller once told Miss Harlow she would be married six times. That was after she divorced Rosson. Hollywood had been certain her romance with Powell would lead to the altar.

The tragic passing of Bern, made more bitter by the resultant investigation, illustrated Miss Harlow's ability to rebound from sorrow. She plunged to work, avoiding public functions and the companionship of male escorts for some time.

Her elopement with Rosson was a surprise.

Rosson was an ace cameraman who had worked with Miss Harlow. She attributed much of her success to his deft photographic treatment of her.

Professionally, they saw much of each other. Few suspected their close relationship had a romantic tinge.

Rosson did not contest the divorce. When Miss Harlow went into court he was in Europe recovering from an attack of infantile paralysis.

Miss Harlow's testimony was brief, lasting about eight minutes.

She spoke in a low, matter-of-fact voice. Rosson was sullen and morose, she said, often refused to speak to her, ridiculed her, was jealous, was rude to their guests.

His treatment of her, she continued, made her nervous and her screen work suffered. She was asked by the judge, "What caused you and Mr. Rosson to separate?"

"I felt we could no longer go on living together," she replied.

Mrs. Bello substantiated her daughter's testimony.

When she walked from the court, Miss Harlow was asked if she contemplated marrying Powell. She said she considered him a very dear friend, adding:

"I'm busy right now, and my thoughts are solely in my work."

In the last two months, a frequent escort of Miss Harlow's was Donald Friede, actors' agent and former New York publisher.

Pictures starring or featuring Miss Harlow include, in addition to "Hell's Angels," "The Saturday Night Kid" (1929), "The Public Enemy" (1931), "The Secret Six," "The Iron Man," "Goldie," "Platinum Blonde," "Three Wise Girls," "City Sentinel," "The Beast of the City," "Red-Headed Woman," "Red Dust," "Bombshell," "Dinner At Eight," "Hold Your Man," The Girl From Missouri," "Reckless," "China Seas," "Riff Raff" and "Wife Versus Secretary."

Jean Harlow's Death Plunges Film Colony Into Mourning

'A Beautiful and Gallant Trouper,' Says Gary Cooper; 'An Appallingly Tragic Thing,' Declares Claudette Colbert.

By the Associated Press.

Los Angeles, June 7.—The death of Jean Harlow brought expressions of sorrow today from many of her famous associates in the motion-picture industry.

Some of the tributes:

Clark Gable, who was working in a picture with her when she was stricken: "I am too overcome by grief to make any comment."

W. S. Van Dyke, who directed her in many pictures: "She leaves us at the height of a glorious career—a great actress and an even greater friend."

Claudette Colbert: "What an appallingly tragic thing. My heartfelt sympathy to her family and legion of friends."

Bing Crosby: "The suddenness of her passing makes it the more terrible for those who knew her."

Eddie Cantor: "Jean Harlow richly merited the esteem we all had for her, both as an actress and as a person. Her loss is a blow to all of us in pictures."

Victor McLaglen: "Her life is the finest Cinderella story I know."

Mary Pickford: "Jan Harlow had a brilliant career. She lived a full and abundant life and in my belief will continue to do so, although invisible to our mortal eyes."

Senators to Get New Mooney Plea

New evidence which aims at linking the 1916 Preparadness Day bombing, of which Tom Mooney and Warren Billings were convicted, with the Germanconsular staff in San Francisco will be presented in hearings before a newly appointed Senate Judiciary sub-committee, the local Tom Mooney defense committee announced yesterday.

The hearings will be conducted on a resolution of Senator James Murray (Democrat), of Montana, proposing that Congress memorialize thelegislature and Governor of California to free Mooney.

In announcing the evidence, made made public through Gardner Jackson, of the defense committee, the committee said records of the German war sabotage of 1929, recently unearthed, show J. H. Van Koolbergen, a British spy, made a bomb to specifications "for Lieut Von Brincken, a member of the German consul's staff."

This record, it was said, shows Van Koolbergen delivered the bomb to C. C. Crowley, who "before his death confessed * * * he was the one who planted the bomb which caused the explosion." Details of the bomb, it was said, show it to be identical with pictures published in a San Francisco newspapre purporing to be of the bomb which caused the parade deaths.

and the problem of providing adequate medical care are not identical and may require different approaches for their solution.

Help for Indigent.

"The immediate problem is provision of adequate medical care for the medical indigent, the costs to be met from public funds.

"Public funds should be made available to hospitals that render service to the medically indigent and for laboratory diagnostic and consultative services.

"With the provision that these consultative and laboratory diagnostic services shall be established only in regions where the medical profession approves the need for same and after consultation with the local medical profession in the area affected.

"In the allocation of public funds existing private institutions should be utilized to the largest possible extent.

"In so far as the allocation of funds is concerned for these institutions, they should not be made on a pro-rata population basis, but should be limited directly by the needs of given institutions in specified localities; and the allocation should have the approval of the medical profession in the locality in which the institutions are located.

"We hold that compulsory health insurance does not offer a satisfactory solution."

Paralysis Serum Tested.

An efficient serum to prevent the crippling of children and adults suffering from infantile paralysis is being developed, a Rochester, Minn., physician told the opening meeting of the association today, as the result of a discovery that the disease is caused by the common streptococcus bacteria which changes its form and becomes a filterable virus.

Such a serum, which will prevent paralysis in victims of the disease if it is given promptly, already has proven effective in experiments on monkeys and on a few human beings during epidemics, Dr. Charles E. Rosenow, of the Mayo Clinic, declared in presenting an exhibit of his work.

The virus which causes infantile paralysis has been proven to be but another form of the streptococcus bacteria in a number of ways which leave little doubt of the fact, he said.

In the laboratory he prepared cultures of the streptococcus, inoculated experimental animals and produced typical infantile paralysis symptoms. He also prepared the virus from bacteria taken from monkeys which died of the disease and, in another test, showed the presence of the bacteria in animals and human beings just before the onset of the first symptoms of the disease. Other scientists have held the belief that the virus was a separate thing not specifically related to bacteria.

C. I. O. Union Demands Contract; $60,000 May Leave Jobs.

J. Kelly held in abeyance his previous order that the workmen must cease living in a wire factory on the company's 20-acre grounds.

The sleeping car stratagem averted a showdown on the western sector of the strike front, temporarily at least.

Approximately 100 pickets and several hundred others had gathered near the main entrance, but they made no move to halt the train. A police force of more than 300 remained on guard.

Mayor Kelly had decreed the company must cease housing its estimated 1,400 nonstrikers in the wire mill by 1:30 p. m. today. He ruled the practice violated the city's building and health codes.

The Republic corporation was the only major independent steel producer which continued operations despite the walkout called by the Steel Workers Organizing Committee.

With the S. W. O. C. standing by its decision not to allow plants to reopen until three companies have signed bargaining contracts, the American Iron & Steel Institute estimated operation this week at 76.2 per cent of capacity—1.2 points under that of a week ago and 15 points under the average of a month ago. Republic Steel Corporation, Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co., and Inland Steel Co. are strike bound.

Gov. Davey of Ohio, replying late today to the complaint of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad that strikers were damaging tracks and hampering service in the steel strike area, assured that "every effort" was being made to control the situation.

Ford Plant Reopens.

Richmond, Calif., June 7 (AP).—The gates of the big Ford assembly plant here, closed for 12 days by strike, opened to returning workmen today.

There was much contradiction in reports of the precise terms of settlement of the strike, called May 26 by the United Automobile Workers, who demanded union recognition and $8 for a 6-hour day.

Frank Slaby, union president, said the agreement, approved 5 to 1, by the workers, provided for "recognition in fact." But at Detroit, Harry Bennett, Ford personnel director, was quoted, "Nobody has any authority to recognize the U. A. W. as sole collective bargaining agency for for Ford's Richmond plant."

Organizers Sentenced.

Lewiston, Me., June 7 (AP).—Appeal to the Maine Supreme Court was taken today by counsel for nine Committee for Industrial Organization aides after Superior Court Judge Arthur Chapman sentenced each of them to five months in jail and fined each $100. The defendants were convicted of conspiracy to injure the business of the the Charles Cushman Co., of Auburn, in connection with a strike of Ewiton-Auburn shoe plants.

NLRB Gets Appeal.

By the Associated Press.

President Roosevelt turned over to the National Labor Relations Board and to Secretry Perkins yesterday an appeal from steel strikers asking that he act at once to settle their walkout peacefully.

The Labor Board later issued a statement saying "no formal action has been instituted before the board in matters referred to in the telegram to the President." Well-informed persons pointed out that the telegram involved an issue on which the Labor Board does not have jurisdiction.

Meantime, reports the postoffice had refused to deliver food packages to nonstrikers in strike-bound mills at Youngstown, Ohio, and other cities brought a demand from Senator Bridges (Republican), New Hampshire, for a Senate investigation.

From Jesse M. Donaldson, Deputy First Assistant Postmaster General, came a statement defending the Postoffice Department's right to accept for delivery only mail matter usually delivered under normal conditions.

A GLORIOUS CALIFORNIA Vacation in 2 Weeks?
YES, AND BOULDER DAM, TOO
What a glorious vacation. You can visit romantic, 150-year-old Spanish missions—bathe in the blue Pacific—mingle with gay throngs in Hollywood—enjoy cosmopolitan San Francisco, where the miracle of modern engineering has produced the famous 8-mile double-decked Bay Bridge.
From snow-topped mountains to glistening seashore sands, every outdoor pastime is provided. And you can see mighty Boulder Dam en route—cruise on picturesque, fjord-like Lake Mead . . . all within the span of a two-weeks vacation.
What's more, the cost is decidedly reasonable. California hotel and resort rates are moderate and rail fares are very low. For example:
ONLY $57.35 is the round trip coach fare from Chicago, with six months return limit.
In Pullman-Tourist Sleeping cars the round trip fare from Chicago is $68.80 (berth extra) with 6 months return limit—in Standard Pullmans $86.00 (berth extra), return limit October 31. And you may return by way of the Pacific Northwest at no extra fare, if you wish.

Nazi Campaign Against Church Enters Austria

Archbishop of Vienna Assailed for Reply on 'Immorality.'

By the United Press.

Berlin, June 7.—The German government tonight carried its "immorality" crusade against the Catholic Church into the field of international politics with a bitter attack on Cardinal Innitzer, Archbishop of Vienna.

The authoritative newspaper, Der Angriff, organ of the Nazi propaganda ministry, berated the Vienna archbishop for his defense of the Catholic clergy against charges of rampant sexual crimes.

"The cardinal comes out into the open, but he should think of Austria; his abuse is in the wrong place," Der Angriff said.

The article was regarded as a back-handed blow at the Austrian government of Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg, which has repulsed efforts of the Nazis to obtain a foothold in Austria.

Warning by Nazis.

The article in Der Angriff, following Chancellor Adolf Hitler's statement at a Bavarian party meeting that "never will I permit the German Reich to be torn asunder into warring religious groups," was taken as warning that the Nazis are preparing to take to task all foreign defenders of the German Catholic clergy.

Almost simultaneously municipal authorities at Fulda seized control of the Catholic Brothers' Hospital and the apprentice home attached to it, on the ground that the recent immorality trials of attaches had caused "public dissatisfaction."

The arrests created grave tension, although police denied that any rioting occurred.

Hitler Is Reluctant.

Hitler, according to observers of the Nazi-Catholic feud, is reluctant to proceed with any wholesale attacks against the German Catholic clergy, fearing that mass reprisals might react unfavorably upon the government.

Der Angriff's attack on Cardinal Innitzer, whom it charged with participating in an "incipient campaign" to damage Germany's reputation abroad, said:

"Cardinal Innitzer is very imprudent to assert that only small numbers of culprits have been found among the clergy. * * * His statement that the immorality trials will damage Germany's reputation abroad is most incredible.

"This is the cue for an international libel campaign against Germany, as well as a pretext to inflame the Austrian population against the Reich."

Bernard Dogs Reprieved After One Kills Child

Hospice of the Great St. Bernard, Switzerland, June 7 (AP).—The commandant of the Swiss gendarmes announced tonight that the Saint Bernard dogs, one of whom bit a small girl to death, will not be destroyed as punishment. The commandant completed investigation of the case and said he found the dogs were not a public danger.

"It must be recognized," the commandant said, "that the dogs rendered a great service to humanity throughout the ages." One of the dogs killed the 10-year-old daughter of Dr. Jean Bremond on May 19, and he had asked the monks to destroy all the Bernards.

Christ Scientist Church Headed By C. P. Smith

More Than 6,000 Attend Boston Meeting From All Over World.

By the Associated Press.

Boston, June 7.—Judge Clifford P. Smith, of Newton, was elected church president for the coming year today at the fifty-ninth annual meeting of the mother church, First Church of Christ Scientist.

Elected by the Christian Science board of directors for one year, Judge Smith succeeded Mrs. Elizabeth Cadwell Tomlinson. Other officers chosen today were Edward L. Ripley, Brookline, treasurer, and Ezra W. Palmer, Marshfield, clerk. More than 6,000 Christian Scientists from all parts of the world attended the meeting.

Progress of Christian Science expressed in the organization and recognition of 59 new churches and societies; in sales increases of 66 per cent for the writings of Mary Baker Eddy, and in an increasingly friendly public thought as reflected by legislative bodies when handling measures involving medical and religious freedom, featured reports by church officers at the meeting.

Judge Smith has been in the service of the Mother Church occasionally since 1905 and continually since 1908.

He declared in his address that "to insure its strength and success an organized movement requires (1) a good purpose clearly stated, (2) an intelligent plan for achieving this purpose, (3) active co-operation in accordance with the plan by the persons who compose the movement.

"The Christian Science movement has the first of these essentials in our leader's writings on the nature and purpose of our church. The second of these essentials (a practical plan conceived in wisdom) we have in our church manual. The third essential can be restated for our movement as active and united efforts to communicate, demonstrate, and propagate the science of mind-healing. For this essential, the responsibility rests on all Christian Scientists collectively and individually.

The fact that the Christian Science denomination has 2,781 branches was cited and Miss M. Rosamond Wright, manager of the department of branches and practitioners, reported further for the year: "Good growth in our movement is shown through the organization and recognition of 59 new churches and societies as branches of the Mother Church, and six new university organizations.

Cab Driver Borne On Sretcher Tells Of Attempt on Life

Unable to walk because of two bullet wounds in his back, Roscoe W. Kirk, 52-year-old cab driver, yesterday was carried into District Court on a stretcher to tell the grand jury how, on the night of February 5, he was assaulted and shot by a colored man.

He said the man hailed his cab at Fifteenth and H streets northeast, and directed him to a Northeast address. En route, the passenger instructed Kirk to drive slowly in the middle of the road and to head for the river. The passenger is said to have told the driver he was going to kill him and throw him into the Potomac.

As the car neared a gasoline station at Barney Circle, Kirk drove in and the passenger shot him. A suspect, Willie J. McClendon, has been under arrest for several months.

Physicians attending Kirk said he was probably permanently crippled. The grand jury report will be handed down later.

Jefferson City, Mo., June 7 (AP).—Missouri's retail sales tax was doubled today when Gov. Lloyd C. Stark signed into law a bill increasing the rate from 1 per cent to 2. Proponents estimated it will add $1,000,000 monthly to the State's revenue.

Duke of Windsor Plans To Hunt Wolf Prowler

Noetsch, Austria, June 7 (AP).—The Duke of Windsor toyed with the idea of a wolf hunt today—to catch "Old Bushwacks," who paid an early prowl to Wasserleonburg Castle grounds.

An attendant at the castle said he saw the wolf silhouetted by lightning flashes during a heavy storm. "Bushwacks," farmers say, has been a nuisance for three years. Edward discussed the wolf hunt with the local forester. The duchess, however, was worried because some dangerous mountain climbing would be involved.

Power Assured For 600 Farms In Maryland

Permission Given to Build 175-Mile Line in 3 Counties.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, June 7.—The Southern Maryland Tri-County Co-operative Association, Inc., received today permission of the public service commission to erect and maintain a 175-mile electric service line in Prince Georges, Charles and St. Marys counties.

The commission's order cleared the way for the association to start its project of carrying electric power to some 600 farmers in the three counties. The Rural Electrification Administration has provided financial aid for the work.

With only slight alterations in the original plans in St. Marys County, the commission approved the petition of the co-operative provided its lines did not interfere with the service given or contemplated by the Maryland Light & Power Co.

The commission recognized an agreement made at a hearing last Wednesday by representatives of the association and the utility company. This eliminated competition for customers in two sections of St. Marys County.

Bids on the line construction were opened last week in Washington, REA officials said. They predicted service will be ready by early fall.

Wendell M. Reed, of Welcome, president of the co-operative, said at last week's hearing that 490 members had been secured to insure a monthly income of at least $2,127.79. He also said the board of directors would consider the application of nonmembers.

The proposed power line is to originate at Bryan Point on the Potomac River in Prince Georges County.

Morgan Assails Moral Question In Tax-Dodging

you have to. It's just as bad to pay too much as too little."

Reporters told him the Administration blamed the loss of $400,000,000 in expected tax revenue on various types of evasion. Morgan replied:

"If that's so, it is the fault of Congress. It is not right to raise ill will out of this issue. If people find this error in the law—and they have a perfect right to find it—then Congress should make changes, not the people who pay taxes."

Morgan once admitted before a Senate committee that he had paid no income taxes in 1930, 1931 and 1932.

Senator Sherman Minton (Democrat), Indiana, was among those criticizing the Morgan attitude, which he said, "is in keeping with that of his kind.'

"They think anything is all right if they can get away with it, he added. "It's absurd to say that tax loopholes are due to the stubidity of Congress. You can't write laws to cover every possible situation. What really is responsible is the cupidity of Morgan and his people who spend money to hunt ways to escape the laws the average person with the average conscience readily obeys."

Representative Fred M. Vinson (Democrat), Kentucky, declared:

"If Morgan thinks that is the attitude ofa good citizen, he's welcome to it. The honest taxpayers, however, who are in the great majority, do not lie awake nights planning avoidance of their just dues to the Government."

IIn his message to Congress on June 1, President Roosevelt said:

"'In this immediate problem, the decency of American morls is involved." And he continued that "we hear too often from lawyers, as well as from their clients, the sentiment, 'It is all right to do it if you can get away with it.'"

Auto, Theater Tickets Figure In 'Fixing' Case

Police Got Weekly Passes as 'Policy,' Movie Man Says.

Traffic tickets and theater tickets shared the spotlight at yesterday's session of the Police Trial Board as the District resumed its prosecution of Policeman Welford E. Winfield, former traffic division officer, faced with nearly 50 counts of alleged "ticket fixing."

Harry E. Lohmeyer, District manager for Warner Bros. theaters and former manager of the Earle Theater, testified he sent Policeman Winfield numerous parking tickets and on occasions gave him passes to the Earle.

The movie passes, however, were not confined to Winfield alone, Lohmeyer said. "Some 200 policemen," he added, receive weekly free tickets. This practice, Lohmeyer declared, is a "matter of policy."

During the afternoon trial board session more than 40 exhibits—including a dozen traffic violation warrants, numerous canceled or "adjusted" traffic tickets and personal "thank you" notes—were produced by Assistant Corporation Counsel Edward M. Welliver, prosecutor.

Liquor Man Heard.

These exhibits, which were marked for further identification, were found in Winfield's home, Welliver said.

Earlier Louis Silverberg, proprietor of a liquor store at 3657 Georgia avenue northwest, was called to the witness stand to identify a blank sales slip made out to Winfield and a personal card which allegedly accompanied the order.

"Did you ever give Winfield any liquor?" asked Welliver.

"I don't remember," responded Silverberg.

At this point Inspector Edward J. Kelly, chairman of the board, interjected:

"Did Winfield ever fix a ticket for you?"

"I don't remember," Silverberg answered.

The sales slip and calling card were ruled out of evidence.

Charles Linkins, local attorney, who said he represented Teunis Collier, Georgetown "traffic crusader," told of receiving the Government exhibits produced by Welliver from Winfield's deceased wife.

Theater Envelopes Shown.

At one point during yesterday's hearing, 18 empty envelopes, each bearing the name of the Earle Theater, were presented by Welliver. There was no testimony as to what the envelopes contained when they were addressed to Winfield.

A number of high-ranking police officials, including Maj. Brown and Inspector Kelly, receive season passes to the Earle, Lohmeyer declared.

Inspector Kelly pointed out, however, that he always paid admission to the theater and did not request the pass.

Lohmeyer was asked if he ever sent Winfield parking tickets accompanied by passes. He answered yes.

"How many times?" he was asked.

"If I said 6 or 600 it would be guessing," Lohmeyer replied. "I sent passes every week to many officers, but it just possibly happened that if I had parking tickets I sent them, too."

"Did you ever give Winfield passes for the purpose of having him fix tickets?" was the next question.

"No," answered Lohmeyer.

The trial adjourned last night and will be resumed today. Nearly 100 witnesses have yet to be heard.

Borah and Gillette Urge Double Blow BeDealtMonopoly

By the Associated Press.

Senators Borah (Republican), of Idaho, and Gillette (Democrat), of Iowa, urged Congress yesterday to aim a double blow at "monopoly."

Borah noted Congress is considering legislation to close the channels of interstate commerce to goods produced by factories using child labor or maintaining low wage and hour standards. He suggested products of monopoly be similarly excluded.

"Monopoly has no right to use interstate commerce for the control of prices or the destruction of competitors," he said.

Gillette complained a few concerns have "bottle neck control of vital processing of farm crops." In a speech on the Senate floor he asked that Congress amend the antitrust laws to prevent any corporation from acquiring assets of a competitor.

He also announced he will propose legislation "to terminate close control of grain terminal elevators and the siphoning off of money from the great standard food and feed crops."

Two Men Plead Guilty To Slaying of Women

New York, June 7 (AP).—Two slayers of women pleaded guilty to second-degree murder charges today in general sessions court.

"I killed her and I'm sorry," said Mischa Ross, theatrical agent, arraigned for the slaying of dark and lovely Tania Lubova, young violinist from Connecticut, with a hammer in a Times Square rehearsal hall April 18. Soon afterward the attorney for Leonida Hamulakas pleaded guilty to slashing Irene Wadas, 25-year-old waitress, to death with a butcher knife in the vestibule of the Columbia Residence Club. Both Ross and Hamulakas face sentences of 20 years to life imprisonment.

2-Year Extension Of PWA Approved By Lower House

By the Associated Press.

The House stamped its approval yesterday on legislation to give the Public Works Administration a two-year lease on life and a working fund of about $259,000,000.

Without a record vote and only brief debate, it sent the measure to the Senate, where a somewhat similar proposal already has been advanced by Senator Hayden (Democrat) of Arizona. PWA expires June 30, under existing law.

The House bill would authorize the agency to use a $95,000,000 unobligated balance in its "revolving fund" for grants and sell an additional $40,000,000 of its securities for the same purpose.

Approximately 124,000,000 additional would be available for loans, giving PWA a total of $259,000,000 for new projects. Only those already approved by PWA's examining division, however, would be eligible for either loans or grants under the House bill.

3 Town Commissioners Are Elected in Bowie

The town of Bowie, Md., yesterday elected three town commissioners in a close contest. Those elected with their votes are: Willis Lancaster, 175; Joseph G. Kline, 169, and Aaron Howitz, 153.

The defeated candidatas were William Thirles, who had 85 votes, and Steele Megrew, who received 73 votes.

Yugoslavia to Default On U. S. Debt Payment

By the Associated Press.

Yugoslavia notified the United States yesterday it would default again on its semiannual war debt installment, amounting with past due payments to $1,875,000.

Latvia announced last week its inability to meet the June 15 installment. On that date 12 nations will owe a total of $1,520,159,863. They have been in default since 1933.

$700,000 Political Reward Reported

Chicago, June 7 (AP).—William H. Malone, former Illinois tax commission chairman, testified today that he received $700,000 "as a donation" toward his own future gubernatorial race for his part in the Presidential nomination campaign for Gen. Leonard Wood in 1920.

Malone, who is on trial in Federal Judge William H. Holly's court, charged with evasion of $59,000 in income tax, gave this testimony as Government attorneys sought an explanation of alleged unreported funds in his possession.

You'll have more fun when the SKIN is clear from WITHIN

NO MAN or woman wants to have a finger poked at them or receive sympathy because of an unhealthy skin appearance.

Some skin troubles are tough to correct, but we do know this—skin tissues like the body itself must be fed from within.

To make the food we eat available for strength and energy, there must be an abundance of red-blood-cells.

Worry, overwork, undue strain, unbalanced diet; a cold, perhaps, as well as other causes, "burn-up" your red-blood-cells faster than the body renews.

S.S.S. Tonic builds these precious red cells. It is a simple, internal remedy, tested for generations and also proven by scientific research.

It is worthy of a thorough trial by taking a course of several bottles . . . the first bottle usually demonstrates a marked improvement.

Moreover, S.S.S. Tonic whets the appetite and improves digestion . . . a very important step back to health.

You, too, will want to take S.S.S. Tonic to regain and to maintain your red-blood-cells . . . to restore lost weight . . . to regain energy . . . to strengthen nerves . . . and to give to your skin that natural health glow.

Take the S.S.S. Tonic treatment and shortly you should be delighted with the way you feel . . . and have your friends compliment you on the way you look.

At all drug stores in two convenient sizes. The large size at a saving in price. There is no substitute for this time-tested remedy. No ethical druggist will suggest something "just as good." © S.S.S. Co.

Cleveland's Mad Head-Hunter Adds 9th Victim to Death Toll

By the Associated Press.

Cleveland, June 7.—Cleveland's mad head hunter was credited with his ninth victim today.

Coroner S. R. Gerber declared lime-corroded bones and a skull found under a Cuyahoga River bridge were those of a colored woman about 35 years old whose body had been expertly dissected.

Microscopic examination by the coroner and Dr. T. Wingate Todd, professor of anatomy at Western Reserve University, disclosed death probably was caused by decapitation.

It was the first time the killer used lime to shield the identity of his victim.

The deserted spot where the skeleton was found is similar to places chosen for the disposal of six other bodies, and the unburied bones correspond to the way in which most of the killer's bodies were left.

A gold bridge of three teeth in the upper jaw of the latest victim gave police one clew which may lead to identification. Only two of the torso murder victims so far have been identified.

Dr. Gerber estimated the body had been deposited in the debris-littered field about a year ago. A scrap of newspaper dated June 5, 1936, was found inclosed in the sack.

The first of the dismembered bodies was discovered September 5, 1934, when the upper half of a woman's body washed up on the Lake Erie shore in the eastern section of the city.

Peace, At Hitler's Price.

Coming so soon after the ruthless bombardment of Almeria, Adolph Hitler's assurance to the world that "the German nation does not want to start a war, either today, tomorrow or the day after tomorrow," is subject to considerable discount.

Indeed, in this very same speech the Fuehrer made it clear that the Nazi regime would not hesitate to strike out when, in its judgment, it has been "insulted or attacked." In other words, peace is what Hitler says it is and woe betide the nation that thinks otherwise.

It is hardly surprising, then, that Europe remains on tenterhooks and nations that are truly peace-minded are straining every nerve to build up their armaments to safeguard themselves against the threatened menace of a war provoked by the Fascist powers.

Happily, the Iviza and Almeria incidents have passed without starting a general conflagration. The efforts of Great Britain, supported by France, to re-establish the shattered non-intervention agreement and the international sea patrol around Spain appear to be making headway. Although the replies from Berlin and Rome to Britain's pleas are somewhat equivocal, the indications nevertheless do point to a new agreement.

For the time being, apparently, the Fascist powers have decided to stay their hand. But their demand for freedom to undertake reprisals when they believe themselves to have been attacked indicates that they are not in the least willing to permit the non-intervention plan to become truly effective.

On a par with this attitude toward the Spanish problem is Hitler's stand on disarmament. His partner, Mussolini, recently let it be known that he would permit Italy to participate in a new conference for the limitation of armaments, should such a parley be called by President Roosevelt. Hitler, too, insists that he favors disarmament. But since Germany has "become suspicious" the other nations "must disarm first."

In the face of the Third Reich's contempt for international law, its record of ruthlessness in domestic policy and foreign affairs, this naive suggestion will be quickly dismissed by the outside world. Fortunately, the armaments shoe is now on the other foot. While Germany for financial and economic reasons may soon find it necessary to slow down its rearmament program, the great democracies of western Europe are going full speed ahead with their plans to place their defenses on a strong basis. And the bellicosity of Hitler's peace speeches will tend only to encourage them in this program.

The Inconstant Moon.

In a world of rapid and disturbing changes mankind, hitherto, has been able to find refuge and take solace in the certainties of the larger universe. Governments might rise and fall, new deals might succeed old deals, time-honored standards in art, literature, morals might disappear. No matter. For the seasons in their unchanging cycle, the stars in their courses, the moon in its phases, the earth moving from perihelion to aphelion and back again—these were fixed and eternal phenomena. It has been a restful universe.

It is restful no longer. Speaking with the casualness of a scientist trained to utter the truth no matter how disturbing it might be, Dr. H. Spencer Jones, royal astronomer, recently informed an audience at Greenwich Observatory that the moon had become erratic. The Great White Father of the skies, he stated, "is moving off its calculated position" just as though it were Anthony Eden or Neville Chamberlain.

No wonder, then, that there was consternation throughout London and an all too numerous portion of the citizenry demanded to know, and at once, what the royal astronomer meant by his upsetting remarks. In self-defense Dr. Jones was finally forced to have his telephone removed.

Hitherto "the inconstant moon" has simply been a figure of speech out of Shakespeare. Friend of mariners, song-writers and lovers, its fidelity to routine has been taken for granted. For it to go wandering off on an erratic course is disturbing to say the least. Has the jazz age infected the empyrean, has swing taken possession of Nature's Great White Way as it has of man's?

The astronomer royal owes the world an explanation. In the meantime let us hope his animadversions regarding the moon are simply not true, that, as a Cambridge scientist has suggested, it is not the lunar orb but the astronomers and their system of mathematics that are at fault. For mankind's peace of mind it would be encouraging to discover that certainties are still certainties.

Threat Of Anarchy.

A truly alarming situation has developed in several cities where workers affiliated with the Committee for Industrial Organization are on strike. Some observers bluntly refer to this contest as "a little civil war." A protest from the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad calls it "a state of riot." Perhaps it can be more accurately described as a grave threat of anarchy.

In Lansing a group of "sympathy strikers" is reported to have taken over control of the downtown area in protest against the arrest of a number of pickets. While conducting a demonstration and directing the city's traffic, union leaders announced an "agreement" for release of the pickets. In Chicago workmen are living in a steel plant because of failure of the local authorities to guarantee them safe egress and entrance. Plants in Ohio are under siege. Railroads attempting to serve these plants, although they are in no way involved in the strike, find their tracks blockaded and in some cases badly damaged. Even the postal service has bowed to threat of violence and is refusing to deliver "irregular mail" to plants where strikes are in progress.

In several instances strikers have engaged in actual combat with either the police or non-striking employes. The companies are said to maintain extensive arsenals for protection of their property. Many of the strikers conducting sieges are likewise reported to be armed with guns, clubs, etc. Each group is apparently trying to take the law into its own hands.

Obviously, this is not collective bargaining. Rather it is an assault upon the peace of the communities in which these disturbances are taking place. The arbitrary conduct of the independent steel companies in declining to sign any contract with the C. I. O. has been overshadowed by inexcusable resort to violence on the part of irresponsible labor groups. In their frantic efforts to win a strike, they have challenged public authority. Continued pursuit of these tactics cannot possibly be tolerated.

Yet violence is likely to be the order of the day until public authorities make up their minds to face the situation with more courage and realism than have thus far been in evidence. Mayor Kelly has taken some steps to enforce Chicago's ordinances against use of factories for living quarters. But his demand for enforcement of the law will be only a comic gesture unless he is ready to guarantee the peaceful transit of men to and from plants where they desire to continue working.

The situation calls for a general awakening of public authorities. Strikes can not be permitteed to paralyze the arm of the law without danger of perilous consequences. Union leaders ought to realize that these tactics, in the long run, are likely to defeat their own purposes. Until they learn that lesson, however, it is imperative for public authorities to intervene to preserve order and safeguard the public interest.

Child Labor Today.

Senator Bridges, of New Hampshire, will ask for a separation of the child labor provisions from the Administration's wage-and-hour bill. He believes—and sensibly—that the question of child labor should be considered on its own merits without being obscured by intricate arguments on adult wages and hours.

This commendable plea to deal with child labor as a separate problem may well be carried a step further. Before attempting once more to prescribe regulations for the employment of boys and girls under 16 years of age, Congress certainly ought to know the extent to which children are being exploited in mills and factories. Many changes have taken place since the last child labor law was found to be unconstitutional. Even if it could be assumed that constitutional impediments have been removed by recent court decisions, some indication as to how many minors are employed today, and under what circumstances, is necessary to intelligent consideration of the problem.

The truth is that no one knows precisely how many children are working in the United States. The 1930 census found 1,478,000 boys and girls 16 or 17 years old employed, or 31.7 per cent of the youth of those ages in the country. Of these, roughly 34 per cent were engaged in agriculture; nearly 27 per cent in industry, and the rest in service, clerical, trade and miscellaneous occupations. But this group would not be affected by bills now under consideration.

The same census showed 667,000 children between the ages of 14 and 15 employed. In this category, agriculture accounted for more than 70 per cent of the jobs; industry provided work for only 10 per cent; and trade, service and clerical occupations the rest.

For more recent years, only estimates are available. And these relate to children employed solely in industry and trade, since checks on agricultural workers are impossible to maintain. Employment certificates issued to children leaving school for jobs show that before 1933 a rise in general factory employment was accompanied by a rise in child labor. In 1933, however, the NRA codes with their 16-year minimum age provisions went into effect and child labor dropped abruptly, notwithstanding an increase in adult employment.

After the Blue Eagle's demise, employment of children again increased; and today it continues this trend. Even with this upswing, however, the Children's Bureau reports that fewer than 25 children out of every 1,000 aged 14 and 15 applied for employment certificates in 1934; this compares with 230 or more per 1,000 in 1920. The country ought to know the full story behind this remarkable improvement before Congress attempts to take over he job of regulating child labor.

Japan's Trade Mission.

An unofficial economic mission composed of Japan's leading industrialists and financiers has been touring the United States since the middle of May. Its members are especially interested in the possibilities of increasing trade between the two countries through the so-called "gentlemen's agreement" method recently employed by the textile industry.

Although Mr. Kadono, president of the Tokyo Chamber of Commerce and Industry and head of the visiting delegation, thinks that the information acquired may prove useful in framing a reciprocal trade treaty, the obstacles in the way of an official agreement are obviously very great.

The reason why Japan presents an exceptional case has been explained very clearly by Dr. C. T. Murchison, president of the Cotton Textile Institute and former head of the Bureau of the Foreign and Domestic Commerce. As a result of his recent visit to Japan, Dr. Murchison concluded that the American textile industry is not competing with exploited labor or with lower living standards but rather with a "totally different mode of life, the elements of which are not comparable with those prevailing in America."

The disparities in production costs, which enable Japan to undercut the prices charged by American and other competing manufacturers in world markets, will by degrees be narrowed as wages rise in Japan and working hours are reduced. Japan's competitive advantages would also be lessened by a rise in the exchange value of the yen or increases in exports prices. As industrialization advances working conditions in the countries of the Far East will no doubt become more nearly like those of the western world. But the approach will necessarily be gradual. Furthermore, standards set for industries manufacturing for export cannot diverge widely from those for labor producing goods for the domestic market. Otherwise the whole industrial and agricultural organization of the country would be thrown out of gear.

Instead, therefore, of denouncing the Japanese for unfair competitive practices, the sensible course is to realize the width and depth of the economic gulf which separates the two countries and try to devise plans for bridging it. Since Japanese-American trade is largely complementary, rather than competitive, a compromise solution of its problems should not be difficult. In a number of instances, including the gentlemen's agreement for textiles, private industrial interests in Japan have shown their willingness voluntarily to limit exports to this market in exchange for promises that American competitors will not press for prohibitive duties on their goods.

In return for the concessions involved in such agreements, the United States should be able to clinch her hold on the valuable export markets afforded by our third best customer. In earlier years, Japan's sales of raw silk provided resources out of which she could pay for our cotton and other goods and still have a large surplus available. The decrease in volume and the sharp drop in vaule of her silk exports since 1929 has intensified Japan's struggle to find export markets for other products and has brought her increasingly into conflict with foreign manufacturers, here and elsewhere.

Through visits and informal discussion the business men of both countries will acquire a better understanding of the extent of their community of interest. That will greatly assist the conclusion of unofficial and eventually, perhaps, official agreements carrying reciprocal concessions designed to put Japanese-American trade on a more stable and mutually beneficial basis.

Minor Poetry.

From the Forum.

Minor poetry is the result of a conscious desire to express an idea or a mood in "poetic" language; it is not the outcome of any deep emotion but the product of the surface mind. It springs from no overmastering and powerful impulse but from one which can be ordered and controlled. Much delicacy and skill may go in its creation, but it is essentially a pastime, for reader and poet alike. Its contents is intellectual, not emotional; it does not touch those mysterious springs of life which lie deep within us and which stir in answer to the voice of only a great poet. There is no magic in it; its meaning is at once clear and apparent and its charm tangible and easily analyzed.

Very little minor poetry survives beyond its age. It does survive occasionally because of its very limitations, because of its special flavor, appropriateness and datedness.

Tell me not, Sweet, I am unkind
That from the nunnery
Of thy chaste breast and quiet mind
To war and arms I fly.

This is like an exquisite museum piece. It speaks to us not with the voice of eternity but in the very individual tones of a courtly gentleman of the early seventeenth century; it is valuable to us because it is the perfect and final expression of his spirit but it has nothing in common with ours. Pleasing our minds and senses, it fails to touch our hearts.

I Want Peace, But Don't Get In My Way.

Letters to the Editor

All communications must carry the writer's name and address, though pen names are permitted at the Editor's discretion. In fairness to other correspondents, brevity is requested. Letters are subject to condensation.

The Other Side.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: George A. Martin, business agent of the former Industrial Brotherhood of Taxidrivers, in a letter to The Post conveys the impression that the completely reorganized brotherhood is a spurious organization, established "by a disgruntled few" who are "bore-from-within" artists and do not have the support of the membership.

Here are the facts as recorded in the minutes of the meeting of the old brotherhood last attended by Mr. Martin and also recorded in the last meeting of the old brotherhood which Mr. Martin failed to attend.

At a meeting of the brotherhood on May 10, written charges were preferred against Mr. Martin. He was instructed to be prepared at the following meeting to clear himself of those charges. Instead, Mr. Martin failed to appear and usurped the records of the organization. On a motion for reorganization, introduced at the following meeting, the duly constituted membership present unanimously voted for it.

If Mr. Martin is consoled by the possession of the records of the old brotherhood which he illegaly confiscated and which are utterly worthless to him, it must be understood—as it is understood by every taxidriver in Washington, including Mr. Martin—that what was formerly the living embodiment of those records, is now carried over in its entirety (Mr. Martin excluded) into the reorganized Industrial Brotherhood of Taxidrivers.

E. ERWIN DOLLAR,
President, Industrial Brotherhood of Taxidrivers.
Washington, June 5.

Vigilant Liberty.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: That the spirit of liberty is ever vigilant was illustrated in the protest that was immediately made to the Kansas Board of Censorship for deleting that part of Senator Wheeler's speech in which he referred to the loss of patronage to be suffered by those Senators who opposed packing of the Supreme Court.

Some said that this was a little thing. So, indeed, was the tiny leak in a Holland dike, and so was the spark which destroyed the Hindenberg.

Says Emerson: "The creation of a thousand forests is in one acorn." It is the part of statesmanship to nip in the bud those evils which otherwise might overwhelm the state.

Similar protests were aroused when it was learned that Mr. John L. Lewis' labor organization had made a huge contribution to the New Deal campaign fund; when tacit approval was given by the Secretary of Labor to sit-down strikes; when the Governor of Michigan failed to enforce the mandate of the courts against sit-down strikers; and when Government officials offered Federal aid to the families of strikers.

The American public is long suffering and slow to resent the usurpation of power. But national vigilance against infraction of our rights and liberties is ever alert, and it is fortunate for the republic that this is so.

W. C. T. U. Convention.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Of all the Washington papers you have given us the best pictures and the best publicity, although I feel that you leave much to desired.

I admire any paper that will print real news without fear or favoritism, and so far I have not seen any statement of the unusual membership gains the W. C. T. U. has made in the last year. We have gained over a thousand new members a week. This shows a little of the reaction to drinking.

Our alcohol education plan—to teach all young people the facts for and against alcohol and leave it to their judgment whether it pays to contract a habit that may kill or cripple their best friends as well as injure their health—is bearing fruit. But you don't mention it. We have the first world convention ever here, with people from all over the world, leaders in all movements for the betterment of the world, yet I do not see any interviews from them. You are missing the opportunity of a lifetime. Do not you think your readers would be interested in hearing from India, Australia, Sweden, Japan, Egypt, South Africa, Burma, France and almost any other country. You know, and I do also, that if it were not the W. C. T. U. there would be interviews from all these people in your papers, but you are losing a lot and your readers are losing more.

At our dinner at the Willard on June 4, with 1,500 reservations, one of the waiters told us it was the first group of women he had ever served as large as ours where none smoked.

Follow along with good publicity for the W. C. T. U. and you will "scoop" the other papers, for we are "going places" in the future.

BELLE CUTLER PARKER,
President, Columbia Union, W. C. T. U.
Washington, June 5.

Editor's Note—The Post has carried several interviews with leading figures at the W. C. T. U. convention, among them was one with Mrs. Ida Wise Smith, president of the W. C. T. U., printed on May 27. The headline read "W. C. T. U. World Parley Here Reports 1,000 Signers Weekly," the story quoting Mrs. Smith as saying 52,970 members had joined during the past year—or 1,000 weekly. Other interviews were with Miss Emily McCoy, delegate from Pitcairns Island, published June 6, with Dr. Ella Boole, international president, published June 1, and with Mrs. D. Leigh Colvin, national vice president, published June 5. The interview with Miss McCoy pointed to the island's previous experiences with alcohol, and reported its population was consequently strong for temperance. The interview with Mrs. Colvin gave additional membership figures, pointing out that 26,420 members had joined last year in the United States alone.

A Veteran's View.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: When the sit-downers were in the plants and the corporations talked of denying them food, the union leaders called on high heaven to witness this barbarous and inhuman proposal and on the authorities to prevent the corporation from carrying it out, which they did.

Now, the shoe is on the other foot, and even worse. There is a strike against certain steel companies. Some of their men do not want to strike and are remaining, legally, in the plants. But what does the union say now? Why, "strike or starve," of course. And does the Government, State or national, do anything to see that these men receive food? Not that anyone could notice—they helped to prevent it. And did you ever hear of La Follette and his so-called civil liberties committee summoning the labor organizers responsible for arming the "peaceful" pickets with clubs, iron bars and other weapons? Yet these pickets hold up the mails, bolt trains, blockade private property and do anything, no matter how unlawful, to enforce the "strike or starve" edict.

Here's one American war veteran who is beginning to think that maybe Canada is not such a bad place in which to live after all.

FRED J. CARTER.
Washington, June 6.

Anti-Lynch Bill.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Another innocent colored man lynched in Alabama! How long must this gross denial of justice go on? What has become of the Gavagan antilynch bill in Congress?

In all the log-rolling and general paralysis of important legislation, the New Deal seems to have lost sight of simple and fundamental civil liberties. This Administration, which was supposed to be a liberal one, has turned out to be an old ladies' sewing circle (with apologies to kindly old ladies who at least have humanitarian impulses).

Why the President and Administration leaders do not get behind an effective bill to prevent periodic outbreaks of savagery and sadism against innocent members of a certain race is beyond my comprehension. The impulse in certain sections of the country is to consider an accusation as a conviction.

Chief Justice John C. Anderson, of Montgomery, Ala., ruled wisely in the case of the Negro, Wesley Johnson, taken from the Henry County Jail February 1 by a mob and hanged while the sheriff apparently stood idly by, that "the sheriff is just as responsible to protect an innocent man as he is a guilty one." From this, it is hard to follow the mental processes of some officers sworn to uphold the law.

The Gavagan bill would prevent lynchings of innocent as well as guilty persons by making a healthy fine on any community that sees fit to engage in that brutal "outdoor sport," as many of the morons regard the taking of human life. Indeed, it is high time that all persons who believe in justice should write their Congressmen and urge prompt adoption of the Gavagan bill before adjournment.

Question Of Vacationing.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It would be interesting to know what would be the reaction of President Roosevelt should the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court criticize and condemn him for being absent from the White House 42 per cent of the time since he has been in office.

By the way, the justices of the Supreme Court pay the costs of their vacations, while the taxpayers put up the expenses of those of Mr. Roosevelt.

SPECTATOR.
Washington, June 6.

Benning Abattoir.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: There is something mysterious about the Benning abattoir bill which, before Mrs. Mary Norton had it sent back for the District Commissioners to rewrite, would restrict the sale of meat products to a distance of 5 miles. If meat from Maryland and Virginia cattle, killed in a modern abattoir, approved by the Department of Agriculture, inspected by a Government inspector, sold cheaper than meat shipped in, is good for people living within 5 miles from the abattoir, why would not the people living more than 5 miles away enjoy the saving?

The new bill, sent back to the House District Committee for hearing June 21 and 22, limits the sale of products to a reasonable distance. It doesn't seem to be health, but competition that is a factor.

The Commissioners seem to have a new interest in health. We have been trying to get the Eastern Branch dredged for years. There are five sewers from Prince Georges County that empty into it.

Although a slaughterhouse has existed in Benning since 1877, the children are as healthy as any in Washington; the modern abattoir will give work to 500 men and women, and is indorsed by the Benning Citizens Association and the Central Labor Union of Washington.

JOHN RIGGLES.
Seabrook, Md., June 6.

On Love.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Answering Lois Christensen's inquiry in your June 6 issue as to the authorship of a certain passage on love. The author is Dr. Henry Van Dyke, in "Little Rivers: A Handful of Heather.' I give the quotation as follows:

"Love is not getting, but giving; not a wild dream of pleasure and a madness of desire—oh, no, love is not that—it is goodness, and honor, and peace and pure living."

As an esthetic or spiritual definition the above is excellent. By way of contrast, may I be permitted to give another definition by Thomas Watson (1582):

Love is a sour delight, a sugar'd grief,
A living death, an ever-dying life;
A breach of Reason's law, a secret thief,
A sea of tears, an everlasting strife;
A bait for fools, a scourge of noble wits,
A deadly wound, a shot which never hits.

Bertrand Russell, in his book, "The Conquest of Happiness," page 180, says:

"Many people when they fall in love look for a little haven of refuge from the world, where they can be sure of being admired when they are not admirable, and praised when they are not praiseworthy."

L. G. HIGGINS.

The Post Impressionist

"HOME, Sweet Home," a well-known ballad, earns the right of mention at this time. June 9 marks the 146th birth anniversary of its author—John Howard Payne. With the lapse of time the song has lost none of its beauty of emotional appeal. The words are familiar to nearly every individual no matter what may be the race, color, or creed. Few persons there are who cannot recall a place similar to that which prompted the poet, actor and playwright to write with such endearing fervor.

The composer of this song lost his mother when he was in his early teens, and after that never again knew what it meant to have a home of his own, though he was able to write what is universally acknowledged as the world's home song.

The direct ancestors of John Howard Payne were among the earliest settlers at Eastham, Mass., the name appearing as far back as 1622. William Payne, the poet's father, was a tutor in several wealthy Boston families. John Howard was the sixth of nine children. While he was still young, the family moved to picturesque Easthampton, Long Island. It was of this home he sang while a Paris resident, although he had not set foot there since boyhood. This old home had atmosphere and breathed such a spirit of home that it made a lasting impression on the mind of the boy. In 1927, town authorities purchased it to perpetuate his memory.

Early in his career John proved to be an apt pupil in elocution, under the tutorship of his father, and this fired an enthusiasm to become an actor. His family being opposed, he was placed as a clerk in a New York counting house at 13 years of age. John was undaunted. He spent all the money he could spare on the theater. He became acquainted with Peter Irving, and his brother, Washington, then 23, while Payne was a precocious boy of 15. His desire for the stage cost him a great price—the price of home. He secured an engagement at Drury Lane, London, June 4, 1813. He made a success that led to other engagements and other successes. Because of the imminence of war between the United States and England, while America bound, he was jailed for two weeks, during which period he translated and readapted two French plays. "Clari, the Maid of Milan," contained the song which was to make him famous.

This song, "Home, Sweet Home," became popular one May night in 1823, and has since re-echoed in millions of hearts throughout the world, the greatest singers, even Jenny Lind and Patti, have sung it on both sides of the ocean and brought tears to the eyes of the most sophisticated audiences.

His career was brilliant, but too often fitful and unremunerative. Even in affairs of the heart he experienced disappointment. When later on his return to London from Paris, it is said he met and fell in love with Mary Wollstonecraft Shelley. While the charming widow of the famous poet Shelley played with his affections, she was really interested in his friend, Washington Irving, who was a more desirable catch. Payne finally realized the situation and stood aside, but there is nothing to indicate that Washington Irving ever "fell for" the lady.

Payne was appointed United States consul at Tunis, 1842, and was reappointed in 1851. He died while in office, April 9, 1852, at the age of 61, with no friend or relative at his bedside. Fortunately, he was not alone, for two Sisters of Charity, and his Moorish man servant—kind friends, let us hope—were in attendance upon him. Though he is spoken of as a homeless wanderer and exile, he was by no means the penniless vagabond of the popular imagination.

For many years the body of the author of "Home, Sweet Home" rested in St. George's Cemetery at Tunis, but 30 years later W. W. Corcoran, a District pioneer, who during his boyhood had seen Payne act, arranged to have the poet's remains brought to Washington so that they might rest in his native land. The interment was in Oak Hill Cemetery, Georgetown, June 9, 1883, and was marked with official honors. The President of the United States, his Cabinet, and a military escort formed a portion of the funeral cortege—a sharp contrast to the poet's sad life and somewhat lonely death, but at least they were bringing him home.

There is a commemorative monument in the cemetery, surmounted by a bust of the song poet, marking the burial plot. It stands apart, alone, midway between the cemetery lodge and the chapel, as if to symbolize, in a way, the loneliness, apartness which overshadowed his life.

Nearby is a grounded tablet bearing these words: "In memory of Col. John Howard Payne, twice consul of the United States of America for the City and Kingdom of Tunis, this stone is here placed by a grateful country. He died at the American Consulate in this city (Tunis) after a tedious illness, April 1, 1852." He was born at the City of Boston, State of Massachusetts, June 9, 1791. His fame as a poet and dramatist is well known, wherever the English language is spoken through his celebrated ballad, Home, Sweet Home, and his popular tragedy of Brutus, etc., and other similar productions."

Within a stone's throw is a monument and the last resting place of the remains of Bishop William Pickney, an ecclesiastic of that period. He officiated at the American funeral of Payne.

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler

WELL, FOR GOSSAKES, Gussie, will you listen who is beefing about evasion and avoidance of the income tax? If it isn't our old friend, Mr. Roosevelt, who has been getting his civilized society at a cut rate ever since 1929, and at a time when people in much lower brackets are paying not only the full rate but something extra on account of the panic and the necessities of deserving Democrats and all.

Mr. Roosevelt was Governor of New York at $25,000 a year from 1929 to 1933. In addition to this pay the Governor of New York gets a house, and in addition to the house he gets his civilization absolutely free, if he wants it, or could in Mr. Roosevelt's time as Governor, and up until a week or so ago there was a political superstition that the Governor, the Lieutenant Governor and all the high-priced judges in the State should be exempt from the State income tax as well as the Federal.

• • • •

THE STATE TAX is small by comparison, and was even smaller in Mr. Roosevelt's time, but he didn't know he was supposed to be exempt from the State's share of the price of civilized society, so he paid his dues.

However, his $25,000 a year was exempt from the heavy Federal tax and no kidding, while other people earning much less and paying their own house rent had to look Mr. Whiskers dead in the eye and drop a little something on the drum to pay for their civilization.

Just lately the New York Legislature rescinded the State exemption of the Governor and the high-priced judges and all who were getting their civilization through the pass-gate. But they still do not have to pay any Federal income tax, although there are literally thousands of patriots in the city and State drawing from $3,000 to $28,000 a year.

You ought to see the list of political patriots on the pay-books of New York City who draw $6,000 and $9,000 a year exempt from the big Federal tax, although subject to the comparatively small State tax.

As President, Mr. Roosevelt now gets $75,000 a year and free use of a big, furnished house with large gardens, lovely view and plenty of closet room. He also gets $25,000 a year for his travel expenses, and whenever he wants to go out and catch a fish by the upper lip or cruise to Honolulu, he just telephones some Admiral to gas up a cruiser and bring it around to the dock. There is his incorporated yacht, free, unless, possibly, he slips a little folded money under his plate to pay his mess bill.

He also gets plenty of expensive cars and chauffeurs for himself and guests, personal and official. I will bet something that if you got $75,000 a year and a house from some private employer the Treasury would give you a terrible wrestle over the proposition that your personal use of the house should be reckoned as income on a rental basis and clip you for a tax on the same.

• • • •

YOUR PERSONAL and social use of the cars and chauffeurs would be computed and taxed, too. They would also make you prove that you spent every penny of your $25,000 travel allowance on legitimate, official travel and not on trips to your country home or your vacation resort, and tax as income every dollar which was not spent in calling on the trade strictly in the line of business.

And, if you got fresh, they might rule that your employer was paying you too much and make him reduce your pay. You didn't know they could do that, did you? Well, brother, they can and they have done it. You better be careful how you talk.

Mr. Roosevelt pays his Federal share of the cost of civilized society, but he is on the complimentary list in New York State, of which he is a resident enjoying rather special service from the local civilization on his visits home.

They put State troopers around his country home and, for a long time, anyway, they kept city cops detailed in the block where his mother lives, and that costs money you may be sure.

• • • •

I SEEM to personalize the issue, but that is only because Mr. Roosevelt poked the finger of scorn at people who take advantage of their rights under the law, but overlooking that enormous class of very well paid cut-rate passengers on the ship of state of which he is a conspicuous member.

True, he complied with the law, but it is only a technicality with only a faint color of legality which gives him certain exemptions, and he was complaining of the immorality of other people who take advantage of technicalities, which appear to have the color of legality, wasn't he?

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

The Union Movie Star.

("Union Movement Spreads in Hollywood." Headline.)

Her lips they may be clammy,
Her manner cold and hard,
Her beauty rather hammy,
But she's a union card!

Her glamour may be missing,
Her teeth quite unlike pearl,
She isn't much on kissing,
But she's a union girl!

As debutante they cast her—
She would play Juliet;
I wouldn't put it past her—
For she's the union pet.

Her heart is cold as Greenland,
She takes no beauty cup,
But she's the toast of screenland—
Her dues are all paid up!

You hear her body creaking
In love scenes cold or hot;
What if her voice is squeaking?
She's on a union lot!

The movie fans applaud her—
Her hair is union done;
The fans they cheer and laud her
Throughout a union run.

There is a union label
In every loving clinch,
From Cagney to Clark Gable—
She's union . . . every inch!

I cheer as I've a mind to,
And to her doff my hat;
For romance I'm inclined to
When organized like that.

Equality.

There ought to be nine cheers and a tiger for the New York State Legislature which, believe it or not, passed a bill requiring legislators, judges and other State office holders to pay an income tax like anybody else.

The Internal Revenue Bureau is claiming $130,311 due from a famous violinist for back income taxes. This supports the President's claim that there is too much fiddling with the income taxes.

"The ordinary salaried man and the small merchant does not resort to these or similar (legal) devices to escape taxes."—Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau. As the corner merchant in our block remarked last night, "What the hell do I know about the Bahamas?" This is the first I heard of the idea."

The curious thing about Washington philosophy is the contention that there is anything more moral about a small merchant than a merchant. The President and Mr. Morgenthau know better. In fact, if you want to see a perfect study in loop-hole hunting you should watch a small merchant after he has become a big merchant.

German Militarism

Bombing Of Almeria Recalls Frequent Statements Of Nazi Leaders On Conduct Of War Today; Revolt Against Brutality Prophesied.

By S. Miles Bouton.
Special Correspondence of The Post.

A GERMAN warship is bombed by Spanish aviators, and a score or more of her crew are killed. Thereupon German ships bombard a Spanish coast town at early dawn, killing women and children and destroying the offices of the International Red Cross and a number of other buildings.

Civilized people everywhere regard this act of the German navy as wanton slaughter. Everywhere outside Germany and Italy indignant protests have been raised. They will not be understood by the German government, which says, in an utterly matter-of-course statement, that "Almeria was destroyed in revenge. The incident is now closed."

The non-Fascist world, that is, the civilized world of the twentieth century, is taking an unconscionably long time to realize that the German government does not belong to that century. Its spokesmen openly preach the ancient doctrine of blood revenge, that is, the vendetta, and the glories of war. And "the militarist philosophy and its spectacular demonstrations are signs of arrested development," declared Sir Herbert Samuel, speaking to the British Institute of Philosophy on November 17, 1936.

Atrocities Indicate Return To Barbarism.

REALIZATION of the fact that Nazi Germany has reverted to barbarism cannot mollify indignation at such atrocities as the bombarding of an open city and the slaughter of its inhabitants, old and young, male and female, but it should prevent anyone from being astonished. That such acts are a part of the Nazi philosophy is demonstrated by hundreds of proofs. In what is quoted hereafter along this line it is to be remembered that in the totalitarian state, with its absolute control of both the written and the spoken word, the government bears complete responsibility for all that is printed or said.

The April number of the magazine, Nationalsozialistische Maedchenerziehung, devoted to the education of girls, contains this:

"The law of blood revenge (Blutrache) is an unwritten law dominating all German life. Blood revenge, revenge for kindred bloodshed, revenge for violated kindred blood, for violated woman's honor."

Hence Almeria. "Kindred" (Sippe) means in Nazi doctrine all pure-blood members of the Germanic race. Thus the murder of a Germanic "Aryan" or "Nordic" calls for blood revenge and the Almeria slaughter, and "the incident is now closed" for Herr Hitler and his followers.

British Journalists Agree On Guernica Bombs.

BRITISH journalists in Guernica, which was bombed and in the main razed by airplanes in April, agreed in reporting that German bombers had caused the destruction, with its slaughter of noncombatants, women and children. The German government denied it, but outside the two Fascist countries there will be few who will not take the word of British journalists against any official Nazi statement. Apart from that, the act was precisely in line with the Hitlerite conception of war. K. L. Oertzen, a Nazi military expert, writes on page 183 of his book, "Basic Principles of Military Policy," concerning bombing attacks on open cities:

"If the cities disappeared in smoke and flames, if women and children gasped out their lives in swaths of poison gases, if inhabitants of cities far from the front fell as victims of shells from airplanes on the places of labor and industry, there could be no thought of conducting the war further."

Let no one believe that this is a fanciful picture of something not to be expected. Listen to Gen. Erich Ludendorff, with whom Hitler a few months ago made peace and who now occupies a high place in Nazi councils. In his book, "The Total War," the general declares that hostilities must be begun without a declaration of war. A few hours after the decision to fight is reached, large detachments of airplanes, cavalry, motorized units—that part of the army designated to take the field first—and light naval divisions must move. The second day must bring the other army formations, the rest of the air and naval forces, and the mobilizing of the reserves must be completed by the fifth day.

Opposing Clausewitz's theories, which he declares antiquated, Ludendorff declares that "the coming war" must have as its objective not merely the destruction of the enemy army, but simultaneously the devastation of the whole enemy country and the destruction of the enemy people.

Hitler's Militarism Puts Kaiser's In Pale.

IT IS DIFFICULT almost to the point of impossibility to make Americans comprehend the real nature of that Prussian militarism which has been so intensified under Hitler that it makes the last Kaiser look like a Caspar Milquetoast by comparison. There was astonishment a year ago when Soviet Russia announced that her standing army numbered 1,300,000 men. Frederick William I, father of Frederick the Great, had in time of peace almost 4 per cent of the total Prussian population with the colors. The same percentage would give Russia an army of some 7,000,000 men. Militarism is a state of mind—a state of "arrested development," to quote Sir Herbert Samuel again.

Not only Ludendorff, but all men in high place in Germany today envisage war as the general envisages it. Gen. Grimme, artillery, retired, writes in December, 1936, an article on "The Fronts in the Coming War." He calculates that Germany must employ 27,870,000 persons on the fronts and at home. Children under 10, the aged and cripples together make up some 31,800,000 of the population. Hence:

"The coming war demands the extensive employment of women for the defense of the country. . . .

"Promise peace that thou mayest begin war with advantage," wrote Fichte in 1808, and he has found loyal disciples in the Third Reich. Here is Col. Heirl, Reich labor leader and intimate friend of Hitler's:

"There are two kinds of pacifism—the genuine pacifism, which arises from a weakly, sickly temperament or from blindness, but is honestly meant, and a pretended (geheuchelter) pacifism. This second kind of pacifism is a political battle instrument, and serves precisely to prepare for war. By lulling the opponent to sleep with peaceful phrases, it tries to induce him to neglect his armaments."

Hitler's frequent protests of his love and desire for peace should deceive no one who knows Prussian history and the Nazis' doctrines and principles. It is not generally known that Hitler, speaking to a congress of German girls in Munich in 1936, after declaring that if he desired to attack an opponent he would not negotiate for months in advance, said:

"As I have always acted, I would fall on the opponent like a flash of lightning in the night."

German Colonials Knew Sting Of Prussian Whip.

PRUSSIAN militarism, now so intensified, was a savage brand. In 1904 the Hereros arose in German Southwest Africa. Thousands were killed in unequal battle, and more than 20,000 men, women and children were driven into the Omahaka desert, where they died of thirst. In the following year the Matumbis arose in German East Africa. The government admitted that 28,000 were killed in battle. Prof. Schillings, a colonial authority, estimated that over 150,000 more starved to death in the bush after their villages had been burned and their crops destroyed.

It is reported from Berlin that when the news came of the bombarding of Almeria, anxious women gathered and asked tearfully whether they had borne sons for another war. That the German people as a whole shudder at the prospect of another conflict is shown by many happenings. Illegal "short reports for German seamen" circulate regularly in the German harbors. They call on all seamen to denounce and sabotage deliveries of munitions of war for the Spanish rebels.

The German people want no war. As yet they have no way of making their desires known, but the revolt against Nazism gives signs of gaining ground in Germany.

Too Much Gold

By Barnet Nover

The New Yellow Peril.

THERE WAS A TIME, not so long ago, when the air was thick with alarm concerning an alleged gold shortage. Not enough gold was being produced, said the pundits, to take care of the expanding monetary and industrial needs of the world. And evil as this situation already was, it was made worse by the fact that the monetary medium was badly distributed, with the United States in possession of an excessively large share of the total.

Such talk of a shortage has died down. The world's gold production has gone up by leaps and bounds during the last few years. Since 1929 it has risen from 19,586,000 fine ounces to around 35,000,000 ounces, with an even larger total likely this year. In this spectacular increase all of the principal gold-producing areas—South Africa, Russia, Canada, the United States, Australia—have participated. But Russia has led the rest.

From 1,065,000 ounces in 1929 the production of gold in the Soviet Union has increased, according to estimates made at London, to 7,350,000 ounces last year, with the likelihood that this year 10,000,000 ounces of Russian gold may be produced. At this rate it will not be long before the Soviet Union shall have supplanted South Africa as the leading gold producer in the world.

• • • •

DESPITE THIS vast increase in the world's gold output and supply, maldistribution persists. Between them the central banks of the United States, France and Great Britain hold about four-fifths of the monetary gold stocks of the world. The American share alone is not much short of 60 per cent, while in terms of dollars (in part, of course, attributable to devaluation) our holdings have risen from around $5,000,000,000 at the high point before the depression to over $12,000,000,000 now. And gold continues to pour into the United States.

In the old mercantilist days this would have been regarded as an unmixed good. Actually, Treasury officials, economists and others who have been studying the situation regard it as an unmitigated evil.

The flood of gold into the United States has been far in excess of our needs. It has made possible a credit expansion on a vast scale, too vast for comfort.

By the middle of last year, for instance, the Federal Reserve banks had in their keeping reserves totaling $3,000,000,000 in excess of the legal minimum. These excess reserves made possible a credit structure of no less than $30,000,000,000. Even a portion of this sum pumped into the economic system would mean the creation of a dangerous and probably uncontrollable boom and thus pave the way for another fearful crash.

• • • •

TO OFFSET such an unwanted development, therefore, the Federal Reserve Board proceeded to increase the reserve requirements of its member banks, in that way cutting down potential credit expansion. Excess reserves are now down to around $1,000,000,000, which is regarded as of manageable proportions.

For its part, the Treasury decided to sterilize all new imports of gold as well as newly mined American gold not intended for industrial use. In that way, it was believed, the expansion of the gold reserve would not lead to credit expansion.

The price for the purchase of this unneeded gold was that fixed in January, 1934—$35 an ounce. Apparently that price has been high enough to encourage gold mining companies everywhere to operate at a boom level. Mines shut down for years have been reopened. New deposits of the yellow metal have also been sought. No wonder South Africa has been reveling in prosperity, as have all other gold mining areas. And during the six months since the "sterilization" plan went into operation the Treasury has been forced to spend $750,000,000 in carrying it out.

• • • •

AS A TEMPORARY measure, to prevent runaway credit inflation, the Treasury's action has had much to justify it. As a permanent policy, however, its wisdom is clearly open to question. For the Treasury can hardly afford to borrow endless sums with which to buy useless gold.

It was not believed, however, that the policy would be more than temporary. Sooner or later, the belief has been and still is, the need of "sterilizing" gold imports would end as world trade revived, as confidence was restored in recently devalued currencies, as international monetary stabilization became a fact. Then the yellow tide flowing across the Atlantic to the United States would begin to reverse itself and the Treasury would be able to wash its hands of a policy wished upon it by circumstances beyond its or America's control.

Unfortunately that happy day has not yet dawned. The gold flood continues. In the past people had hoarded gold in European countries because they feared the financial stability of their country's exchange medium was in danger. It has been estimated that at least a billion dollars of the yellow metal went into hiding in Europe or sought refuge in England or the United States.

Some of these funds were repatriated after the gold bloc gave up the fight. This is seen in the fact that the monetary gold reserve of the Bank of the Netherlands, for instance, has increased. But, at the same time, a good deal of the hoarded gold has continued to pour into this country.

BACK OF THIS recent de-hoarding process is largely the belief that the United States may decide the present $35 price for gold is too high and may therefore lower it. In anticipation of this development, the gold hoarders have begun to sell their holdings.

Together with the sales of gold by producers of the metal, this has resulted in large gold offerings in London. Last week, for instance, more than $65,000,000 was offered. The British government, through its equalization fund, is reported to have bought $55,000,000 worth. But the British are reluctant to continue. The price of gold in London has begun to sag; since the price of gold here remains fixed at $35 the greater this sag the greater the flood of gold here and the larger the sum which the Treasury will have to spend.

As it happens, the United States Government officials have on more than one occasion taken the trouble to deny rumors of any change in the gold price. But these denials have not set at rest the fears of a change in the gold purchase policy of the United States. There was a time when many felt that gold was better than dollars. Now the feeling seems to be that dollars are better than gold. A solution of the present gold crisis may, sooner or later, be found. But in the meantime Uncle Sam is suffering from the plague of Midas.

Volumes of Verse

By William Lyon Phelps

The poets, like the poor, are always with us. Every day several new volumes of verse are published. I am myself glad of this, for it is just as necessary for a poet to see his writing in print as it is for a bird to sing. It is the only natural outlet of self-expression.

One of the most distinguished of living American poets, Archibald MacLeish, has just published "The Fall of the City," a verse play for radio. This is striking and original in thought and expression, and I counsel readers to study attentively his foreword, which discusses the question of plays on the radio as distinguished from plays on the stage. They open a wide field for verse-drama, and are better adapted for the purpose than the legitimate stage.

• • • •

Evelyn Bigelow Clark (Mrs. J. Francis A. Clark) daughter of Poultney Bigelow and granddaughter of John Bigelow, proves herself a worthy member of that distinguished family by a slender volume of verse, called simply but accurately "Poems." Any one who reads either "Nocturne" or "Death in Life" will agree with me that Evelyn Bigelow Clark is a true poet. And her poem "Autumn Dream," also in this volume, has been set to exquisite music by Leonard M. Thomas.

A book of verses, written in a different style and manner is also called simply "Poems." The author is Ross Edwards Pierce, and I have read every word of the little volume with interest and admiration. This too is genuine poetry, and is so unlike the other two books as to illustrate once more how wide is the range in poetic expression. The field is the world. The very first poem in this volume bears that title, "The World."

Lewis Indorses Wage Bill, Hits Fixing of Pay

results he said would follow its enactment—an increase in mass purchasing power, a reduction of unemployment, an increase in mass leisure and the opportunity thus to be afforded to many workers to "achieve industrial emancipation" through collective bargaining.

Wants 40-Cent Minimum.

His own recommendation was that 40 cents be set as the minimum hourly wage, and that the maximum work week be set at 35 hours, with the Labor Standards Board empowered to reduce this to 30 if possible or to advance it to 40 hours if necessary.

He attacked "wage differentials based on geography." The jut-browed chieftain of the C. I. O., rolling his words in a low boom over the two long oak committee tables, said emphatically:

"This is no more than a plea for continuance of low living standards in the Southern States. Such a differential has absolutely no justification. The proposal is based on an alleged difference in living costs between the North and the South. * * * The prices of items in a family budget are just as large in the South as in the North."

Lewis added the Southern worker's "food may cost him less, but that is because he gets less milk, less fresh vegetables and fruit, less fresh meat. His housing may cost less, but that is because he gets inferior housing."

The bill as a whole, Lewis said, "marks the beginning of an industrial bill of rights for workers, as against industry. The bill adds four more safeguards to employes to the bill of rights established by the Wagner labor relations act.

"It is a rather sad commentary on American wage rates to say that no matter how low a minimum may be established, it will benefit great numbers of workers."

He made a sharp differentiation between minimum wages and the minimum income on which an American worker can maintain himself and his family "at a level of healthy and decent living."

Part of "Larger Program."

In closing his statement, Lewis aroused the closest attention of the committee when he outlined his view that the present bill was but "one item in a much larger program which is being developed in this country, partly through legislation, partly through a developing social consciousness and partly through the activities of organized labor.

"* * * Labor is convinced that it must have both political and economic organization and power."

During the lengthy questioning by committee members that followed Lewis' presentation, one sharp clash occurred when Senator Rush Holt (Democrat), West Virginia, once sponsored by Lewis and now violently opposed as a reactionary by the C. I. O., questioned the heavy-jawed labor leader insistently. Lewis answered patiently for some time, shifting quietly in his seat as Holt's voice seemed sarcastic. Holt at last asked, in relation to Federal wage control, "What then becomes of your industrial democracy?"

"Not with you," said Holt.

"You couldn't be humorous with me," answered Lewis.

"I realize that," said Holt.

Chairman Hugo Black, of Alabama, head of the Senate Labor Committee, interjected: "Perhaps we'd better leave the asides out of this record."

Holt protested: "As far as I am concerned, Mr. Lewis isn't going to bulldoze this committee, as he has bulldozed other public officials."

"Resents" Holt's Language.

Lewis said: "Frankly, I don't like the Senator's language. I resent it. If he wishes to address me in that manner privately, that's different, but I don't want it in this record."

Representative Robert Ramspeck (Democrat), Georgia, while expressing himself as favoring Lewis' position, asked the burly labor leader to reconsider his opposition to a wage differential in the South.

Hormel, head of a business employing 3,980 employes, revealed his "stabilization plan," in which all employes, regardless of the length of their work-week, are paid a fixed weekly wage 52 weeks a year.

Gross Sales Levy Opposed by D. C. Handlers of Food

Opposition to the District tax program as recommended by the Kennedy sub-committee, was expressed yesterday by food handlers on the Washington wholesale markets.

The food handlers, as represented on both Water street and Northeast wholesale markets, emphatically insisted that a gross sales tax of three-fifths of 1 per cent will prove prohibitive in the food field and inevitably would be pyramided in wholesale and retail distribution until, in some instances it might reach 10 per cent.

Meeting in the offices of N. J. Ward & Co., 1306-8 Fifth street northeast, the representatives voted to make a final plea to the District committees of the House and the Senate, to strike from the tax program the proposed gross sales tax and substitute a specific business privilege.

The protest meeting was sponsored by the Washington branch of the National League of Wholesale Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Distributors. Edward Widmayer, of Robt. L. Anderson Co., presided. Robert D. Marshall, comptroller of the Terminal Refrigerating & Warehousing Corporation, said a tax of three-fifths of 1 per cent on gross sales would, in some instances, wipe out net profits.

Sixty Planes in Attack.

Sixty planes bombed and machine-gunned the Basque trenches. Artillery reduced them to wreckage before 30 tanks pounded up the slopes followed by rebel troops.

The Basques retreated toward Lemona and reformed their lines in about the same position as they held before Mola was killed. Three counter-attacks failed. Insurgent reports said the Basques withdrew most of their forces. The loyalist government, however, claimed the battle still was in progress.

Stock Deal Losses Revealed to SEC

Big business men and large financial institutions lost $12,000,000 on a $21,324,000 stock deal in 1929 and 1930, the Securities Commission heard yesterday.

Pursuing its investigation of investment trusts, the commission received testimony from Waddill Catchings, former partner of Goldman Sachs Co., and former president of Goldman Sachs Trading Corporation, an investment trust.

David Schenker, commission counsel, declared participants in a group trading account formed by Goldman Sachs Co. and others in September, 1929, to trade in stock of the Goldman Sachs Trading Corporation, had lost $12,000,000 of the $21,324,000 they invested.

He said participants included Walter P. Chrysler, C. M. Chester, president of the General Foods Corporation, and E. F. Hutton, chairman of the General Foods Corporation; the Manufacturers Trust Co., the Central Union Trust Co., the Central Hanover Bank & Trust Co., and two affiliates of the Goldman Sachs Trading Corporation.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Young Woman Who Wears Size 40 Clothing Bewails Scarcity of Suitable Models From Which to Choose.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: It doesn't seem possible that I should be the largest young woman in a city the size of Washington. And yet I am led to believe this must be case, when I hop in the dress departments of Washington's leading stores. I am tall, of a large frame, well-proportioned and wear a size 40. What few dresses one finds stocked in that size are invariably styled for women of 40 years or over—mostly over.

• • • •

In a city where there are so many social functions, presumably calling for a variety of smartly styled dresses for women of all ages and dimensions, it is hardly to be expected that one would encounter such difficulties. And when one stops to consider that a large majority of Washington women are regularly employed, one is utterly astonished to find such a situation. Must one resort to shopping in Baltimore and New York to cope with the clothes problem? Surely it should not be necessary to have one's clothes made. I confess that I have grown tired of wrestling with this clothes question.

• • • •

I have dieted in an attempt to meet the problem half way, but so far haven't been successful in losing much weight. I seem to have inherited a large figure, and shall simply have to clothe it accordingly.

• • • •

On a recent shopping tour I decided to visit some of the smaller dress shops that are springing up all about us. Their window displays are lovely; definitely encouraging to the woman who yearns for chic. At one such shop I was told, "We discontinued all sizes over 20 with the arrival of the spring season." At another shop I was given a choice between two dresses, both navy blue and neither particularly distinctive in design. Must I, because I am size 40, array myself in somber hues under a withering summer sun? I suppose I should be thankful to find any dress in my size, but I cannot bring myself to that point of view.

• • • •

It used to be the custom in some countries to drown baby girls. We let them live but when they grow up and are so unfortunate as to have to wear size 40, they feel like drowning themselves. I would be interested in hearing from those who have this problem confronting them; and from any who may have solved it.

MISS FIT.

The Thing to Do.

DEAR MISS FIT: Why don't you hold consultations with some of the department store stylists in Washington? You can get the names of these experts and the stores which employ them from Miss Ethel Ehlen, The Post's fashion editor. They can tell you if distinctive, youthfully styled clothes are made for young women who must wear size 40's. And if such clothes are made, they will tell you where to find them—in Washington or out of Washington. I have no doubt any one of them would be willing to take you under her wing as a sort of problem child and, if necessary, comb the wholesale markets for the things you want and need for flattery, chic and comfort.

• • • •

By approaching your problem in an organized way—namely, by taking it to one whose business it is to see that every style-conscious woman is advantageously appareled—you might be conferring an immeasurable benefit on all of Washington's larger young women who reluctantly dress more like their mothers than their own youthful selves. Who knows? Your wail of distress—poured into the right pair of listening ears—might prompt the introduction into the Washington shopping scene of a department which caters exclusively to the imposingly proportioned young. At the very least, you can be assured of expert, sympathetic and indefatigable assistance in stocking your own wardrobe.

• • • •

I am convinced every woman with a clothes problem should take it to a stylist whom she finds temperamentally congenial. The latter has infinitely more powers of persuasion with buyers and salespersons than a discouraged, perspiring, special-case customer, and she is trained to summon—either from stock on hand or from the wholesale merchandise mart— the types of commodities which make a permanently satisfied, perennially faithful customer.

M. H.

Tomorrow's Problem.

What in the world's wrong with the boys of today? They seem to believe ultimate intimacy in courtship is necessary for discovering the proper mate, says 18-year-old girl. Her question will be considered here tomorrow.

• • • •

Girl's Love Problem.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: About a year ago I met a very nice young man and immediately we were much attracted to each other. Thereafter we became very good friends and after going with him for about a month I fell deeply in love with him. He confessed his love for me. But my parents object to him, saying he is socially beneath our family. They won't consent to my seeing him and I don't care to go with anyone else. I am convinced he is the one man for me and he in turn feels the same—as he has plainly shown.

• • • •

What should I do? Should I leave home in order to keep our love? We have often talked of marriage, but this is absolutely impossible just now. Should I give him up in order to please my parents? Is my duty to myself or to them? Your advice will be greatly appreciated.

NEEDFUL.

• • • •

DEAR NEEDFUL: If you are past 20, socially resourceful, responsible minded and capable of earning your own living, you would be justified in leaving home if your parents maliciously interfere with your friendships on purely snobbish grounds. But you have written such an unfinished, little-girl sort of letter that I would place your age at 18 or so. You may be older in years, but certainly not in well-organized mentality. If you are no better prepared to deal with problems than you are to delineate them, I would advise you to stick close to home a while longer.

• • • •

With absolutely nothing to go on in piecing out a picture of yourself, the boy and your parents, how is one to say whether their objection is dictated by sound judgment or empty snobbery. And not knowing if they are justified in their objection to this romance, how is one to say whether or not you should leave home to preserve it? Knowing nothing about the boy—his background, prospects and potentialities—who is to say whether he is worth the sacrifice of family and the social security it represents? Knowing nothing about yourself, how can we judge whether your problem is a mountainous one or only molehillish? If you wish more specific counsel, write again in better organized detail.

M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

Two Outfits for Active or Spectator Sports

An ideal costume for tennis, the beach, bicycling or golf, is shown below, featuring shirt and shorts in one piece and easily adjusted front buttoned skirt which may also serve as a shoulder cape. It is of spun rayon in an uneven surface, having the texture of fine French Challis. Available in a variety of color combinations. The white silk crepe dress at right features the new kilted skirt, polo inset belt, and action sleeves. Suitable for active and spectator sports wear.

Shorts Head Fashion Parade For Summer Sports, Spectators

By Ethel Ehlen.
The Post Fashion Editor.

WHETHER you actively engage in sports or watch from the sidelines, your clothes are an important part of the game. Every type of sports this summer has its own costume and there is enough variety in the mode so there should be no feeling of regimentation. Silks, cottons, woolens and synthetics comprise the fabric picture—the choice depending upon the sport. A number of brand-new materials combining silks and cottons, rayon and cotton and the like, have appeared in delightful textures.

Pleated Shorts Popular.

There seems to be a tug of war between shorts, slacks and culottes, with shorts at the present time the victor. Shorts in the latest interpretations are pleated and of two lengths—short and knee-length. You may select an ensemble consisting of shorts, shirt and wrap-around skirt, or you may assemble your own idea of color theme. Pique, novelty muslins, silk crepe and shantungs are the mediums for the 1937 short ensembles. For tennis stylists suggest shorts as the most comfortable and practical, and with the new styling they are smart as well. New this summer and appealing to conservative players who do not like shorts are the full-pleated skirts. Kilted skirts are much in evidence in the sports and play type of clothes, interpreted in both silk crepes and cottons.

Bicycling, which has become the great American pastime, has created a new interest in culottes. These come in bold, splashy patterns on light or dark backgrounds; old-fashioned prints; imported linen in muted brilliant tones; novelty piques in dark or bright colors; stripes in gypsy coloring. The one-piece culotte takes precedence over the shirt and culotte of other seasons. It is smarter as well as more comfortable. One-piece frocks with zippers in the back and front transform a dress into a culotte, thus making it serve for general wear and bicycling.

Slacks Versus Culottes.

If you sail your own boat or even if you are just a guest passenger, the correct attire this year happens to be slacks and a sweat-shirt, gingham shirt or sweater. You can top the outfit by a jacket of the same material as the slacks—denim linen or a heavy novelty-weave cotton in solid dark colors. Feminine golfers, according to authorities, seem to be deserting the traditional sweater and skirt costume for culottes, or the shirt, short and skirt ensemble—of cotton.

One of the most interesting things of the season is the desire of designers to make one costume serve for both active and spectator sports. For this purpose there are clever sun-back frocks, designed for tennis golf and the like, equipped with a miniature jacket for street and office wear. Dark-ground printed play suits, with shorts and skirts, play the same role in the Summer fashion drama. Practically all of these are made of linens and cottons, although some smart models have appeared in subtle dark tones, such as raspberry rose, dull green, bright navy blue, in silk crepe.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes

IT MAY BE that the sudden surge of humidity here has made the local Pecksniffs more peckish and sniffish than usual. Whatever the cause, we are now undergoing one of our periodical purity waves in the field of public entertainment. Following the closing of our burlesque shows, the moral gendarmes are now loose among our justly famous Broadway night clubs, and four of them have been sternly warned to dress their young ladies and restrain their wiggles, or else.

ALICE HUGHES

Frightened out of their wits, most of the sleek gents who operate these deadfalls are either closing them until the purity storm blows over, or are putting mother hubbards on the vixens of the chorus and telling them to play cat's cradle instead of wriggling in the conventional way.

These fits arrive on Broadway every few years. The last was during the brief reign of Acting Mayor McKee, called "Holy Joe" by irreverent local yokels. During a brief term of office he pounced upon several shows he deemed unfit for our consumption, but it soon was forgotten. I am sorry to say that by next fall it will be business as usual, with chorines prancing in a half-pint of beads. In the meantime it will be a mighty safe summer in which to turn loose the menfolks along the Great Blight Way!

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—I suppose a cheery note for the month can be dug out of the fact that there is a terrific boom in wedding bands—the greatest since the late unlamented depression. Russell G. Sheer, president of our State Jewelers Association, tells me that the sale of wedding rings is up at least 15 per cent over last year. In fact, he says, gem venders are often selling two rings to the young folks—one for every day and one fancy one for high feasts. This, it seems to me, is rank ostentation—out of place in a democracy! . . .

• • • •

As you know, Adrian is one of Hollywood's most famous dressmakers. He designs the duds for Garbo, Harlow, Loy and the rest of the star herd on the M-G-M lot. Now Adrian steps to bat with a torrid hint for young ladies in pursuit of a coy male. "If you want him to propose, wear a white evening gown!" is the Adrianian dictum. "A woman always looks more helpless in white than in color, and that helpless air is what makes men propose." Well, maybe so, Ade, old hemstitcher. But I had a bit of luck in a flowered print once. You never know! . . .

The most controversial book I've thumbed in a long time is "Call It Freedom," by Mrs. Marian Sims, of Charlotte, N. C. I won't go into the context, but will merely mention that it is calculated to make blood boil, here and there. Maybe you'd better not take it up until the first cool spell . . .

For the information of both the sentimental and the nicely morbid, a local man has issued a huge scrap-book containing all the press clippings on the romance of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor. It runs to over 1,000 pages, and is calculated either to warm the heart or drive you to bed for a week with the leaping megrims.

One of the finest of our local clothes designers, Muriel King, has just darted off to Hollywood in high glee with a grand assignment in her pocket. She has been picked to design the clothes for Katharine Hepburn, Ginger Rogers and the other girls in the film version of "Stage Door"—in which Margaret Sullavan starred before retiring to await the arrival of an addition to the family. And the beauteous Muriel's clothes will be something to witness!

Easy Ways of Reducing

A simple diet does the trick.

Cutting your calories to 1,200 a day will melt off 2 pounds a week. This does not necessarily mean cutting the amount of food you eat. For if you know your calories, your meals can be as comfortably filling as ever and have all the vitamins and minerals you need to keep complexion fresh, eyes bright, hair glossy and spirits high.

You can see for yourself that an individual carton of orange ice and one of vanilla ice cream have the same bulk. Yet the ice has 100 fewer fattening callories. A lettuce sandwich has 175 fewer calories than a hot dog. Ginger ale is kinder to reducers than malted milk with 384 more calories.

With a set of balanced menus—calories all counted by an expert dietician—your reducing problem is simple. Or if you'd rather work out your own slimming menus, follow a calory chart of common foods.

Send 15c for our booklet, CHANGE YOUR WEIGHT FOR BEAUTY'S SAKE, to The Washington Post Home Institute, 109 West 19th Street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS and the NAME of booklet.

Foot Troubles Can Be Halted By Extra Care

By Carolyn Abbott.

FOOT TROUBLES are among the greatest causes of premature wrinkles and gray hair. Perhaps you don't realize it, but in the course of a day at home or in your office or shop you manage to put almost the same amount of strain on your leg and foot muscles as does a dancer in rehearsing for a musical comedy or making a moving picture.

The average girl has very little enthusiasm for a dancing date after standing on tortured feet all day. When you buy shoes, remember that it pays to get correctly fitted one of good quality, for they retain their shape and do not bulge, wrinkle or crack easily. Many smart women have found that shoes last longer if two pairs are worn alternately. Much of your foot health depends upon the fit and build of your shoes.

Star's Care Rigid.

Even Ginger Rogers, Hollywood dancer, follows a definite routine of foot care. Other women would also benefit by a little extra attention to their feet.

Try a foot bath for quick relief. Fill the basin with tepid water, not hot, as that will cause your feet to swell so that you cannot put your shoes on. Dissolve about a teaspoon of baking soda in it and soak for about 15 minutes. Finish with a dash of cold water and a dusting with talcum powder. If you have a few minutes to spare before dressing, lie down with your feet propped up on pillows. After this routine, you will dance like a sprite until dawn.

Another effective remedy is a massage with creamed rubbing alcohol. After soaking your feet for about five minutes in warm water in which a cup of salt has been dissolved, dry them with a rough towel and then apply the creamed alcohol with a vigorous hand.

Pedicures Valuable.

With the bathing season not so far off, pedicures will pay off in foot beauty for the amount of time necessary to give your feet that finished, smart look. If you cannot afford professional services, do the job yourself once a week. Use an emery board to smooth and trim the nails. Scrub the arches, ankles, heels and then brush each toe individually. After using cuticle oil freely, take an orange stick wrapped in cotton and moistened with peroxide and work gently around the base, sides and under each nail, wiping away the loosened cuticle with the towel. Apply liquid polish and, in order to achieve an illusion of length, cover the entire nail to the tip.

The legs must be white and satiny smooth. Use a depilatory to remove all unsightly hair. Once a week, while in the tub, use a pumice stone, rubbing it over the leg. After a brisk drying, massage gently with a good hand lotion of cream. Use this same lotion every night after your bath and your legs will look just as smooth and lovely as your arms.

Today's HEALTH TALK

By Dr. Logan Clendening.

Good Summer Drink.

MILK IS a good summer drink, either alone or with other articles of food. In the summer time when we need an easily digestible, non-heating diet, we instinctively turn to milk because it possesses these qualities, puts no special burden on the activities of the digestive apparatus, and is a complete and balanced diet, full of energy and all the requisite food elements.

Milk is easily digested by most people. In a review of 1,000 healthy persons recently, it was found that all but 1.7 per cent of young college women, and all but 3.6 per cent of older men and women, could digest it readily.

The ease of digestion of any food depends upon a number of factors, including the composition of the food, the way it is cooked, the influence of other foods in the diet, and, most important of all, the physical and mental condition of the consumer.

Cooking may have an adverse effect on the digestibility of some foods, especially those that are fried in fat, but it seldom ever applies to milk. Cooked milk and pasteurized milk are slightly more digestible than raw milk.

Cold milk leaves the stomach usually in about three and a half hours, while warm milk leaves it about an hour earlier, as do skim milk and buttermilk.

Milk appears to be more digestible when it is a part of a mixed diet. Thus, crackers or bread and milk are more readily digested when eaten together than when either food is consumed separately.

There is a strange set of superstitions about the incompatability between milk and other foods. As a matter of fact, milk may be eaten with fruits, fish and all other dietary articles. The idea that milk and acid fruits, or milk and fish do not go together, is a fallacy that has no scientific basis. There are a few people who have trouble with milk because they are sensitive to it. They may experience headaches and nausea after drinking milk, or they may break out with hives, but these are fairly rare cases, and for the majority of the population it remains a splendid article of food.

Hats for Summer Offer Novel Veils

Hollywood.—Hat designers have a surprise complex. They reached a new high in crowns last fall, a new width in brims this spring and now come summer they've reached a new length in veils and streamers.

Sally Blane drapes a little brimmed panama with a creamy cobwebby veil which crushes to nothing at all when it makes up the band. However, it's long and spreads out to great width when Sally brings the two ends over from the back to rest shawl-like over each shoulder. The soft off-white shade of the hat and veil are particularly lovely with the dusty aquamarine dress with which Sally wears them.

Bright Embroidered Flowers Give Sparkle to Plain Dresses

Pattern 5801.

By Alice Brooks.

SPLASH your plain frocks with gay embroidered flowers and see how they'll make you sparkle! It's fashion's edict—this craze for embroidering flowers on bodice, sleeves and skirt, and an easy one to carry out, too, in these single and running stitch bouquets. Both large and small nosegays offer a double thrill when worked in vivid shades of wool, silk floss or chenille. You've no idea how easily last year's frock can be disguised, this way! In pattern 5801 you will find a transfer pattern of one and one reverse motif 7¾x8¼ inches; one and one reverse motif 5½x8 inches and six motifs 3¼x3¼ inches; color suggestions; illustrations of all stitches used.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to The Washington Post, Household Arts Dept., 250 W. 14th Street, New York, N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your name, address and pattern number.

D. C. Events Are Planned For Belgians

Ambassador's Wife Will Reach U. S. June 17 on Normandie.

Dr. Van Zeeland Coming Here for Conference on June 23.

By Hope Ridings Miller,
The Post Society Editor.

From now until the end of the month—and even longer, perhaps—Belgians are going to be very much in the news.

Back in Washington after an absence of several months, the Belgian Ambassador, Comte Robert van der Straten-Ponthoz, will go to Emmitsburg, Md., tomorrow to receive an honorary degree from Mount St. Mary's College. With the Most Rev. Michael J. Curley, Archbishop of Baltimore, presiding, the envoy will receive his degree at commencement exercises at the same time the Most Rev. James E. Walsh, superior general of the Catholic Foreign Mission Society of America, is also awarded a degree.

When the Normandie noses into New York on Thursday, June 17, Countess van der Straten-Ponthoz, wife of the Ambassador, will be on board. Last winter when she left Washington, she took a flying trip to her home in the Argentine, and then went to Paris and Belgium to spend several weeks.

To Join Van Zeeland.

The Ambassador will meet her in New York, and they will join the Prime Minister, Dr. Paul van Zeeland, whose trip to this country, it is said, has been arranged for the purpose of conferring with President Roosevelt. Anyway, the Ambassador and Countess van der Straten-Ponthoz will accompany the Prime Minister to Princeton, N. J., where the latter will receive an honorary degree. He did post-graduate work in economics at Princeton some years ago.

On Wednesday, June 23, the prime minister will accompany the Ambassador to Washington, and will have his conference with President Roosevelt on the same day. According to the schedule now arranged, he will be entertained on the President's yacht, the Potomac, in the afternoon, and will spend the night at the White House.

During the prime minister's visit in the Capital, there will be a reception at the embassy in his honor, and perhaps also a dinner or luncheon, or both. Count Guy de Baillet Latour, husband of the former Marianna Dunn (daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Clement Dunn, of Washington), will act as one of the prime minister's attaches. Count Latour recently arrived from his home in Brussels.

To Have Full Calendar.

One thing is certain, the prime minister will have a calendar full of appointments and parties during his visit. Recognized as one of the outstanding men of modern Belgium, he has figured prominently in international politics since the day he took the reins of state in hand, and will be one of the most distinguished men to visit Washington this year.

When he became prime minister, Belgium faced a crisis. Its economic structure was tottering dangerously near the brink of destruction. Besieged on all sides with propagandists of great European powers, the "buffer nation" threatened to be torn between the forces of the Fascists, the Socialists and the Liberals.

Working steadily and tirelessly, however, the prime minister has strengthened the coalition between the three factions, and has also fortified the economic prowess of his country until today Belgium can boast that it is the only nation now planning to reduce taxation at the same time it increases its armaments.

In contrast to some of the other outstanding leaders in modern Europe, Dr. van Zeeland is not a blatant, publicity-seeking politician. A recent dispatch from abroad describes him as "a gentleman and a scholar, as well as a stateman of first rank."

He has never been active in party politics. Before he was made prime minister he was director of the Institute of Political Economy at the University of Louvain and vice governor of the National Bank of Belgium. As to other vital statistics, Dr. van Zeeland is 43 years old and slight of build, with blond hair and a sparse mustache. One of the latest reports from his country describe him as "energetic and engaging, forthright of speech and soft of voice." Washington will see.

Lillian Willett Gives Luncheon

Miss Lillian Willett, daughter of Mrs. E. Jean Willett, entertained at a small luncheon yesterday at the Mayflower. The party was in honor of Miss Carmin Blondet, who is visiting her aunt and uncle, Dr. and Mrs. Francis Bloise, at their home in Alexandria en route for Puerto Rico.

Miss Willett's guests included Miss Zazi Aranha, daughter of the Brazilian Ambassador and Senora de Aranha; Miss Rosita Viteri, whose father heads the Ecuadorean Boundary Commission meeting here; Miss Marthena Williams, and Miss Janie Annis Cochran, of Hartford, Conn.

Caravan to Meet.

The Alpha Chapter of the World Caravan Guild will hold a special meeting at the Raleigh Hotel tonight at 8 o'clock. Miss Eve Freeman, national secretary, will be present to discuss plans for the resumption of meetings next fall.

Ethel duPont's Gowns Arrive For Marriage

Dresses From Paris, Worth $14,000, Make Up Trousseau.

Paris gowns, insured for $14,000, part of the trousseau of Miss Ethel duPont, whose marriage to Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., will take place June 30, have been arriving at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene duPont, of Owls Nest road, Greenville, Del.

A staff of seamstresses under the guidance of a modiste is putting the finishing touches to the trousseau under the supervision of Mrs. duPont. Miss duPont has a preference for Parisienne gowns. She wore a model from an exclusive French house when she received the press following the announcement of her engagement.

Mr. Nicholas Ridgely duPont, brother of Miss duPont, whose engagement to Miss Genevieve Livinston Estes, daughter of Mrs. Young Estes, of Jacksonville, Fla., was announced last week-end, is in Jacksonville with his fiancee. He is expected to arrive next Wednesday with Miss Estes to remain until after the wedding.

Wedding presents which have continued to arrive during the past two weeks have remained unopened by Miss duPont, awaiting the arrival of the President's son. Ranging from individual pieces of Spode and Wedgewood to more elaborate gifts, there is a decided preference for antique silver.

Dinner Is Given By 72d Club

The Seventy-Second Club, which is made up of wives of members of the Seventy-second Congress, dined together last evening on the Shoreham Terrace. No special program was planned aside from the regular entertainment on the terrace, which included the dancing of Miss Roberta Jonay who has been staying at the White House during her presentation at the Shoreham.

Mrs. Wesley E. Disney, wife of Representative Disney, of Oklahoma, was in charge of arrangements for the dinner. Serving on her committee was Mrs. Martin Dies, wife of Representative Dies, of Texas; Mrs. Charles West, wife of the Undersecretary of the Interior, who was formerly a Representative from Ohio, and Mrs. Gardner R. Wiley, Mrs. Richard Wainwright, Mrs. Howard Neely, Mrs. Raymond Swing, Mrs. Karl Greene, Miss Anita Pollitzer, Miss Laura Berrien, Mrs. Ernest Daniel, Mrs. Herman Gasch, and Mrs. Max Rotter.

In case of inclement weather either evening, a performance will be given on Thursday evening of this week.

Graduates Today.

Miss Ruth Eloise Stone, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul P. Stone, of Washington, will be graduated with honors from Goucher College, in Baltimore, this morning. A member of Pi Beta Phi, Miss Stone was also recently elected to Phi Beta Kappa.

600 Entries Received for Horse Show

Exhibitors' List for the Upperville Event Increases.

Mrs. John Hay Whitney, Mr. Volney Morris Are Included.

A list of exhibitors at the Upperville Colt and Horse Show grows daily and by now the number of entries from most of the important stables in the country has reached the 600 mark. The show days, which are Friday and Saturday of this week, are always largely attended, for the classes are considered the most interesting of any in Virginia.

Of the classes, horsemen are most interested in the yearling thoroughbreds. This year this section has the biggest entry list of all time and carries the largest purse.

The Upperville Colt and Horse Show dates back to 1853, making it the first and the oldest in this country. Col. Richard Dulany originated the idea for the show, which has occurred every year since 1853 with the exception of four years during the Civil War. The show, too, has been held in the same grove since its establishment.

Among those among exhibitors who have made entries are Mrs. John Hay Whitney, Mr. Volney Morris, Mrs. J. B. Apderson, Mr. H. H. Kelley, Mrs. J. G. Libby, Miss Mary Elizabeth Miles, Mr. F. M. Meetz, Mr. Ray S. Shoemaker, Mrs. Norman de R. Whitehouse, Mr. William Ziegler, jr., Mr. C. E. Norman, Miss Charlotte H. Noland, Mr. and Mrs. G. P. Plummer, Mr. and Mrs. John Ames;

Mr. Charles Cushman, jr., Mr. Fenton Fadely, Mr. J. North Flecher, Mrs. James C. Hamilton, Miss Wilhelmine S. Kirby Mr. C. I. Leith and Mr. L. C. Leith, Dr. E. H. Marsteller, Mr. Russell L. Parks, Miss Jane Brooks, Mr. Manley Carter, Miss Adelaide Taylor, Mrs. J. H. Van Allen, Mr. Thomas N. De Lashmutt, Miss Ann Clay Bayly, Mr. W. H. Lipscomb, Mrs. Hugh Fontaine, Mr. Robert S. Clark, Mr. H. Rozier Dulany, sr.;

Mrs. T. Beatty Brown, Mr. C. Fenton Connor, Mr. and Mrs. Walter McK. Jones, Mr. F. M. Meetz, Mr. E. L. Peach, Mr. D. M. Waller, Mr. Stevens C. Clark, jr.; Mr. Rowland Dawson, Mr. Amos Hoff, Miss C. Patricia Downs, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Fontaine, Mr. Charles R. Hope, Mr. Charles C. Harrison, jr.; Mrs. Lilly A. Livingston, Mrs. Plunkett Stewart and Mrs. Crompton Smith.

Entries made under the name of the stable include Benton Stables, Edgewood Farms, Foxcroft School, Fox Hollow Farm, Grafton Farm, Meander Farm, National Highway Stock Farm and Rockburn Farm.

Mr., Mrs. Riggs To Close Home

Will Go to Princeton to See the Graduation of Son.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Riggs and their daughter, Miss Lisette Riggs, will close their home, 2550 Massachusetts avenue, shortly and go to Princeton, to attend the commencement festivities at the university. Their son, Thomas Riggs, jr., is a member of this year's graduating class. Incidentally, he was one of the moving spirits behind the Veterans of Future Wars society, which got so much publicity last year.

From Princeton Mr. and Mrs. Riggs wil go to Millbrook, N. Y., where they have a summer home, Miss Riggs is sailing July 3 for a two months tour of South America. She will be accompanied by her aunt, Mrs. Frederick Coudert, of New York.

Mr. Riggs will go to Alaska later in the summer for a business trip. He was formerly governor of that country, and is now the American commissioner of the International Boundary Commission. This organization has charge of maintaining the 8,000 markers between this country Canada and Alaska. Mr. Riggs and his family will return to Washington in the fall.

Faces THAT NEEDN'T FEAR THE Sunshine

To some the brightness of Spring and Summer days comes as a very mixed blessing; for they are conscious that, in hard sunshine, they do not look their best—that the telltale marks of age become cruelly plain. Such diffidence in confronting the sunshine is quite unnecessary. A single Velva Mask Treatment will give back to your face the smoothness, freshness and clarity of early girlhood, toning the circulation, chasing away ugly wrinkles and lines, restoring the firm contours of cheeks and chin. No treatment could be pleasanter or more soothing; none produces the same immediate and lasting effect. Velva Cream Mask $5.00

Face Treatments, $3.50 and $5.00
Course of Six, $18.00 and $25.00

22 Members of District of Columbia Red Cross Motor Corps Conclude Season With Luncheon and Swimming Party at Club

Volunteer Staff Gave 250 Hours of Service in April.

Social Activities End, but the Other Work Continues.

By Jessie Ash Arndt,
The Post Club Editor.

TWENTY-TWO MEMBERS of the motor corps of the District of Columbia Chapter of the American Red Cross yesterday afternoon gathered at the Army and Navy Country Club for a luncheon and swimming party, officially closing their season.

The party marked the close of social gatherings, but not the end of the year's service for the corps. Like the Red Cross itself, the volunteer workers continued their program of activity and are always ready in time of emergency. Their service in normal times includes taking patients from Walter Reed, the Naval Hospital and some of those from St. Elizabeths on weekly outings. The members use their own cars or drive the two ambulances in which patients are taken who are unable to ride sitting up.

In April, as a typical month, 18 drivers gave 25 hours of service, making 54 calls, driving 802 miles and transporting 400 persons. They provided transportation for the Army Day parade, the cherry blossom festival, Georgetown Children's home and Neighborhood House, and were on duty during the flood along the Potomac.

Mrs. Krinbill Is Leader.

Mrs. H. R. Krinbill, for ten years an active Red Cross volunteer, is chairman of the corps. Others who were present at the luncheon included Mrs. Earl Schmitt, Mrs. L. H. Harris, Mrs. W. D. Harris, Mrs. John S. Grant, Miss Audrey Sigmund, Mrs. Z. S. Hendricks, Mrs. O. J. Jordan, Mrs. Junior Owens, Mrs. John W. Norwood, Miss Mary Winifred Brown, Mrs. Edward B. McCrahon, Mrs. Blanche Mackenzie, Mrs. Frederick Neithamer, Mrs. James Cumming, Mrs. A. S. Harvey, Miss Elizabeth Adams, daughter of Senator and Mrs. Alva B. Adams, of Colorado; Mrs. W. W. Wheeler, Miss Violet E. Palmer, the Missses Gertrude and Helen Aldrich and Miss Dorothy Gould Fowler.

Not only is she executive secretary of the national organization and head of its volunteer service, but also is chairman of the volunteer work of the local chapter. The broad scope of the national program in no way overshadows her interest in that of Washington. She keeps in close touch with each branch of activity here and watches its progress. Perhaps her affectionate interest is partly responsible for the enthusiasm with which the workers devote themselves to their tasks.

Active With Braille.

Adjoining the administration office, where she presides at her desk, wearing her white uniform with red veil, red collar and cuffs, is one of the rooms for the braille workers. The braille machine, shelves lined with pages laid out to dry and boxes with those ready to be assembled, tables where the binding is done and where completed volumes are placed in order, give testimony of the accomplishments of the braille group. One book is usually about six volumes in length when it is transcribed. Books of general interest are supplied to libraries for the cost of the material used. When textbooks are done for students by special request only one copy is made and goes eventually to the Library of Congress, where it will be available to others who require it. Blind workers are trained and paid as proofreaders of braille also.

Mrs. L. S. Wolfe, who is chairman of the work here, has been active in the Red Cross for nearly 20 years and was in the motor corps before devoting herself to transcription of books for the blind.

The program of volunteer work, as developed by Miss Boardman, is designed to train a capable staff for call in time of emergency through service to the community in normal periods.

Garments Produced.

The production of garments, another branch of the volunteer work, is under the chairmanship of Mrs. P. J. Altizer. The auditorium on the second floor of the District Chapter Building is equipped with sewing machines and cutting tables which in the winter are often all in use. During the summer fewer workers are there, but the chapter unfailingly supplies its quota to the National Red Cross and also has on hand additional clothing, blankets and linens ready for shipment in time of emergency. They are wrapped and tagged and stored in lockers in the basement.

Not long ago a call came from a mountain district where children were in need of dresses and sweaters. A junior Red Cross unit had expected to provide the clothing, but had been unable to meet its quota. The District chapter met the need.

The supply closet also contains a number of "beanies"—amusing name for little knitted caps worn by the men in the veterans' hospitals and much in demand. When special garments are needed, the request is often turned over to the Washington chapter. For instance, a 300-pound patient in one of the hospitals needed pajamas. They could not be bought—two pairs put together would hardly have been large enough—so the Red Cross workers made them here according to measure.

Canteen Corps.

The canteen corps, of which Mrs. William S. Spencer is chairman, is equipped to serve in time of emergency providing food to relief workers or persons left homeless by disaster. In normal times, when there are special gatherings at headquarters, they provide refreshments.

The health aides, under Mrs. Henry G. Wood, who is a graduate nurse, assists at clinics in nine hospitals of the city; the staff assistants do clerical work at headquarters, and the Gray Ladies visit the patients in various hospitals. Mrs. Albert N. Baggs, long a devoted worker, is general chairman of this service and is also head of the Walter Reed group; Mrs. George W. Calver, of those at Naval Hospital, and Mrs. Pierce van Vlack, of those at the civil hospitals.

Miss Olivia Stokes is in charge of the civilian home service, and is her own "staff." She wears a white uniform with purple collar and cuffs and veil; the staff assistants wear yellow; the canteen workers a light blue, with white collar and cuffs; the braille workers, navy blue with white collar and cuffs; health aides, rose color; the Gray Ladies, the gray by which they have come to be known; the sewing and surgical dressings groups, white with blue collar and cuffs, and the members of the motor corps, green uniforms indoors and a gray suit and service cap when they are driving. Miss J. Beatrice Bowman is chairman of the nursing activities committee which acts in an advisory capacity to the others.

In addition to these there are the junior groups meeting monthly on Saturday mornings, whose motto is "I Serve." There are eight million of them in the United States and their progress is one of the most cherished interests of Miss Boardman.

"Madame Chairman" . . .

By Suzanne.

Mrs. Delos Blodgett told a story the other day of how she happened to learn to swim and I don't believe she'll mind my passing it along, because it's such a good one.

She first tried to learn when her own son and daughters were children, but she was afraid of the water and decided she was one of those persons who just couldn't be taught. She spent the summers in Michigan and the winters in Florida and continued to go in the water, but wore "wings" and other paraphernalia guaranteed to keep one safely afloat.

Then, five years ago, small Monica Gaillard, one of her seven grandchildren, began to take swimming lessons. Monica went splashing into the water and paddling off by herself without a thought of fear. Her grandmother watched her and made up her mind if a little 4-year-old could do it, her grandmother should. Forthwith, grandmother renewed her efforts to learn and succeeded. She now both swims and dives and at this season, goes in daily, swimming one day in the pool at The Rocks, the estate of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Gaillard, and the next in that at Arbremont, the home of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Parsons Erwin. She also rides horseback, but there's no trick to that, for she's always done it.

Mrs. Blodgett expects to spend the summer in Washington, which is welcome news to her many friends. She is one of the prominent members of the D. A. R., the Colonial Dames and the Pen Women, as well as of other organizations in the Capital.

ROMANCE has invaded the ranks of the Business and Professional Women's Club. Aiming high, it has picked off the president, Ruth Robinson, who is to be succeeded by Nina Kinsella as head of the Washington club, will be married sometime in the fall. Her plans for a long time were a secret. She admits she likes being mysterious and she kept the fact of her engagement all to herself, leading her fellow club members to believe it was business which would be taking her back to her home in Kansas City at the end of the summer.

Well—prospective bridegroom is A. L. Roach, who lives in Kansas City and is in the publishing business (encyclopedias). They have known each other six or seven years. The exact date of the wedding has not been set but it probably "will not be in September"—which leaves October and November as possibilities. It's to be very quiet with only members of the family and a few close friends, and will not be a church wedding, says the bride-to-be.

Miss Robinson, who is one of the most popular presidents the B. and P. W. has ever had, came here three years ago as secretary to Dr. Raphael H. Miller, minister of the National City Christian Church. She had served in the same position for three years when he was pastor of the Independence Avenue Christian Church in Kansas City before coming to the Capital. Previous to taking a position as Dr. Miller's secretary, she was in the advertising business there and had been graduated in journalism at the Kansas State Agricultural College in Manhattan.

Father of Bridegroom Performs Ceremony in Takoma Church.

Mrs. Dorothy Fox Wilson, daughter of Mr. James E. Fox, of Woodside Park, Md., and Mr. Lorrane Short La Rue, son of the Rev. William La Rue, pastor of the Takoma Park Baptist Church, and Mrs. La Rue were married Saturday by the Rev. Mr. La Rue in the Takoma Park Baptist Church.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a light gray dress of street length of marquisitte combined with lace and carried a bouquet of orchids and purple sweet peas. Her only attendant was her sister, Miss Annabel Fox.

Mr. Joseph B. Simpson, jr., of Takoma Park, was best man, while the ushers were John K. Williams, William Drayton, jr., Fred Linton, of Takoma Park, and William Fletcher, of College Park, Md.

The couple left after the ceremony for a wedding trip in Canada. Upon their return July 1 they will make their home in Rockville, Md.

Mr. La Rue attended Purdue and George Washington Universities and belongs to Sigma Chi Fraternity.

Retreat Planned For This Evening

Court District of Columbia, No. 212, will attend an evening of recollection at the Washington Retreat House, 4000 Harewood road, tonight. The Rev. Louis O'Leary, O. P., will be the retreat master. Supper will be served at 6 p. m., followed by services, closing with the holy hour from 8 to 9 p. m.

Following the business meeting on June 15 Miss Louise Moore, secretary of the Friends of the Moment Society, will tell the members of the court of her organization's work for the blind.

Last evening members of the poster committee, under the chairmanship of Miss Emily Jamieson, met at the home of Miss Augusta Uhl, grand regent, to prepare an exhibit describing the activities of the local organization, to be sent to the National Convention of the Catholic Daughters of America in Bretton Woods, N. H., early in July.

Women Hear Shriners Talk At Banquet

Initiation Ceremonies Tonight for 17 New Members.

THE DAUGHTERS OF THE NILE, here from all parts of the country for their twenty-third annual meeting, gave a banquet in the ballroom of the Mayflower Hotel last night as the first large function of their convention. Mrs. Jessie Watson, a past queen of Samla Temple, of Washington, was in charge of the affair, which was attended by nearly 500 members and guests.

Mr. Freeland Kendrick, founder of the Shrine Hospitals for Crippled Children, who was to have been the speaker of the evening, was ill and unable to attend. Mr. Leonard Steuart, past imperial potentate of the Order of the Mystic Shrine, addressed the guests in his place. He told of the work in the 15 hospitals the order maintains. Mr. Ira Daniels, potentate of Samla Temple, also spoke and there were exhibition drills by the visiting patrols.

Pageant Is Staged.

The program also included a cherry blossom pageant, directed by Mrs. Dell Weaver Oakley, which had been presented in the afternoon and was repeated. The leading parts were taken by Miss Lillian Dowrick, Mrs. Maud H. Shelton and Miss Edna Jane. Others in the cast were Mrs. Elma Jenkins, Mrs. Grace Delaney, Mrs. Edith Merz, Mrs. Katherine Kight, Mrs. Eva Hall, Mrs. Doolin, Mrs. Lila White, Mrs. Erma Dinger and Mrs. Potts.

Mrs. Frances Roach was in charge of the decorations for the banquet, which were dominated by a life-sized camel, a symbol of the order. There were also palms, flowers and banners.

The convention opened yesterday, with headquarters at the Mayflower, where registration took place in the morning. The opening session followed, under the direction of the junior past queen, Mrs. Bertha Bromwell, of Samla Temple. Mrs. J. Edwin Reid is general chairman of the convention program with Mrs. Henrietta Vance as vice chairman. There was a closed session in the afternoon.

Sightseeing Today.

Today, after the business meeting at 9:30, the supreme officers will lunch in the Chinese Room at 12:15 with Mrs. Cora S. Mayberry, as chairman. A sightseeing tour is planned for the afternoon and at 8 in the evening a ceremonial, at which 17 new members will be initiated under the direction of Mrs. Arlene Hines, supreme queen of the local temple.

Tomorrow the queen's luncheon, at 12:30, in the Pan American Room of the Mayflower will follow the business session in the morning and, at 1:30, the election of supreme officers will take place. Mrs. Florence K. Lee, of Washington, will succeed Mrs. Maud K. Luxford, of Denver, as supreme queen of the order. A banquet will be given at 7:30 for the delegates, with Mrs. Vance in charge.

Thursday there will be two luncheons, one in the Pan American Room for past queens, and the other in the Jefferson Room for line officers. Installation of the supreme officers and a formal ball will take place Thursday evening. This will mark the official close of the convention, but many of the delegates will remain for a boat trip to Mount Vernon Friday morning at 10 o'clock.

Groups of W. R. C. Arrange Meetings

The Skylights of History Junior Club, sponsored by the Department of the Potomac, W. R. C., will participate in patriotic exercises on the east side of the Capitol on Flag Day. The next meeting of the club will be June 18.

Burnside W. R. C. will have its next meeting at the Thomas Circle Club on June 28. Mrs. B. B. Brown is president of the unit.

Ellen Spencer Mussey Tent, No. 1, Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War, will hold joint memorial service under the direction of the Grand Army at headquarters, 1222 New Hampshire avenue, June 10, at 8 o'clock, instead of June 3. Members will participate in Flag Day exercises June 14.

League of Pen Women Head Guest of Honor at Luncheon

Phyllis Fergus Hoyt (Mrs. Thatcher Hoyt), president of the League of American Pen Women, was guest of honor yesterday afternoon at a luncheon given by Mrs. Theodore Tiller and Mrs. Samuel Wassell at the home of the former, following the final board meeting of the organization.

Mrs. Hoyt, who is spending a few days in the Capital before going to Vermont for the summer, presided at the board meeting and, after the luncheon, entertained guests with a group of her own songs which she sang, accompanying herself at the piano. She wore a frock of heavy linen lace and a lace straw hat. Mrs. Wassell wore a silk print, striped in brown and white, and Mrs. Tiller, brown with a small dot of white.

Miss Violet Sweet Haven, one of the guests, told of her trip to the Orient aboard the China Clipper, describing the stops on Wake Island and other places on the way, the service aboard the plane, and giving sidelights on life in the Philippines, China and Japan as she has observed it. She combined business and pleasure on the trip, and is now writing several magazine articles on it.

Other guests included members of the League of American Pen Women and several newspaper writers. They were Mrs. Grace Thompson Seaton, who is here from Connecticut; Mrs. Josephine C. Chanler, of Chicago; Mrs. Delos A. Blodgett, Mrs. Rose Robinson Cohen, Miss Margaretta Campbell, Mme. Felian Garzia, Mrs. Edna Knight Gash, Mrs. Charles W. Taylor, Mrs. Harry B. Hunt, Mrs. Elizabeth Young, Miss Marguerite Merigold, president of the Washington branch of the league; Mrs. Robert D. Rands, Mrs. Inez Sheldon Tyler, Mrs. Lilla Wood Daniel, Mrs. Mathilde Kolb Bartlett, Mrs. Mabel H. Pittle, executive secretary of the National League; Miss Frances Youngblood, editor of the Pen Women's magazine; Mrs. James Hammond, Mrs. Sherwood Jones, Mrs. Ruth Perviance and Mrs. Frank Mondell.

Senate Boosts District Deficit, Bans U.S. Loans

C. I. O. Union Threatens Strike Unless Firms Sign Contract.

leave when the committee struck out a House rider limiting pay to the days actually worked.

A prohibition against the reallocation of municipal positions to effect pay raises also was eliminated.

The committee struck out a meaningless paragraph authorizing the Public Utilities Commission to make an investigation of the Public Utilities Commission.

In order to restore an equitable balance between appropriations for white and colored schools, the committee cut down initial appropriations for the Thomas Jefferson Memorial High School and Northern High School by $100,000 each. An item of $8,000 for a Bradbury Heights portable school was eliminated.

The committee added, on the other hand, $200,000 for a junior high school on the Banneker site, $90,000 for land adjoining the old Dennison school, and $35,000 for buying a school site at First and Pierce streets northwest.

Proposed Amendments.

Among other amendments to be offered by Senator Thomas when the bill is called today are:

Authority for construction of a new $2,000,000 Pennsylvania avenue bridge, with an initial appropriation of $350,000, to come out of the gas tax fund.

Authority to install parking meters on downtown streets.

Jurisdiction of the police court building now under construction is given to the Commissioners instead of the judges. This rider is expected to be contested.

An office of marshal is set up in the United States Court of Appeals.

The District supply bill as reported to the Senate exceeds Budget Budget estimates by $304,424 and current appropriations by $2,588,271.

Most Estimates Restored.

Most estimates have been restored to Budget Bureau figures, although there have been reductions in some items.

As was forecast Sunday, the committee did not increase the appropriation for unemployment relief above the Budget Bureau estimate of $1,465,000. It struck out a limitation of 10 per cent on administrative expenses, however, and substituted a maximum of $200,000.

The licensing division of the tax assessor's office was restored. It had been transferred in the House bill to the office of superintendent of weights, measures and markets.

The Children's Receiving Home was retained despite the House proposal that it be abolished, and substantial increases were allowed for several welfare institutions.

As a means of dividing the costs of administering the Federal courts, the Senate committee proposed that "except for the appropriations 'support of convicts' and 'writs of lunacy'" 60 per cent of the appropriation for United States District Court and 30 per cent of the United States Court of Appeals appropriation shall be paid from District revenues. The remainder will be taken out of Federal funds.

House appropriations of $10,780 for a bonding commission in the corporation counsel's office and $4,600 for the employment of a fire insurance expert in the department of insurance were stricken by the Senate group.

An authorization for the construction of a health center was altered so that instead of carrying $200,000 for the purchase of a site and building the plant it reduces the appropriation to $165,000 and specifies that it shall be erected on the site of Jones Elementary School.

The committee did not restore the salary of the poundmaster, cut by the House to $2,000.

Building inspection division, $1,500; plumbing inspection, $500; smoke and boiler regulation, $500; care of District Building, $4,674; assessor's office, $3,500; collector's office, $880; coroner's office, $1,440; municipal architect, $1,000.

Public Utilities Commission, $8,000, including $500 for incidental expenses; surveyor's office, $1,000; Minimum Wage Board, $12,170 and $2,150 for contingent expenses; register of wills, $1,440; recorder of deeds, $12,460, including contingent expenses and increase in rent; contingent miscellaneous expense, $10,796; sewers, $47,970, including cleaning and repairing of sewers, suberban sewers, and sewage treatment plant; disposal of refuge, $38,350, including increases for street cleaning and disposal of refuge.

Metropolitan police, $5,800, including $4,800 in miscellaneous expenses; fire department, $13,100.

School items added, besides those previously listed were: Night schools, $8,000; care of buildings and grounds, $6,725; transportation of tubercular pupils, $5,000; transportation of pupils in Bradbury Heights, $2,000; purchase and repair of furniture, $4,000; contingent expenses, $17,000; purchase of apparatus and fixtures, $1,400; school gardens, $2,400; repairs to buildings, $35,475; equipment of school yards for play $7,000.

Welfare appropriations increased included:

Workhouse and reformatory, $100,880; National Training School for Girls, $69,500, including $65,000 for construction of new buildings; District Training School, $5,000; Industrial Home School for Colored Children, $8,330; relief of distress, $53,500; Columbia Polytechnic Institute, $3,000; physicians for the poor, $5,760.

Other increases:

National Capital Parks, $15,380; street and road improvement and repair, $280,920, including $24,200 for the paving of Western avenue, $25,000 for curbs and gutters, $75,000 for surfacing and resurfacing, $100,000 for repairs to streets, and $43,000 for completion of Chain Bridge.

Water service: $70,000 for Washington aqueduct operation and $6,300 for maintenance of distribution system. The Senate Committee struck out an item of $10,000 allowed the auditor's office by the House for "examination of estimates of appropriations, and for other purposes."

Airplane Victims' Bodies Are Still Unrecovered

Alpine, Utah, June 7 (AP).—Frustrated diggers among the frozen remnants of a smashed airplane halted tonight their search for seven broken bodies, determined to redouble their efforts tomorrow.

A full day of searching not so much for the bodies themselves as for a means of reaching them in the vast, cliff-bound glacier in which they lie, brought "progress but no results," said Postal Inspector M. G. Wenger, directing the hunt. Armed guards were stationed around the six-months-weatherbeaten wreckage of the Western Air Express liner to remain through the semi-Arctic night.

Four in N. Y. Confess Artichoke Conspiracy

New York, June 7 (AP).—Rather than face trial for the third time, four men charged with terrorizing New York's $1,000,000-a-year artichoke industry chose today in Federal court to plead guilty to two counts of a four-count indictment.

The indictment charged restraint of trade and conspiracy to monopolize the artichoke industry by means of violence and threats. Each of the four men, Harry Bonsignore and Columbus Christopher, partners and operators of the Union Pacific Produce Co.; Joseph Migliaccia, manager of the company's affairs, and Luis Prato, a salesman for the company, faces a possible two years in jail and fines totaling $10,000.

Workman's Knee Injured.

While working in the tunnel under the old House Office Building, Joseph Walker Ogden, 43, of 2500 Q street southeast, was struck on the left leg by a piece of iron bar he was welding. He remained at Casualty Hospital after receiving treatment there for a dislocated knee.

Slain Judge's Son Hurt In 2-Story Suicide Leap

New York, June 7 (AP).—Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine said today Francis J. O'Neil, Texas oil worker, was injured in a two-story leap in an attempt to commit suicide at the home of a friend and not from a beating when O'Neil attended the funeral here of his father, a municipal court justice stabbed mysteriously in Greenwich Village.

"It is absolutely untrue," Valentine said of a story O'Neil told Texas authorities of having been set upon by a gang. "O'Neil said, as he lay on the ground, after leaping from a second-story window, he jmped because he felt he had committed a crime by marrying against his father's wishes."

Judges Discard Wigs.

London, June 7 (AP).—Two London judges took off their wigs in court today and invited lawyers to do the same because of what Londoners called a "heat wave." The mercury got up to 75 at noon, after touching 80 yesterday.

GOODYEAR SMACKS RISING TIRE PRICES WITH SENSATIONAL NEW "R-1"

World's Biggest Tire-Maker Hits Bull's-eye in Endeavor to Offset Soaring Costs with Stunning New Product Wanted by Millions of Car-Owners

SEE FOR YOURSELF WHY THE "R-1" IS GREAT

Look at these standout features which Goodyear's unequaled experience and tire-making facilities make possible at this new low price.

FLATTER, WIDER TREAD gives you more road-contact, more traction

12% MORE RUBBER IN TREAD gives you longer wear, more mileage

HIGHER, BROADER SHOULDERS give you more "hold" on curves

CENTER TRACTION gives you the Goodyear Margin of Safety

SUPERTWIST CORD IN EVERY PLY gives you maximum blowout protection

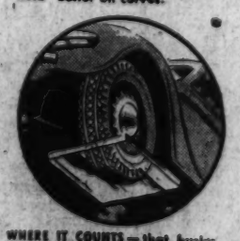
Remember—

THE CHEAPEST THING ON YOUR CAR IS THE BEST TIRES YOU CAN BUY!

CAN TAKE IT—there's 12% more rubber in the "R-1" tread . . . more miles.

BROAD-SHOULDERED—"R-1" shoulders are higher, broader, to "hold" better on curves.



WHERE IT COUNTS—that husky tread is wider, flatter. More road-contact, better traction.

You know what's happening — the headlines have been full of it for weeks.

Up... up... up... goes cost of production—up goes labor, materials, and the price of almost everything you buy.

A situation like that is a stirring challenge to everyone who makes serious claim to serving the public interest.

It's a challenge to Goodyear—to the resourcefulness, enterprise and leadership that have made Goodyear the greatest rubber company in the world.

Goodyear Delivers — Now!

Right now Goodyear meets that challenge squarely on the nose—meets it with a big, handsome, tough, thrifty new tire—the sensational Goodyear "R-1."

Seeing the threat of climbing costs several months ago, Goodyear swung into action its full development and engineering resources; focusing the greatest talent in the rubber world on this single job.

The target was a new tire—in which brains, ingenuity and experience should offset rising labor and materials.

Look it Over — Judge for Yourself

One glimpse at this great new "R-1" tells you it's got the stuff—here's the "beef" that delivers longer mileage — there's 12% more rubber in that massive tread.

We took as a foundation the dependable, thrifty construction lessons learned in building more than 23,000,000 Pathfinders, and on that we applied the principles of long tread wear, safe going, sure traction developed in the famed "G-3" All-Weather—most popular tire in the world.

We packed in every great Goodyear feature. Center Traction — the Goodyear Margin of Safety. Higher, broader shoulders to "hold" true on curves, to steer more easily. Wider riding-ribs for slow even wear. Patented Supertwist Cord in every ply for maximum blowout protection!

MORE PEOPLE RIDE ON GOODYEAR TIRES THAN ON ANY OTHER KIND

Bob Burns Says:

It's a purty good idea to be up on several things, because if you don't happen to be in the mood to do one thing, you can always turn to one of the others. I learned that early in life.

One day I was helpin' papa put in a concrete sidewalk down home, and he says, "Son, go and get six sacks of cement." I says, "Papa, I don't feel like carrying them heavy sacks, I've got a chill." Papa says, "Well, then, grab that screen and sift some sand."

Regarding Taxes

Herbert G. Kaiser, president, Treasury Department Beneficial Association, and chairman, legislative committee, Government Group Insurance Conference, has written to Representative Mary Norton regarding the proposed income and business privilege taxes for the District of Columbia. As his argument especially affects Government employes, we quote the letter:

"The proposed income and business privilege taxes on income received in the District of Columbia, if enacted in its present form, will seriously affect the continuation of group insurance as it is now available to many Government employes who are members of the Government Group Insurance Conference.

"The Government Group Insurance Conference is composed of beneficial and welfare associations whose major purpose is to secure group life insurance for their members who are employes of various United States Government departments and the District of Columbia.

"The member associates of the conference are as follows:

United States Department of Agriculture Beneficial and Relief Association, United States Department of Commerce and Justice Beneficial Association, Municipal Employes' Group Insurance Association (District of Columbia group), G. P. O. Group Life Insurance Association, Department of the Interoir Beneficial Association, United States Department of Labor Beneficial Association, Navy Department Beneficial Association.

Welfare and Recreational Association of Public Buildings and Grounds (includes United States Veterans' Administration), Tacomis Club (Tariff Commission), United States Treasury Department Beneficial Association, Employes Welfare Association (United States Vet-Department Beneficial Association, erans' Administration, D. C.), War Washington Navy Yard Group Life Insurance Association.

He points out that many of these associations were organized years ago "to minimize the passing of the hat or soliciting contributions when death occurred in instances where Government employes died leaving little, if any, funds to take care of burial expenses or other emergency items, which was a situation that existed prior to their organization.

There are, he said, a total of 112,000 units of insurance in force, covered by 51 master group policies and the insurance coverage is $96,600,000.

"These associations are all nonprofitable and exempt from Federal income taxes under the provisions of Section 101—(16) revenue act of 1936, and their membership fees are in their entirety used to pay premiums, expenses and maintain the reserves necessary to continue the benefit," he stated.

"The taxes that these associations will have to pay if the proposed taxes are enacted without exempting them from taxes would require an increase in membership fees or a decrease in benefits."

"We feel sure," he stated, "that Congress does not wish to have this bill prevent Government employes from continuing to receive benefits as they have been receiving them for many years. The Government Group Insurance Conference through its legislative committee therefore requests that consideration be given from the viewpoint of amending the act to exempt these associations from its provisions."

Another Letter

The National Civil Service Reform League has joined its voice to that of the National Federation of Federal Employes in denunciation of the Vinson bill. H. Elice Kaplan, secretary of the N. C. S. R. L., writes to Representative Dister Hill, chairman of the Committee on Military Affairs of the House, as follows:

"On behalf of the National Civil Service Reform League, I respectfully urge you to disapprove of H. R. 7331, introduced by Mr. Vinson, which authorizes the assignment of appointment of commissioned officers of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, Public Health Service and Coast and Geodetic Survey, whether active or retired, to any civilian positions under the United States Government.

"We believe this proposal is inimical to sound personnel administration and to the merit system; and extremely unfair to employes in the civil service, as well as to persons who have competed in examinations therefor. It would permit civilian employes of specialized training and long service to be denied promotion, while higher positions, to which they would logically expect to be advanced, were filled by Army or Navy officers, to the detriment both of efficiency and of departmental morale," Kaplan wrote.

He said that the measure seems "unworthy of serious consideration by your committee."

Bladensburg Road Body To Celebrate Founding

The Bladensburg Road Citizens Association will celebrate the first anniversary of its founding in the public park at Bladensburg road and Twenty-eighth street northeast Thursday at 8 p. m.

Speakers will include the retiring president, William F. Ryan; the new president, William P. Thomas, and A. F. E. Scheer, of the Northeast Conference of Citizens Associations.

Concentration of Wealth Undesirable In U. S., Lindley Tells American U. Class

Sidney Sachs Awarded College Honor Prize at Exercises.

Ernest L. Lindley, Washington correspondent for the New York Herald-Tribune, told graduates of American University at commencement exercises in Memorial Continental Hall last night that concentration of wealth in the United States "has never been socially desirable" and that such concentration has now lost "whatever economic justification it once had."

Outlining the social and economic situation in this country, Lindley declared that Roosevelt's method of effecting judicial reform had at least the merit of producing prompt results. In recent Supreme Court decisions Roosevelt has already achieved much that he sought, Lindley said, pointing out that the resignation of one more conservative judge or the enlargement of the court by two judges would end the deadlock.

An outstanding feature of the commencement exercises, the twenty-third to be held by the university, was the presentation to Sidney Sachs of the College Honor Prize, the highest award given.

Sachs had returned only a few hours before from England, where, with William Powell, also of American University, he has been representing the National Student Federation of America on a debate tour. Besides a cash award of $50, Sachs will have his name engraved on the Kinsman Cup with the names of other winners of the honor prize. Besides his debating activities, Sachs has been active in many campus movements and has been president of the student council for the past year.

The Alpha Chi Omega award of $100, presented annually to the young woman of unusual charm, character and personality, went this year to Mary Elizabeth Morse. The faculty prize of $15 for the student making the highest scholastic record of the year went to Walter Bastian and Nellie Strong.

The history prize of $15, offered by the Daughters of the American Revolution for an essay on American history, was presented to Walter Sanderlin. Other prizes were awarded as follows:

Diplomas were awarded by Dr. Joseph M. M. Gray, chancellor of the university. Honors and awards were announced by Dr. George B. Woods, dean of the college of liberal arts.

The list of graduate follows:

Arnold Sriyan Block, Caroline Norbeth Boyd, Doris Marie Braitain, Anna Mae Browne, Herwil McClure Bryant, Mary Buckingham, Beverly Harriet Cohen, Florence Pauline Corkran, Margaret Elizabeth Courtney, Grace Elaine Demetriades, William Wesley Dodge, Susan Winters Drager (magna cum laude), William Maynard Eicher, Caroline Chamberlin Furst, Glenn Mayfield Goodman, Bessie Margaret Hale, Margaret Stanley Hall (cum laude), Wilva Louise Hankinson, Stephen Pinckney Hatchett, Richard Worthington Hummer (magna cum laude), Eunice Treffry Jones, Mary Adele Lehman (cum laude), William Theodore Leith, Margaret Hester Le Masters, Frank Thomas Marino, Catherine Arnold Midelburg, Raphael Harwood Miller, Jr., Mary Louise Morgan, Olive Odom, Frances Adeline Page (magna cum laude), Patricia Clare Paxton, Dorothy Payne, Betty-Ann Pearce, Ruth Irene Pope.

Translators End A.F.G.E. Affiliation

First U. S. Worker Unit Resents 'High-Handed' Tactics.

Interunion Council Asks for Connection With C. I. O.

There were three developments in governmental union circles yesterday. They were:

The conservative Society of Federal Translators voted to terminate its affiliation with the American Federation of Government Employes "because of dissatisfaction with the present leadership of that organization."

The Interunion Council adopted a resolution favoring the setting up of a national federation affiliated with the Committee on Industrial Organization.

The seven suspended lodges of the A. F. G. E. demanded an open hearing at which press may attend when they come before the executive council Saturday.

Resent "High-Handed" Action.

It was explained by Ignatius Jawney, a spokesman for the translators, that "high-handed" tactics by A. F. G. E. officials were chiefly responsible for the secession.

Jawney said that the Society of Federal Translators has 20 members in several Government departments. Organized in 1930, the society was the first unit of Government workers to join the A. F. G. E.

While Jawney admitted that his organization was not large, he pointed out that there are 42 A. F. G. E. lodges which are smaller. He said that the society's 20 members comprised a majority of the full-time translators working here. The president of the group is Walter E. Claflin, of the War Department.

Fight Over Economy.

Five A. F. G. E. lodges were ousted at the national convention last September and seven other lodges were suspended last Friday. The latest suspension occurred because of a difference of opinion on how strongly the A. F. G. E. should fight congressional economy measures.

The Interunion Council, which is a delegate organization composed of unions in the Farm Credit Administration, Securities and Exchange Commission, Social Security Board, Railroad Retirement Board and the Public Assistance Division, also urged that the seven "rebel" American Federation of Government Employes lodges and all other bona fide Government employe unions take similar action.

The seven suspended lodges of the American Federation of Government Employes will undergo trial at 10 o'clock Saturday morning before the executive council of the A. F. G. E.

In a letter to the council, the suspended lodges' spokesmen stated: "In the past you have used such secret hearings to lend the trappings of legality to decisions arrived at in advance. We have before us the bitter experience of five lodges who were denied reinstatement in the A. F. G. E. after a hearing which was a travesty on justice."

Civic Unit Attacks Fare Boost Plan

The Forrest Hills Citizens' Association last night went on record as opposed to any increase in street car and bus fares.

At the same time, the association asked for restoration of the $1 weekly pass and requested the Public Utilities Commission and the Public Health Service to determine the amount of carbon monoxide gas in busses.

The group opposed encroachment on the the the the the the thethe on the grounds Murch School of the proposed Fort Drive. Such a situation, they declared, would form a serious traffic hazard.

About 60 persons attended the meeting, held at Pierce's Mill. The members enjoyed a picnic there before the business meeting started.

Installation of officers and a baseball game were outstanding features of the picnic of the Monday Evening Club, held last night at the picnic grounds at Sixteenth and Kennedy streets northwest.

New officers are William A. Roberts, former People's Council, president; Capt. Rhoda J. Milliken, first vice president; Edgar M. Gerlach, second vice president; Mrs. Florence A. Stewart, corresponding secretary; Carroll E. Robb, recording secretary, and Morris Klass, treasurer.

The athletic feature of the afternoon was a soft ball game between a team representing the public agencies and one representing the private agencies. The public agencies won, 13-8. Elwood Street, director of the Board of Public Welfare, was captain of the winning team. The private agencies' team was headed by Herbert L. Willett jr., Community Chest director, and in as much as the private agencies had administered a sound thumping to the public agencies for two years running, the game was hard fought and the tables turned. The teams lined up as follows:

Public Agencies—Carroll Robb, catcher; Ray Huff, pitcher; Clarence Geiger, first base; Capt. Thomas Rives, second base; Philip Akre, third base; H. C. Corpening, shortstop; David Linden, leftfield; Hugh Rivers, centerfield; James W Pitts, rightfield; J Bernard McDonnell, Dr. Max Kossoris and Dr. F. Lovell Bixley, utility.

Private Agencies—Morris Klass, catcher; Otto Nielsen, pitcher; Charles M. Fyfe, first base; Harry Trainor, second base; Frank M. Gray, third base; Herbert L. Willett, jr., shortstop; Dr. Paul J. Everhardt, rightfield; Maj. Henry S. Wilkins, centerfield; Clark Corliss, leftfield; Ross Garrett, Randloph G. Bishop and George Pennell, utility.

Following the picnic supper, reports from the recent National Conference of Social Work at Indianapolis were made.

Kindergarten For D.C. Urged By Mrs. Oleson

Of the 35,000 children in Washington between 2 and 5 years of age, only 755 are in school, according to reports made yesterday afternoon by committees of the Advisory Council of Nursery Schools, which met at the home of Mrs. Florence Watson Oleson, chairman.

"We feel that by and large the average child among these would benefit greatly from nursery school experience," Mrs. Oleson said.

The council, which was formed in March of this year, hopes that eventually nursery schools will be a part of the District's public school system. Under the present law, no part of the school budget can go to educate children under 5 years of age.

The 755 children below this age now in school are enrolled as follows: 350 in 9 WPA schools, 129 in settlement schools, 276 in private schools.

"We are not expecting to have nursery schools made a part of our public system over night. It took the kindergarten idea several years to take root and many cities have not yet provided kindergartens for their children. But we anticipate ultimate success," Mrs. Oleson said.

During the next school year the council will concentrate on a threefold program. First, it will seek to interpret the needs of the preschool child to the community. Second, it will work for legislation that will permit nursery school appropriations. Third, it will assist the 9 WPA nursery schools already in

D. C. Airport HeldDisgrace By Legislator

Rep. Plumley Declares Present Field Unsafe for Planes.

Urges Study of Gravelly Point Site for New Project Here.

Washington's airport situation again was assailed in the House yesterday, when Representative Charles A. Plumley (Republican), of Vermont, called the present airport a "national disgrace."

"Anyone who lands at the airport," Plumley said, "takes his life in his hands because of the obvious dangers."

He added that his opposition to the present situation was based on personal experience, having made many landings at Washington Airport.

The Vermont Republican stated that he had no specific site to recommend for an airport, but recommended consideration of the Gravelly Point area as a possible location for an adequate airport.

"This may not be the solution," he emphasized," but it is a suggestion and it commends itself to me as a move in the right direction."

The Gravelly Point site is one of those being currently considered by the Airport Commission, appointed many months ago to report at the opening of Congress. Its report, predicted from time to time, still is to be completed.

Plumley said that Washington's airport had been neglected because "what is everybody's business is nobody's business." He added that it was time that "somebody made it their business to see that something is done."

He called the present condition "absolutely indefensible," in addition. "If it is the question of property rights and the sale of real estate and the price to be paid, we know how to proceed to obviate such barriers. * * * Let us do something right away, for there isn't a pilot who makes a landing or leaves the ground at the present airport who does not do so with his fingers crossed and his heart in his mouth."

Chevy Chase Unit Hears J. H. Pugh

Speaking before the Woman's Democratic Club of Chevy Chase, Md., last night, State's Attorney James H. Pugh outlined the duties of the prosecutor's office and told of important cases with which he had dealt.

Pugh predicted that the famous car-barn murder of 1934 would eventually be solved. Men are still working on the case, he said.

Curtis Walker, chairman of the Democratic organization for the area, presented plans for taking a census of new voters. Walker's plans were approved by the club.

Opponents Act To Kill Court Compromise

New Motion to 'Postpone Indefinitely' May Reach Senate Floor.

By Robert C. Albright.

Carefully devised parliamentary strategy to defeat passage this session of any judiciary bill was advanced yesterday by court plan opponents, as the Administration's compromise negotiations moved forward apace.

A preferential motion to "postpone indefinitely" may be offered from the Senate floor when the Administration's court compromise is proposed. If this motion carries it would have the effect of killing the bill and all amendments.

Rules of the Senate and proposed parliamentary tactics will be discussed today at an informal conference of opposition Democrats. To organize and co-ordinate opposition efforts a series of daily conferences is planned.

Senator Carl A. Hatch (Democrat), of New Mexico, meantime proposed minor changes in his compromise plan, now tentatively forming the basis of Administration overtures.

Hatch said he will offer an amendment to his own plan, moving the retirement age of justices from 70 to 75. His plan now provides for only one additional appointment to the court every year, for each incumbent on the bench over 70.

Senate Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson, given a free hand by the President in managing the court bill in the Senate, yesterday continued silent on the course he will take. It is known that the Hatch plan, with possibly some changes, is being considered as a possible basis of action. The 75-year age limitation suggested yesterday by Hatch is in line with suggestions made by Robinson when the court bill was first messaged to the Senate.

Hatch said yesterday he would support still another change in his plan—one giving precedence in the new court appointment to judicial districts not now represented on the court.

Another suggested basis of compromise now under discussion would provide for a permanent court of 11 members, with each judicial district represented. This would mean an immediate increase in the court from 9 to 11 members. It was first advanced by Senator Pat McCarran (Democrat), Nevada, who has since completely disowned it and is now fighting any increase in the court.

Filibuster Threatened.

Hatch said yesterday he would vote against a two-judge increase in the court, but some time in the future, when the court plan is no longer an issue, he would favor an 11-judge court. Although now aligned with the court plan opponents, the New Mexico Senator said he will vote for his own compromise plan if offered by Robinson. But if substantial changes are made, or the original bill substituted in the House, he said he would fight final enactment to the point of filibuster.

Hatch in the next few days will go before a conference of opposition Senator to outline his plan to colleagues who are predominantly opposed to any court increase.

Rough drafts of the Senate Judiciary Committee's adverse report on the court bill were completed yesterday, and will be first submitted to the ten Senators who opposed the measure in committee.

Late this week the finished report probably will be filed in the Senate and the bill can be called up for action anytime thereafter.

Senator McCarran and Senator Joseph P. O'Mahoney (Democrat), Wyoming, have taken over work on the report, consulting frequently with Senator William H. King (Democrat), Utah, who is confined to his bed. Suggestions of other opposition Senators on the Judiciary Committee have been turned over to them for incorporation in the report.

Opposition Strategy Drafted.

Determined to be prepared for any Administration floor maneuver, the opposition Senators are giving special attention to parliamentary procedure, and may establish an opposition policy committee to supervise the Senate fight on the bill.

On assumption that Robinson may offer a motion to strike out the six-judge increase, and substitute the compromise he perfects, the opposition is considering a rarely-used floor expedient.

If they voted against the substitute, they would, in effect, be voting for the six-judge increase. If they voted for the substitute, the Administration would have won an initial advantage.

To get around either alternative, and to strike immediately for the death of the bill, they may offer a motion to "postpone indefinitely." This is subject to debate, but would take precedence over the Administration motion. Some opposition leaders believe they could muster their full strength on the motion to postpone. If the motion passed, they insist, the entire court bill, to all intents and purposes, would be dead for the session.

Man Peddles Flowers To Bury His Wife

"Please," he appealed, "for my wife. She's dead and I have no money to bury her. * * *"

A policeman, on the alert for sidewalk fakers, stopped him, saying, "You'd better tell that story to the judge."

The man, giving his name as Nathaniel W. Ellis, did tell it to the judge today.

It was true, investigators discovered. Ellis was quickly released to continue his attempt to raise the burial fund.

Brooklyn Times Union's Publication Suspended

New York, June 7 (AP).—The management of the Brooklyn Times Union today announced suspension of publication of the 86-year-old newspaper.

The announcement was made in the Brooklyn Eagle, whose owners bought the Times Union February 1. The final issues of the Times Union, an afternoon newspaper, appeared Saturday. The Eagle management said it would enlarge its publication to take in all the essential features of the Times Union.

Nelson B. Bell About The Show Shops

Jean Harlow's Charm Will Be Missed by Washington; Star Was Totally Unlike Roles She Played in Films

Was a Visitor in Washington for the President's Birthday Celebrations; Made First Capital Visit in a Week of Personal Stage Appearances at Palace; Her Place on the Screen Will Be Difficult to Fill.

THIS column has lost an admired and a valued friend in Hollywood. In the lamentable and untimely death of Jean Harlow, there is removed from the film colony one of its most gracious, most intelligent and most vivacious personalities. I know of no one connected with the cinema of whose actual nature the theatergoing public has entertained a greater misconception.

BELL.

Jean Harlow possessed a peculiar facility for the screen impersonation of hard and crass young women. Because of this fact, she generally was cast in the role of a semi-rowdy sunk deep in the lap of luxury—as was the case, for example, in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's elaborate production of "Dinner at Eight," an adaptation of the stage play by Edna Ferber and George S. Kaufman. As a matter of fact, Jean, in private life, was not like that at all.

It was my good fortune to enjoy a friendship with this vibrant young star that extended over a period of almost a decade. Never have I failed to find her in every sense a lady, witty, interesting, a brilliant conversationalist and one interested in subjects far removed from the studios and the lots. She once essayed to write a book. I do not know whether it ever was completed or not, but at least the urge gives some evidence of the young woman's serious purpose in life.

When Jean visited Washington for the first time, for a week of personal appearances on the stage of Loew's Palace Theater, in the old days before the stage policy was transferred to the Fox, now Loew's Capitol, I attempted to interview Miss Harlow. In the dressing room were her mother, Mrs. Jean Bello, and her then stepfather, "Count" Marino Bello. Instead of being interviewed, Jean thought it would be a better idea for her to interview me. So that is the way it was done, the story appearing in this column under the by-line of "Jean Harlow."

On that visit, Jean established herself with the Washington critical fraternity as one of the most charming hostesses who ever had visited the Capital from the West Coast. Although suffering a touch of an ailment that may have been the forerunner of her fatal illness, she was a sparkling addition to the Sunday morning breakfast table that was spread in the Mayflower Hotel. She devoted all of her waking hours to the entertainment of her guests, up to the time it became necessary to leave to make her first stage appearance of the afternoon. She was like that.

* * * *

The poise displayed by this able young actress in making her stage appearances always has lingered in memory. I stood in the wings at the Palace with her before she went on and realized that she was nervous—not biting her fingernails, quite, but twisting a long, flowing chiffon handkerchief almost to shreds. Then her music cue started and she walked to the center of the stage behind the closed curtains. When those curtains parted, she tossed her head into the air with the spirit of a Spartan, stepped to the footlights and took her audience by storm by the very naturalness, spontaneity and obvious sincerity of what she said and did. It is further recalled that for that engagement Bert Frohman was brought back to Washington to act as foil for Jean's colloquies. He became so smitten with the loveliness of his stage partner for the week that it was afterward confided to me that the matter had become a bit of a family problem.

* * * *

Upon the recent occasion of the visit of Jean Harlow, Robert Taylor and a considerable number of stage and screen luminaries, to participate in President Roosevelt's birthday celebrations, there was further evidence of Jean's infinite capacity for maintaining an unruffled composure under all circumstances and making friends.

The Harlow-Taylor party arrived in Washington early on a Friday morning. It was a wet, soggy sort of day. I was among those who went to the Union Station to greet the incoming stars, but having labored far into the night, being a little bedraggled, slouch-hatted and rain-coated, had no desire to be in the first line of receptionists. So I hid myself behind a phalanx of newspaper photographers, lined up about six deep before the Pullman steps on which Jean and Bob were posing as if just alighting from the train. The scheme didn't work.

Perched on the step of the car, Jean was able to see over the heads of the flashlighters, espied your reporter, plucked her mother from the by-standing throng and came barging through to where I was to say "hello." That's the way she was.

We breakfasted together later at the Mayflower and then her dizzy round of official duties began—and what a round! During all of that hectic week-end, I encountered no one—and this blanket assertion includes some figures high in Washington life whom I had the privilege of introducing to these two talented stars—who could find one word of criticism or disparagement to level at Jean Harlow.

On the contrary, many of those who had formed the totally erroneous impression already referred to that she was like the roles she played for the cameras, completely reversed their opinions and had nothing but the most flattering things to say of the charm they had encountered when finally meeting Jean as she really was.

It was impossible to know this young woman and not be tremendously attracted to her by the unaffectedness and genuineness of her nature.

* * * *

Not only will her friends in the National Capital and throughout the country be grief-stricken by the premature passing of this exuberant young star who started the "platinum" vogue, but the screen will be definitely the loser by having lost an actress whose place will not soon be filled. I extend my deepest sympathy to those bereaved by her death and to the executives of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, who held her in such high regard.

* * * *

May her soul soar to Elysian fields as bright as she was herself.

Will Star Next at the Earle

Since she was born in Paris, there is something singularly appropriate in the title, "She Met Him in Paris," borne by her new starring vehicle in which Claudette Colbert will be seen on the screen at the Earle Theater for the week beginning Friday. Her leading man in this subject is Melvyn Douglas, sterling actor.

In Hollywood

With JIMMY FIDDLER

Hollywood, June 7.—Idol chatter: Martha Raye's mouth is no bigger than her heart. Grin alikes: Preston Foster and Ian Hunter. Wonder how Franchot Tone would look if he red-penciled his lips to do away with his too-thin mouth line? If Simone Simon keeps pouting, I'll keep shouting—against it. Madeleine Carroll reminds me of the song: "Too Beautiful for Words." Candidate for roles once played by Richard Barthelmess: Henry Fonda. I think black opera hose were invented for Eleanor Powell's legs.

PRESTON FOSTER.

Impressionistic drawing of Mae West: An hour-glass in skintights. Charlie Chaplin better start a new picture if he wants it finished by 1940. Peas from the same pod: Lloyd Nolan and Alan Baxter. Carole Lombard wears those diamond-and-ruby clips even on lounging pajamas. Add guys with beautiful teeth: Craig Reynolds. Wonder where Kay Francis hides out on her days off?

A movie extra's description of Hollywood boulevard: Street of broken arches. When Sonja Henie smiles, I think of Mary Pickford. Humphrey Bogart can flash more mean words with his eyes than the average villain can say with mustache and lips combined. So Joan Blondell went right back to eating after the honeymoon was over. Do you suppose Bill Powell is looking ahead to a detective job when he leaves the movies hood-by? Nutshell description of Bill Robinson: Feet-uresque.

I have heard some amusing marriage-proposal stories in my time, but this one Grace Moore told me yesterday about her romance with Val Perera caps them all. The two met aboard ship en route to France. He proposed and was accepted a few hours after the captain had introduced them. They were standing on top deck, planning their marriage, when Val suddenly became very flustered. He asked Grace not to mind if he was attentive to a girl who would meet him when the boat docked at Havre. "I'm engaged to her," he explained, "but I'll break it off right away."

Whereupon Grace blushed and hurried below deck. "I rushed to the wireless operator and sent a message to New York," she laughingly recalls. "You see, I, too, was engaged at the time!"

I asked Don Terry, who played in "Me, Gangster" eight years, if he noticed any changes in Hollywood upon his return here the other day. "Nope, things are about the same except for the Simone Simon influence," smiled Don. "When I walked into the studios I found yes-men are now saying yes-yes."

Ran into Jimmie Stewart in a hardware store. Jimmie, you know lives on the other side of Garbo's high board fence. He was busy buying a brace-and-bit and he had a wild look in his eye. "It's Garbo," he said. "She's been having parties lately and curiosity is driving me nuts. This morning I decided I couldn't stand it any longer. Either I've got to peek—or move."

Mrs. Fischer said that Germany has made considerable progress in popularizing nonalcoholic beverages.

"Especially," she said, "have we been successful with ciders."

Executive committees and national officers will remain in Washington through Thursday, mapping an educational campaign for the next three years and deciding on the 1940 convention city.

Pencil Cap Removed From Lung of Boy, 12

Los Angeles, June 7 (AP).—An operation late today removed from the lung of 12-year-old Andrew J. Blakeley, jr., a metal pencil cap he swallowed last Thursday.

Surgeons succeeded in removing the small object after a long search for a similar pencil cap which it was believed might be needed to fashion an instrument of the right size and shape to grip the swallowed cap.

MRS. ELY CULBERTSON ON CONTRACT

Two-way finesses are the bane of many a player's existence. Yet it is an incontrovertible fact that in eight cases out of ten there is either an indication as to which way to finesse, or a sound and sufficient reason for choosing one direction over the other. Today's hand is a typical illustration of finessing correctly by logic.

West opened the Jack of hearts. Declarer won with the Ace, and counted tricks. It seemed that even if he were to lose to the diamond Queen he still would be able to take three diamond tricks, three hearts, two clubs, and at least one spade.

On the assumption, therefore, that the diamond finesse was a sheer guess, he led to dummy's King and finessed through East. West won with the Queen and promptly shifted to the ten of spades.

Now, too late, declarer saw that he had not envisaged all the possibilities. The club Ace was still outstanding and had to be knocked out in order to establish nine tricks. But, meanwhile, there was the spade menace to be considered. If East had the club Ace it would now be safe to put up the Ace of spades, since West would be unable to regain the lead for a second lead through dummy's spade Queen. If West had the club Ace, however, and East the spades, to play dummy's Ace would merely delay defeat. With this latter lay of cards the winning play would be to hold up the spade Ace until West, who probably was shorter than East in spades, was out of the suit. If West had the club Ace and no more than three spades, defenders would win only two spades, one club and one diamond.

Deciding to hold up, declarer saw no harm in trying the spade finesse. East smothered the Queen and continued spades. The Ace of clubs gave East entry for his established spade suit and declarer was down two.

The diamond situation had not been a toss-up! The one danger point of the hand had been in spades. To lose to the diamond Queen in East's hand would be unimportant; spades could not be attacked by East.

The Post's New Yorker

By LEONARD LYONS

New York, June 7.

FOR A NUMBER OF HOURS, the other evening, Bernie Hart—who works backstage at the Ethel Barrymore Theater—tried to put through a phone call to his brother, Moss Hart, in Hollywood. After trying unsuccessfully for eight times, Bernie dropped a nickel into the coin box and phoned his mother at a mid-town hotel . . . "I'm sorry," the hotel operator said, "but your mother's busy on another wire talking to your brother in California—they've just called her" . . . "Cut me in on that conversation," Bernie directed, and the operator obliged. Result—the cheapest coast-to-coast call was made by Bernie Hart. It cost him one nickel.

HIS INTIMATES have wondered whether, in his domestic life, the Duke of Windsor will dominate the lady for whom the relinquished his throne—whether Edward, like the majority of American husbands, will become subservient to the little woman's whims . . . Apparently Edward will, for in the days when he was single, his swanky auto had a de luxe radio—a radio to which the Duchess always objected because she considered it dangerous for driving. The Duke always laughed off her complaint . . . The new car, which has just been purchased by the Duke and Duchess of Windsor has every modern automobile accessory—except a radio.

CHANNING POLLOCK, the playwright, just completed a movie epic along the lines of "Lloyds of London." It's a story for Freddie Bartholomew, and will be based upon the history of the Cunard Line . . . Ella Logan who, when she left Broadway for Hollywood, told us all that she wanted to get away from singing Scotch songs and doing comedy instead, gets her chance in "Woman Chases Man." Within two weeks after the picture started, she hurt her shoulder wrestling with Joel McCrea, fell out of a prop magnolia tree, got a bruised hip by falling down a flight of stairs, and lost two teeth by biting Erik Rhodes' ankle.

EDWARD DURYEA DOWLING, the Shubert stage manager for "The Show Is On," will be elevated to a producer and director status by the Shuberts. Dowling, who turned down a number of film offers, will produce and direct "Yipee" next fall . . . Herbert Clyde Lewis' book, "Gentleman Overboard," is going into its second printing . . . Ted Husing has bought himself a Greenwich Village swing band—Sharkey Bananas and his Sharks of Rhythm . . . Ethel Levey, the former Mrs. George M. Cohan, is very much distraught. The immigration authorities are deporting the maid who has been in her employ for 21 years.

JOE LEWIS, the clown, rejected the offer to succeed Jack Benny on his Sunday night broadcasts for the summer season. Lewis decided that the money offered was not enough to provide for good script-writers . . . Chad Ballard, the Yale senior, who owned the horses Quiet Please and Old Eli, went to Kentucky last week to buy more horses, and promised to name one of them John O'Hara. He met the novelist who asked: "Well, did you name the horse after me?" . . . "I couldn't find any good horses," Ballard explained, "so I compromised." He took O'Hara outside, showed him his new car, and announced with great pride: "I've named it 'John O'Hara!'"

Gov. George H. Earle of Pennsylvania addressed the Southern Society of Washington last Wednesday. In preparation for the event, the society drew up elaborate biographic material for the Washington correspondents—material on both the Governor and Mrs. Earle . . . In perfect seriousness, the society declared: "Gov. Earle is descended from a long line of ancestors" . . . Charlie Malcolmson brought this to the Governor's attention. "That certainly sets me apart," His Excellency commented. "But it seems to me fairly libelous on the rest of you who, I suppose, like Topsy—'just growed!'" cablegram from the Duchess of Atholl, head of the co-ordinating committee in Europe, which is aiding refugees from Spain. The message was said to have stressed the need for the United States "doing its share" in providing temporary homes for the war-terrified children.

Conference Expected.

Meanwhile, Secretary of Labor Perkins is expected to confer in New York today with representatives of the board of guardians. She held a similar conference last week with Mary Simkhovitch, well-known social worker and friend of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt; Helen Hall, head of the Henry Street Settlement, and Frank Bohn, general secretary of the board. These are the ones she will meet today.

One provision of the immigration law excludes children under 16 years, not accompanied by one parent, unless it can be shown there is no likelihood of them becoming public charges. Other provisions of the immigration law, administered by the Labor Department, have been cited by the State Department as possibly having a bearing, including one barring persons whose fare is paid by any association or other organization. Rapid developments are expected following Secretary Perkins' talk today with representatives of the board of guardians.

The first 100 of the children whom it is planned to bring here have been removed to France, he revealed.

Tribe's Sluggers Batter Nats' Hurlers to Win Contest by 17-to-5 Count

SPORTS — The Washington Post — SPORTS

* X — WASHINGTON: TUESDAY, JUNE 8, 1937 — 17

This Morning

Feller Has Official Whipping Boy.

Cleveland, June 7. — Bob Feller, the young fellow who achieved more strikeouts than any other pitcher in American League history, has also another distinction—he has an official "whipping boy."

Young Feller is no prince of the blood, but he does have a pitching arm that is variously valued at the princely figures of $100,000 and $200,000 and the Cleveland club is taking no chances on further injury to that costly flipper.

POVICH.

And so, when the Cleveland management finally decided to commit Feller for treatment for the mysterious malady which was troubling the lad's right arm, caution was the watchword.

* * * *

They hired a nerve and muscle specialist in Milwaukee by the name of F. B. Ohm to treat Feller, but it wasn't as simple as that. No, indeedy, before Dr. Ohm was permitted to treat Feller, there were certain precautions to be taken.

* * * *

They didn't want Feller's injury aggravated in any manner. They didn't want that valuable right arm tampered with unless everything would be kosher. So, as I was saying, they proceeded with care.

* * * *

Mr. C. C. Slapnicka, general manager of the Clevelands, had an idea. He would volunteer as a human guinea pig in the cause of Feller and first submit to the treatments in Milwaukee. He would risk his 49-year-old arm in the experiments, and proceed to Milwaukee as the official whipping boy to Bob Feller, a role probably akin to that of taster to the king and not to be confused with that of keeper of the lap dogs.

* * * *

He did. He went up to Milwaukee and let Ohm perform on his arm. Discovering that he was suffering from no ill effects, he then permitted Ohm to treat Feller.

* * * *

Well, Feller came back from Milwaukee yesterday, exuberant. He discovered, during a workout with the Milwaukee team after his treatment, that he could throw the ball with a fair amount of speed without that stabbing pain in his forearm. He's ready to pitch, he says, on the first truly warm day that arrives.

* * * *

Cleveland players were watching the results of Slapnicka's treatments at Milwaukee with more than passing interest. Because, if anything happened to the general manager's arm—well, who else could sign their salary checks?

In this the darkest hour of the season for the Nats, when they have lost four games in six starts in the West with their latest achievement a 17-5 licking today, Manager Bucky Harris waxed philosophical.

* * * *

"Show me a big league team that can win ball games with minor league pitching and I'll show you a flock of white blackbirds," said Harris. "It isn't being done—particularly by the Washington club. It can't be done.

* * * *

"Every time I think of the kind of pitchers that I'm supposed to win ball games with, I don't feel so bad about losing. It's no reflection on anybody but the pitchers, the way we've been losing games. I could be blessed with all the baseball managerial brains and we still couldn't win with that kind of pitching."

* * * *

Then Harris reflected. "You know," he resumed, "if I owned a ball team, there would be two items I'd be careful about, two things that mean as much to a club as anything I know and things that this Washington club doesn't have.

* * * *

"I mean a relief pitcher and a pair of pinch hitters. If we had a fellow who could go out there and stop those late inning uprisings by the other fellows, we'd have a fair chance of pulling through on two pitching cylinders. If we had a Fred Marberry or a Cy Moore, or a Jack Russell when he was good, I don't think I'd have a complaint with my pitching. But when you have to string along with guys who can't finish a game, you're licked before you start.

* * * *

"And I'd want two good pinch hitters—a right-hander and a left-hander—to throw in there when we needed a base hit. I'd want some assurance that we have a fair chance of getting that base hit when we need it—just a fair chance, that's all I ask. You appreciate that after you've been forced to stick guys in there who have no more right pinch hitting than I have."

Three Navy Crews Are Off for Camp

Annapolis, Md., June 7 (AP).—The three Naval Academy crews that will row in the Poughkeepsie Regatta on June 22 will leave here on Sunday to continue their training at the Navy Camp on the Hudson River.

Ensign J. M. MaMahan, U. S. N., will be in charge of the 31 oarsmen making up the varsity, junior and plebe crews.

Sad Sam Gray Back.

San Angelo, Tex., June 7 (AP).—Sad Sam Gray, American League pitcher for 11 years with Philadelphia and St. Louis, was back in baseball today as manager of the Iraan team of the Permian Basin League.

Cascarella, Linke Prove No Puzzle

Griff Slabmen Pitch and Duck; Indians Get 15 Safe Hits.

By Shirley Povich.
A Staff Correspondent.

Cleveland, June 7.—Ed Linke and a guy named Joe—Joe Cascarella—pitched the Nats to a stirring 17-5 defeat against the Cleveland Indians today.

With a variation of the old Michigan football formula of pass, punt and pray, Cascarella and Linke this afternoon were working on the basis of pitch, pray—and duck.

And so it was that when the Nats came up with a two-run rally in the ninth inning, they fell exactly 12 runs short of tying the score.

Cascarella and Linke somehow escaped bodily injury as the Indians sent a 15-hit bombardment crashing in and out of League Park. Hits were whistling past their ears in every inning but one—the sixth—and Cleveland runs were crossing the plate in all but three innings.

The Indians commenced proceedings rather mildly against Cascarella. They scored only four runs off him in the first inning. But in the third, they began to warm up against the crooning right-hander with an eight-run assault.

Linke had a part in that eight-run third inning, though. The Injuns had scored only four runs off Cascarella in that third when Linke came to his rescue. He immediately pitched a two-bagger to Roy Weatherly that scored another run and then, bending himself to his task, Linke pitched a home run to Earl Averill, whose clout over the centerfield wall scored the Injuns' sixth, seventh and eighth runs of the inning.

After that the Indians were comparatively helpless against Linke's consistent pitching. They scored only two runs in the fourth, added only two more in the fifth and were almost shut out in the eighth, when they picked up another run.

At one point in the proceedings, as early as the fourth inning, the Indians had given old Earl Whitehill a 14-0 lead to nurse along. During that period, the ancient former Washington left-hander was pitching one-hit baseball against his old mates.

There were a couple of errors—by Joe Kuhel and Cecil Travis—mixed up in these big first and third innings, but in the main the Indians had Cascarella to thank for their runs. He got off to a sour start by walking the first two hitters to face him in the opening inning and he began the third inning by pitching a triple to Averill.

Cascarella also threw a wild pitch into that eight-run third inning, let a man steal second while he was winding up and otherwise managed to pitch himself onto the Nats' Chattanooga farm team. But there were no frills on Linke's work. He stuck to straightaway pitching, such as it was.

There's not much sense in reporting how Washington scored its five runs. They didn't even make the score look halfway respectable.

Tonight the Nats entrained for a three-game series at St. Louis where, as the turf writers say, they will be dropped down into cheaper company. Here in Cleveland, they were playing against quality folks.

Frick Fines Wilson.

New York, June 7 (AP).—President Ford Frick, of the National League, today fined Manager Jimmy Wilson, of Philadelphia, $100 for holding up yesterday's second game against St. Louis, forcing the umpires to rule the contest a forfeit in St. Louis' favor.

Feller's Arm Improved; May Pitch Within Week

Milwaukee, Wis., June 7 (AP).—Bob Feller, youthful pitcher of the Cleveland Baseball Club who has been bothered by a sore arm since April, will be able to hurl a regular game within a week, F. B. Ohm, who treated him last week, said today.

Ohm said the muscle injury in Feller's right arm was virtually healed when he left for Cleveland Saturday.

Lower right, Zota McCall, attractive Hyattsville lassie, pins a medal on smiling Tommy Fields, a schoolmate, after he broke the 880-yard State scholastic record with a run of 2 minutes 3-10 seconds.

Five Veterans English Ryder Cup Choices

By the Associated Press.

London, June 7.—Evidently believing her golfers, like good wine, are bound to improve with age, England today chose five of the crew which beat America in the Ryder Cup matches at Southport four years ago for another fling at the invaders when the international professional cup series is held over the same layout June 29-30.

These veterans — Arthur Lacey, Percy Alliss, Alf Padgham, Charles Whitcombe and Alf Perry—will form the backbone of the British side. The remaining five, picked after careful study this spring, include Henry Cotton, the greatest personality in British golf; Richard Burton, W. J. Cox, Sam King and Dave Rees. Burton and Cox were members of the 1935 team which went down to overwhelming defeat at Ridgewood, N. J.; King and Rees are sensational young newcomers.

The team, as a whole, average 31 years in age. The oldest member is Whitcombe, at 41. He is listed as the playing captain but probably will join Walter Hagen, nonplaying captain of the American team, on the sidelines.

The inclusion of Cotton, who was ineligible for the last two teams because he was a resident of Belgium, adds both color and strength to the British squad. British Open champion of 1934 and third to Padgham in the Open last year, Cotton generally is rated the greatest of British players.

King, another assistant pro, was runner-up in the $10,000 Daily Mail match play championship last year and won it this season against the cream of this country's professionals.

Hagen, Tony Manero, Denny Shute, Gene Sarazen, Henry Picard, Horton Smith and Johnny Revolta have been named definitely to the American Cup team which will sail for England June 16. The other four members will be chosen on the basis of performances in the United States Open starting at Birmingham, Mich., Thursday.

German Players Reach Davis Cup Semifinal

Milan, June 7 (U.P.).—Germany reached the semifinal round of Davis Cup tennis competition today when Henner Henckel defeated Vanni Campele, 3—6, 6—3, 6—1, 6—4.

Germany split the opening singles matches and won the one doubles match. This reduced the final match, Baron Gottfried von Cramm vs. Georgio de Stefani, to an exhibition status. Von Cramm won, 6—0, 6—1, 6—4, so the score of the tie was 4 matches to 1.

Miss Traung Defeated in British Golf

Phyllis Wade Also Loses in First Round of Big Tourney.

By the Associated Press.

Turnberry, Scotland, June 7.—The defeats of Dorothy Traung, husky San Francisco girl, and Phyllis Wade, former English title-holder, supplied the only first round upsets in the British Women's Golf Championship today as two other Americans, Barbara Thompson, of Los Altos, Calif., and Betty Beuchner, of Glen Cove, N. Y., safely advanced to the second round.

Miss Traung, runner-up for the U. S. championship in 1934 and one of the game's longest hitters, succumbed 2 and 1 to a strong sea breeze and an equally strong finish by Winifred Berry, champion of Lancashire for three straight years.

The wind so demoralized her game on the closing holes that the American didn't even finish two of them.

Miss Wade, the only other prominent casualty, hooked and sliced herself into defeat at the hands of a virtually unknown, Mrs. J. C. Clement, 3 and 2.

Miss Thompson won easily from Mrs. Dorothy Langford, of England, 4 and 2, taking a lead at the third hole she never relinquished.

Miss Beuchner, however, was forced to travel three extra holes of a raggedly played match to eliminate Betty Frost, of South Africa, one up at the twenty-first. The American girl was one up going to the eighteenth but drove into rough and lost her ball. She finally won, however, with a steady four on the 360-yard twenty-first where Miss Frost was in sand with her drive and then overplayed her second.

Shenandoah Valley Baseball Fans to Honor Huffman Here

Baseball fans of the Shenandoah Valley will turn out en masse Sunday, June 20, to pay homage to a native son who has graduated to the majors as catcher for the St. Louis Browns.

The man to be honored by the caravan of fans is Benny Huffman. The occasion is the Shenandoah Valley-Washington Post Day at Griffith Stadium.

A special section of seats has been reserved for the hundreds of fans expected to join in the testimonial to the success of this young man, who is making his first start in big time baseball.

Co-operating with The Washington Post to make this day a real tribute to Huffman are the various chambers of commerce throughout the valley. Additional co-operation is being given the event by both newspapers and radio stations of the valley.

Shirley Povich, Post baseball writer and columnist, will go into a huddle with Rogers Hornsby, manager of the Browns, in St. Louis today to complete arrangements for the event. Virtually all arrangements have been completed with the Nationals to make it a gala day for the visiting fans.

The hundreds of fans who will attend the game wil receive from their chamber of commerce a ticket which will entitled them to a seat in the special section when presented with a general admission ticket, to be purchased at the gate.

Volney G. Burnett, representing the District Fire Department, gave a National Open aspect to the interdepartmental tournament at Indian Spring yesterday, touring the Four Corners layout in 70-69, 139, three under par, and a new record in the 11-year history of the event.

An eagle and seven birdies featured the card of the host club star, winner of the medal in two Invitation tournaments during the past month. A tee shot that stopped in a tractor track on the tenth hole of his second round cost Volney a 6, two over par.

The score is one of the lowest ever posted in the District for any event, professional or amateur. Three duces, two of them on the difficult par 3 seventeenth hole and another resulting from a 45-foot putt on the ninth, aided in Burnett's record-breaking round, five strokes lower than the previous record of the tourney, posted by Tom Belshe at Kenwood three years ago.

Burton Trails Burnett.

Robert Burton, the public links star, trailed Burnett, rallying for a 72 in the afternoon after a morning 79. Gene Pittman, running into difficulty on the last three holes, tied with Tom Belshe, three-time winner of the event, for third low gross among the Class A golfers with 77-75, 152. Belshe exhibited a wobbly putting performance, three-putting nine greens.

Burnett's net of 135 was also low for the day. D. N. Hevener, Agriculture, led the Class B participants in low net and gross with a 79-91, 170, and a net 140. The 79 was the lowest score of his career. Willy Fox, G. A. O., and M. T. Young, G. P. O., tied for second nets with 143.

H. Bjorkland led the Class C group, with a net 145, after shooting 96 and 88 for temporary low gross honors. Jack Lynch, Class A, started his first round 4 over par for three holes and finished with a 74, playing the next 16 holes in one under par, he scored 83 in the second round.

Mellon Cup Today.

The event will wind up today with the second half of the starting field of 172 entries playing. Team trophies will be decided including the Andrew Mellon and the John Marshall cups. Burnett's score is the only one expected to stand up under the second day shooting.

Sopwith Here for Race.

New York, June 7 (AP).—T. O. M. Sopwith arrived from England today to challenge for the America's Cup, world's most famous yachting trophy, scheduled to start off Newport, R. I., July 31. He was accompanied by Mrs. Sopwith. Sopwith said that he was still uncertain which of the Endeavourers would be used in the challenge.

Outdoor Wrestling Card Is Completed

A strong supporting cast for the feature event between Steve Casey and Hank Barber in Washington's first outdoor wrestling show was completed yesterday when Promoter Joe Turner announced a semifinal match and three preliminaries.

Mike Mazurki, former athletic star at Manhattan College, will swap growls and groans with Joe Cox, the Kansas "Bad Man," in the semi-windup.

Three preliminaries, 30 minutes each, between Wee Willie Davis and Reb Russell, Jack Kennedy and Jack Hader and George Lenihan and Bob Roberts will complete the card.

Nats Release Rookie Gray To Baltimore

21-Year-Old Catcher Is Sent to Orioles on Request.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cleveland, Ohio, June 7.—Milton Gray, the 21-year-old catcher whose purchase by the Nats was proudly announced ten days ago by Clark Griffith, today was returned to the Baltimore Orioles.

The tall, good-looking youth was bought by the Nats on an optional agreement for what Griffith said was "a considerable sum."

The Washington club paid Baltimore a sizable amount, estimated at $5,000, when Gray joined the team and under the terms of the deal, was to pay Baltimore a sum reported at $10,000 additional if he were retained after September 10. Their first payment to Gray was returned to the Nats when the deal was called off today.

Gray had figured in only two games with the Nats.

Manager Bucky Harris, commenting today on the rookie's release, declared the Baltimore club asked that the deal be canceled and that Griffith complied as a favor to General Manager Jack Ogden of the Orioles.

"Ogden said that the Orioles needed a catcher badly and we weren't averse to letting him go," said Harris. "Our catching situation is not as black as it was when we took on Gray."

Harris indicated that he was not pleased with what he had seen of Gray's throwing arm, although he was impressed with the lad's speed and hitting possibilities.

In consideration of Griffith's act in cancelling the deal, the Baltimore club is expected to offer the Nats another opportunity to buy Gray at the end of the 1937 season if his play warrants another major league trial.

Despite the most recent disappearance of Cliff Bolton and the departure of Gray, the Washington club's catching department is now performing at its season's peak. Shanty Hogan has been staging an amazing comeback and Walter Millies' work has been thoroughly satisfactory.

Helen Jacobs Hurt; May Have to Rest

By the Associated Press.

London, June 7.—Helen Jacobs may not be able to defend her Wimbledon singles tennis championship this year.

Osteopaths who are treating the Berkeley, Calif., girl for a strained shoulder and back said today they were doubtful she would recover in time to play in the Wimbledon tournament starting June 21. Ill for several weeks, Miss Jacobs has not been able to practice since the French hard court championships in which she lost a quarter-final round match to Jadwiga Jedrzejowska, of Poland.

Two of the American delegation of seven were shuttled to the sidelines, but Alice Marble, American singles queen; Dorothy Andrus and Katherine Winthrop all survived play in women's singles, and Hal Surface and Charles Harris advanced to the second round in the men's division.

Post Notes on Fishin' . . . . By Bill Ackerman

By Bill Ackerman,
Post's All Outdoors Editor.

Although the blues are still striking at Oregon Inlet, they are small, from 1 to 2 pounds. One angler last week got 98 in addition to 23 black drum that weighed up to 40 pounds. Another big striped bass caught at Wachapreague, 40½ pounds. Channel bass averaging 11 to the boat. At Gloucester Point, Va., there are plenty of bluefish, but they are exceedingly shy in biting. Capt. T. S. Clopton caught two cabio on June 2, weighing 28 and 39 pounds. This is the third catch of cabio noted from this section. This fishing is worth a try any time from now on. Weakfish of fair size are running in the river.

ACKERMAN

Catches at Solomons had in no way improved as late as Saturday evening. Capt. Dick Lore was advising everyone not to come down or go out. The Middles have produced some catches, but no blues. Certainly far from the fishing that is to be expected at this time of the year. A thought for this section, is the wreck of the Texas, particularly for boats from Smiths Point on down the Virginia shore. If weaks are biting anywhere, it is there, and generally they are not found wanting in size.

Fishing in the Wicomico at Rock Point this past week has been productive of some fair catches of spot, perch and rock up to 3 pounds.

Leaving Washington on the 9 o'clock Eastern Airliner this morning, as guests of Eastern Air Line to attend the grand get-together and luncheon of fishing editors in New York at 12:30 are Fish Commissioner Frank Bell, chief of black bass section, U. S. Bureau of Fisheries Talbot Denmead; George Huber, Fulton Lewis, jr., Irving Castell and Bill Briggs, Washington's Eastern representative, and host for the trip. Writers of things piscatorial from all over the East will be there.

Speaking of Eastern Air Line, Bill Berlin has been making a survey of the Florida west coast fishing so that first-hand information will be available to the great number of anglers using the facilities of the line to get quickly to and from their sport in southern Florida and Bimini. Eastern also operates a service to Mobile, where on August 9, 10, 11 is to be held the ninth annual Alabama deep sea rodeo. Eastern's tie-up with Pan American makes it a simple matter to enjoy the fast opening fishing in the Caribs, and not many days ago the first experimental flight was made to Bermuda, that in a few weeks will give to the angler a five-hour trip, instead of the 42 by boat that is now necessary. Like Miami, it will be made into a week-end reality for the angler who finds it necessary to take his fun in small doses.

If you don't think there is real interest in the Bahamas tuna fishing—note this fact—dock space at Bimini last week was almost at a premium. There were 37 sport fishing boats hailing from almost every large Eastern and near Middle Western city, at this little English island town.

From Bimini, also, is taken the prize story of the week. After hooking a giant bluefin tuna, estimated by several capable guides to weigh between 800 and 1,000 pounds, while it was in plain sight on the surface; fighting it for 8 hours and 50 minutes, during which time the next to impossible was accomplished in catching or killing four large sharks seeking the hooked fish, only to lose it by having the line cut by another shark.

Truly a heartbreaking experience for any angler, but then that is part of this game, just one of the many hazards that make it so exciting and desirable.

Sarah Moore Wins Opening Singles Match

Baltimore, Md., June 7.—Anne Harrison, only Baltimorean seeded in the Maryland State women's tennis tournament at the Baltimore Country Club, and Sarah Moore, of Washington, seeded fifth, advanced in the preliminary round today.

Miss Harrison, ranked sixth, eliminated Ruth Sower, one of the 13 Washingtonians entered, by 6—1, 6—1, and Miss Moore conquered Jane Shanahan in love sets.

Three other seeded aspirants will fulfill their engagements tomorrow. They are Mrs. Stanley Robinson, No. 2; Edith Clark, No. 3, and Frances Grimes, No. 4. Mary Cootes, seeded No. 1, withdrew from the tournament.

School Golf Play Won by Rough Riders

District Amateur Champion Bobby Brownell, captain of Roosevelt High School's golf team, piloted the Rough Riders to a victory in the Dawes Cup play for interscholastic golf supremacy, defeating Tech yesterday, 7½ to 1½, to clinch the title. The match was played at Kenwood.

Western, second place team, plays Central next Saturday but even if they win their percentage will fall 133 points behind the victors. Roosevelt won five matches, tied one and lost two, bowing only to Wilson High last week.

Yesterday's results—Brownell defeated Kelly, 5 and 4; Cook beat Stevens, 6 and 5, and Roosevelt won the best ball, 5 and 4. Liebman won over Blank, 4 and 2, and Remsen defeated Smith, 2 and 1, in the second match, Tech halving the best ball.

Brousseau was 5 and 4 winner over Jones in the next match, while Goodman defeated Callingo, 4 and 3, and the Rough Riders, on the best ball, 5 and 4.

D. C. Netmen Win Baltimore Matches

Baltimore, June 7.—Eddie Fuller, one of the University of North Carolina tennis team, led the field of 86 players into the fourth round on th opening day of the Maryland State championship tournament today at the Baltimore Country Club.

Fuller drew a first round bye, disposed of Ed Griepenkerl, a local player, in the second, and conquered Graig Nell, member of the University of California team, in the third. Fuller was ahead of the field, for no other third round match was played today.

One of the finest matches of the day was played in the afternoon. The result was the elimination of George Dufnig, of Texas, by Hugh Lynch, of Washington. Lynch had his hands full with the Texan, who came into his game after losing the first set at 6—2. The second developed into a real battle, with Lynch slightly superior in his all-court game.

Barney Welsh, the Rockville player who holds the sixteenth ranking nationally, was not extended by F. Bart Harvey, Welsh won by 6—1, 6—4.

Mrs. Hartig's 377 Captures Hinshaw Cup

Mrs. B. C. Hartig, with a gross of 377 for the 72-hole event, won the Wade W. Hinshaw Trophy at Columbia yesterday in the first play of an event that will be an annual fixture on the Columbia women's golf calendar.

Mrs. Briggs Simpich won the low net with 339. Mrs. J. W. Beller was second with 342, and Mrs. Norman Frost won the special 18-hole low gross prize, shooting an 88 yesterday. The donor presented the trophies following the play.

Mrs. Ethel Anderson, Mrs. Mildred Bohlander and Mrs. Elizabeth Smith won prizes in the Argyle Club's weekly ladies' tournament, concluded yesterday.

Mrs. K. S. Giles announced that entries for the District of Columbia women's championship close at 1 p. m. Friday. The course will be open Friday morning for practice rounds for the participants.

Illness forced the withdrawal of Mrs. L. G. Pray, Manor Club, while Mrs. G. F. Goetzmen, of Congressional, was a post entry.

Tigers Win; Wade Holds Yanks Safe

Rookie Gives Up 4 Hits; Chisox Beat Macks; Browns Triumph.

Detroit, June 7 (AP).—Young Jake Wade and hard-hitting Hank Greenberg today carried the Tigers to a 4-3 victory over the New York Yankees in the deciding battle of their three-game series. The defeat cut the Yanks' American League lead to a game over the Cleveland Indians and Chicago White Sox, both of whom won today and who are separated by five percentage points.

Greenberg's fourteenth home run of the year, which cleared the left field fence and drove in Charley Gehringer, who had singled ahead of him, provided the winning margin in the sixth. Wade, meanwhile, limited the champions to four hits, one a homer by Joe DiMaggio, and struck out nine while pitching his first complete game and chalking up his second triumph.

The southpaw six-footer lost in a strikeout duel with Lefty Gomez, who fanned 11, but Gomez was nicked for eight hits. Wade twice retired the side on strikeouts, in the first and third, and sent five men in a row away swinging in the second and third.

Detroit scored its first run in the second, on successive singles by Goose Goslin, Marvin Owen and Ray Hayworth after Gomez had fanned Greenberg and Gerald Walker. Pete Fox's triple drove in Hayworth, who had singled, in the fifth, and in the sixth Greenberg blasted his four-bagger.

3 Winners Brought In By Palumbo

By Walter Haight.

A Staff Correspondent.

Charles Town, June 7.—You won't see the movies of one of the greatest rides ever witnessed by this reporter. From Florida to Narragansett and from Churchill Downs to Santa Anita, I've seen boys perform on the backs of horses, but seldom if ever have I seen anything to match the saddle job turned in by Jockey Sammy Palumbo here this afternoon.

It was aboard Flosilda, a game filly and a $4.60 favorite, that Palumbo carved his masterpiece. Given a large dose of poor racnig luck at the start, Palumbo found himself in trouble on at least three other occasions, but overcame all obstacles to bring the daughter of Wrack out into the open in the late stretch to win by two lengths.

It is regrettable that only 3,500 turf fans witnessed the ride and even those who wagered their money on other horses recognized a great effort.

On the outside of the line-up of six horses, Flosilda bolted out of the starting gate and set sail for the fence. The field had reached the judges' stand before Palumbo could straighten the filly. But going to the first turn, Palumbo watched his chance and began sliding the filly toward the inside rail, her only hope now being to save ground.

"Sifted" is about the only word that covers what Palumbo managed to accomplish at that first turn. He had Flosilda almost running sideways and, miraculously, did not interfere with a horse as he went to the inside. Here Palumbo received a break for Happy Joe carried Barnstormer and Sylvia G. slightly wide.

But there was more trouble ahead. Stingaree and Happy Joe were battling for the pace, with Barnstormer lapped on them. Palumbo now had Flosilda fourth, but she was blocked by a wall of flying hoofs. A move to the outside would have cost the filly many lengths and perhaps the race. Palumbo was forced to jerk up on her. Not once, but several times, Palumbo believed he saw the necessary room, but each time the hole closed.

As the leaders entered the stretch, Happy Joe was stopping on the outside. Stingaree and Barnstormer were still closely packed. Palumbo awaited his chance. It came. Barnstormer swung out not more than the width of a horse. Palumbo was ready. It appeared that he had to pull in his elbows to keep from bumping the other riders. Somehow he came through.

And once through he rode like an antimated demon to the wire. A million dollar ride for a $20 fee.

Palumbo rode his third winner of the day as Pass took the sixth race by a neck from Jim Moss, one that drew far out while setting the pace. Fife took third money in the group of seven.

Prince Pettie scored a surprise win at a $46.10 mutuel in the seventh.

Goodwine proved a "good thing" in the first race. Backed into a slight favorite, the Sun God II filly outclassed her rivals over the 4½-furlong course. Can Bloom was second, six lengths behind the winner, with Gloriosky third in the limited field of eight. Goodwine, piloted by Sammy Palumbo, paid a $6.40 mutuel.

Gee Sharp, a 5-year-old mare, won her way out of the maiden class in the day's second race, taking a lip decision from Tom's Boy, a 71-1 shot. Third money was gathered by Tuleyries Star. The chief part of the battle was between Gee Sharp and Tom's Boy, with the latter setting the pace. In the stretch Gee Sharp moved up smartly under the hand of Jockey Berg. The winner paid $7.80.

Stepping in took a neck decision in the third race, with Gaylass a charging second. Black Ribbon, the pacemaker most of the way, lasted to be third. Steppnig In was Berg's second winner, and a $6.20 mutuel resulted.

Jockey R. Root rode Tweety, a $4.80 favorite, to victory in the fourth race, the daughter of On Watch having a half-length advantage over Tuleyries Ruby. The two were together entering the stretch, and Jockey Machado claimed a foul against the winner. However, the "official" was soon displayed.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—GEE SHARP, $7.80, $4.20, $3.00; TOMS BOY, $29.60, $10.00; TULEYRIES STAR, $3.40.

GEE SHARY, closest to the pace of TOMS BOY from the start, rallied to drive in the stretch to catch rival in the final stride. TOMS BOY opened a good lead, was steadied along while saving ground and weakened in the closing sixteenth. TULEYRIES STAR went evenly throughout. NO MISTAKES, allowed to race on his own HANDLEY could not threaten and pulled up sore.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—STEPPING IN, $6.20, $4.20, $2.80; GAYLASS, $6.60, $4.20; BLACK RIBBON, $2.60.

STEPPING IN, steered out of trouble along the backstretch while forwardly placed, came to the outside with a rush to be up in the final 20 yards. GAYLASS, forced wide for racing room entering the stretch, closed gamely and was wearing the winner down. BLACK RIBBON was used up setting the pace and weakened. BY SURPRISE tired after pressing the pace under hustling tactics. REIGH TETRARCH was not good enough. JORDAN ROSE ran out at every turn.

DAILY DOUBLE PAID $24.40.

FOURTH RACE—Charles Town course. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:03½. Off at 4:07½. Winner, Mrs. B. A. Two-dollar mutuels paid—TWEETY, $4.80, $2.80, $2.40; TULEYRIES RUBY, $3.60, $2.60; LITTLE WHISK, $3.00.

TWEETY, eased back off the pace of TULEYRIES RUBY after being in front for a quarter, came around the leader entering the stretch and, under good handling, was drawing clear at the end. TULEYRIES RUBY was rushed up to take command going to the far turn and continued willingly, but could not resist the winner. LITTLE WHISK saved ground and closed courageously. TURN UP had good speed, but received little help from the rider. JUSTA TOWN was listlessly handled.

FIFTH RACE—Six and a half furlongs. Purse, $500. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:38½. Winner, Mrs. H. Horst's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—FLOSILDA, $4.60, $3.00, $2.40; STINGAREE, $5.60, $2.80; BARNSTORMER, $2.40.

FLOSILDA, excellently handled, swerved out at the break, was taken to the rail to save ground at the first turn, was blocked repeatedly swinging for the stretch, came through in tight quarters to take command in the early stretch and was drawing out at the end. STINGAREE raced HAPPY JOE into defeat and continued gamely, but was no match for the winner. BARNSTORMER was carried out by HAPPY JOE at the first turn and weakened in the closing stages. SYLVIA G. was carried wide at the first turn. HAPPY JOE stopped after a half.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:06½. Off at 5:09. Winner, Mrs. V. Arthur's ch. g. (6), by Chance Shot—Maragoassa. Trained by V. Arthur. Value to winner, $350; second, $75; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:48 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PASS, $7.60, $4.20, $3.00; JIM MOSS, $14.40, $8.60; FIFE, $3.60.

PASS, taken under steadying restraint while forwardly placed and saving ground, rallied when paced to a drive and was up in the concluding strides. JIM BOOM drew in front in the opening quarter and weakened gradually after a half. FIFE was hard ridden. PORPHYRY closed with good speed after being outrun. HOLLAND stopped after chasing the early pace.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:33½. Off at 5:33½. Winner, Bishop and Watts' ch. h. (5), by Stimulus—Palestra. Trained by R. C. Watts. Value to winner, $350; second, $75; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:54 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PRINCE PETTIE, $46.40, $16.80, $6.20; CROWDED HOURS, $3.80, $3.40; BAV, $4.80.

PRINCE PETTIE, steadied along while setting the pace, rallied to punishment in the late stages to outlast CROWDED HOURS. The latter, closest to the pace from the beginning, closed gamely and was bothered by loose leg bandage. BAV saved much ground entering the stretch and closed willingly. JIM BROWN tired. CANIMAR rallied only mildly for the final drive. The others showed nothing.

EIGHTH RACE WAS DECLARED OFF.

London Pegs Gold to Check Outflow to U. S.

NewPrice Equal to $34.72, Advance of 9.8 Cents an Ounce.

By the Associated Press.

London, June 7.—The price of bar gold was pegged at $34.72 a fine ounce on the London market today in an effort to stem the flow of gold to the United States. The new price was an advance of 9.8 cents to the ounce. The new price cut the profit which exporters of bullion stood to make from shipments to the United States.

At today's price for the pound sterling shippers of gold stood to profit about 5 cents an ounce, compared with around 14 cents Saturday.

The narrowing of the margin between the London price and the government-fixed price of $35 an ounce in New York made shipment less profitable and tended to discourage selling on the London market.

London sales today were 262 bars, valued at about $3,636,000, as compared with 465 bars valued at about $6,484,000 Saturday.

Shipping Costs.

Bullion dealers explained it costs about 23 cents an ounce to ship gold to New York for sale at the $35 price so shippers must buy at less than $34.77 an ounce in order to make a profit.

What part the British equalization fund might have played in the move today was not disclosed. The bullion brokers who fixed the price said it was the result of a "smaller supply and an increased demand."

For two weeks an unprecedented total of about $84,000,000 in gold has been sold on the London market, giving rise to fears that the strain would be too great for the governments of both Great Britain and the United States to readily handle.

The new gold in English monetary terms of 140 shillings 8½ pence an ounce or up 5 pence.

Most of the gold that was sold was said to be owned by continental interests, and hoarded in London. The unloading was prolonged by fears of a reduction in the American gold price, despite official statements from the United States which scouted such reports.

Retail Advertising 19.2% Over Year Ago

Chicago, June 7.—Retail display advertising for the week ended May 29 hit a record gain for 1937 when it soared to 19.2 per cent above the coorresponding week of last year, Advertising Age announced today.

This statement is based on tabulations covering retail display advertising in 78 important cities which show a total of 22,091,065 lines for the reported week, against 18,534,455 lines in the corresponding week of 1936.

The Market

By Carlton A. Shively, A Special Correspondent.

Stocks Irregular in Desultory Trading; Bonds Steady; Wheat and Cotton Lower.

New York, June 7.—Until toward the close when prices weakened a little, the stock market was mildly higher in a dull session. The late weakness sprang from the enervating influence of small dealings as much as from anything else. Stock turnover was 584,780 shares. High-grade bonds were firm. Dollars were a trifle under francs and firm against sterling. Commodity markets were mixed. Grain, cotton and rubber did poorly. September wheat closed ¾ of a cent lower at 106⅛ cents a bushel.

Wall Street went to work after reading the usual press headlines of strikes, riots, sabotage and general indications that corporations nowadays live in sufferance of labor, on the operating side, and of the Government on the profit side. In spite of all that the good crop prospects, the satisfaction of years of inhibited demand for goods and the world-wide steady if slow recovery from the depression are holding business to a comparatively high level. Securities hold their dangers to the investor, but he is harassed any place he turns, and the abundance of money assures the markets of some friends, even though speculators now and then will grow frightened.

Rising Cost.

On the financial side of the important news of the day was the promised Treasury statement on its June 15 financing. The $800,000,000 to be borrowed will be split in two. Half will be offered as two-year notes at 1¾ per cent and a half as five-year notes at 1¾ per cent, the average being about in line with the market's anticipations. The new issues were well liked as to terms and a premium was quoted on a when-issued basis, as the banks are keen for short-term investments, to say nothing of the stored-up demand from the recently rising foreign funds on deposit here.

The point is nevertheless noticed that the interest rate which the Treasury proposes to pay is the highest in three years and is quite steep compared with that of last December's short-term borrowing. Since the end of last year two factors have been at work in the money market: (1) the further rise in bank reserve requirements, and (2) the greater commercial demand for funds. Other influences of a less tangible nature are the changing psychology of the market, which expects before many months a considerably higher level of interest rates; disappointment over the continued failure of the Government to balance its budget; the rise in debt on gold sterilization; the outlook for inflation.

Deception.

Appropos the latest Treasury financing the murkiness around one point needs to be cleared. Of the $800,000,000 now being borrowed, $500,000,000 is tagged as new money; the remainder is allocated for retirement of an equal amount of Treasury discount bills. Either the Treasury actually is borrowing the full $800,000,000 in new money, or it is definitely engaged in the practice of first meeting immediate cash needs with the weekly discount bill issues and later refunding them into short and medium termed debt, which eventually will pass into long-term debt.

This is not the first time that notes or bonds have been floated to raise funds for the retirement of discount bills. It has now happened often enough to put the burden of explanation upon the Treasury, which has insisted all along that the discount bills were not to enter the funded debt, but were merely to be regarded as tax revenue anticipation borrowing. Used otherwise they are bad in principle, for at the time of borrowing the cash they give a distorted view of the Treasury's money costs. The interest equivalent rate on the discount bills is still low, but the rate is steadily rising on the notes and bonds into which refunding later takes place. The discount bills make it too easy to continue wasteful spending at Washington.

Reassurance on Gold.

Now that gold has become the preoccupation of the early summer markets, any change in feeling on the subject is bound to affect prices. On this side the recent statement of President Roosevelt that no change will be made in the gold price was taken as just another in a long series of such references, but for one reason or another, perhaps in the wording of the remarks, the foreign markets paid more attention than they heretofore have done. Much of the price hardening in the London market today was attributed to reassurance over gold.

Some day the impression will deepen that one who holds political high office by virtue of his promise to inflate commodity prices, to give everybody more money, to soak the rich and generally to whoop things up is about as likely to turn backward along the inflationary trail as he is to balance the budget or to resign. A dilemma on gold may be granted, but much as the administration dreads the pain that will follow an inflationary boom, it just hasn't the heart to pull markets down by cutting the gold price; nor is that a wise thing to do.

Foreign funds have been piling up in New York banks, coming partly from liquidation of hoarded gold. They probably would go into securities here as confidence in an unchanged gold policy returns.

Steel Operations Dip to 76.2 Per Cent

New York, June 7 (AP).—Operations in the steel industry for the current week declined 1.2 points to 76.2 per cent of capacity, compared with 77.4 per cent last week, the American Iron & Steel Institute estimated today. A month ago operations averaged 91.2 per cent of capacity, while a year ago the rate was 69.5 per cent.

L. Clark Brown New President Of Bond Club

Chauncey G. Parker, Jr., Is Vice President of Local Organization.

By Thomas M. Cahill.

L. Clark Brown, of Brown, Goodwyn & Olds, was elected president of the Bond Club of Washington at its recent annual outing at the Manor Club. Mr. Brown has been vice president of the club and succeeds Thomas C. Montgomery, of Waggaman, Brawner & Co., who becomes a member of the board of governors.

Other officers elected were Chauncey G. Parker, jr., of Auchincloss, Parker & Redpath, vice president; George M. Ferris, of George M. Ferris & Co., secretary and treasurer, and Frank M. Hall, of Hall, Peters & Bryson, member of the governors. The election of officers was the only business action of a day full of sports events, concluding with a dinner in the evening.

The nominating committee was headed by K. S. Wales, and Mr. Montgomery, the retiring president, reported the club's membership as being the largest in its history. E. B. Olds, jr., was general chairman in charge of the outing and was assisted by the following committee chairmen: Charles C. Ailes, banquet; Myles H. Quail, tickets; C. Bayne Marbury, putting contest; Richard P. Dunn, golf; Frank J. Rapee, horseshoe pitching; Donald H. McKnew, prizes; Harold C. Patterson, stock exchange.

A. I. B. Convention.

Thirteen delegates represent Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, at the national convention of the institute this week in St. Paul, Minn. They include Paul J. Seltzer, American Security & Trust Co., immediate past president of the chapter; William H. Laughlin, Washington Loan & Trust Co., new president of the chapter; Ralph Endicott and Edward M. Blaiklock, Washington Loan & Trust Co.; I. J. Roberts and John M. Christie, Riggs National Bank; Joseph R. Fitzpatrick, Second National Bank; George M. Rowzee and George R. Gallagher, Lincoln National Bank; G. Elmer Flather, Union Trust Co.; T. Hunton Leith, Security Savings & Commercial Bank, and J. Earle McGeary, W. B. Hibbs & Co. Messrs. Roberts, Seltzer, McGeary, Fitzpatrick and Endicott will address the business sessions of the convention.

Bank Auditors to Elect.

The annual election of the auditors section of the District of Columbia Bankers Association will be held Thursday evening at Wardman Park Hotel, where the group will have its annual dinner meeting. Millard S. Yeatman, retiring chairman of the section, will preside and approximately 75 members and guests are expected in attendance. It is expected that Harry Downey will be advanced from the vice chairmanship and Gerald Keene, present secretary-treasurer, will be promoted to the vice chairmanship. The section's annual report will be made and Thomas J. Groom, president of the association, will address the meeting.

East Washington Trustees.

At the recent annual meeting of stockholders of East Washington Savings Bank, the following 15 trustees were elected to serve the ensuing administrative year: John C. W. Beal, T. Earle Bourne, Charles A. Carr, James A. Donohoe, Gratz E. Dunkum, Lewis Flemer, John Ford, W. P. C. Hazen, Edward B. Hughes, jr., Francis J. Kane, Morris E. Marlow, Henry H. McKee, William N. Payne, jr., William F. Simpson and Lambert O. Turner. Officers will be elected at the directors' meeting of organization today.

Oriental Building Officers.

All officers and directors of the Oriental Building Association were re-elected at the recent annual meeting of stockholders. They are Charles H. Bauman, president; Henry E. Deckman, secretary; Charles W. Schafer, treasurer; Carl C. Haneke, Charles Schafer, G. H. Schulze, John J. Kolb, Chapin B. Bauman, Thomas B. Young, Louis C. Dismer and C. Albert Parker.

Mortgage Bankers' Convention.

Cleveland has been selected as the scene of the twenty-fourth annual convention of the Mortgage Bankers Association of America and the meeting this year, on October 13, 14 and 15, will be for three days instead of the usual two, George H. Patterson, secretary, announces. Twelve hundred persons are expected for the Cleveland convention. Innovations in the program this year include an "appraisal clinic," consisting of a series of talks by various well-known authorities on appraising. An address on farm chemurgy and discussions of this subject are also scheduled. The midsummer board of governors' meeting on June 17 and 18 will be held in Salt Lake City, home of James W. Collins, president of the association.

Wheat and Corn Slump to Low For the Season

Heavy Receipts of Argentine Corn Upsets Market; Soy Beans Tumble.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, June 7 (AP).—Corn tumbled down today the extreme permissible immediate limit, 4 cents, and caused all grains to fall, wheat and corn breaking season low price records.

Rushes to sell corn futures resulted largely from big arrivals of Argentine corn, together with relative cheapness of competitive feeds and with reports of favorable progress of the new domestic crop. Soy beans, as well as corn, smashed downward 4 cents, the full limit allowed.

At the close, corn futures in Chicago were 1⅞ to 4 cents under Saturday's close; July, 1.15¾@1.15⅞; September, $1.02⅞@1.03; December, $0.75¼@75⅛. Wheat, ⅝ to 1⅛ cents off. Oats, ⅛ to 1⅛ cents down; July, $0.38. Rye showed 1½ to 2½ cents setback; May, $0.86. Previsions were unchanged to 15 cents lower.

May Steel Output Higher Than April

New York, June 7 (AP).—Despite labor troubles steel ingot production in May exceeded the previous month by 81,864 tons, the American Iron & Steel Institute reported today. The month's output of 5,153,559 gross tons was exceeded only in March of this year when it was 5,216,666 tons, and in May, 1929, which holds the record at 5,286,246 tons.

Labor interruptions, affecting output of four steel companies, occurred during the last five days of the month. Production was 27.8 per cent larger than in May, 1936.

Estates for Sale 71

ATTENTION, BROKERS AND SALESMEN
We agreed to pay a commission of 2½ per cent to the broker securing a buyer for the Blake Estate. The sale took place on Thursday, May 20th. The commission, $1,067.50, was paid to Mr. Marshall two days later, May 22nd.
This is to say, we will pay a commission of 2½ per cent to any broker or salesman securing a buyer for the Twin Oaks Estate which is to be sold Tuesday, June 15th. The broker must notify us prior to the sale, giving in writing the name of the client he represents. The client should acknowledge that the broker or salesman is his representative.
This proposition will hold good on this and any other property you may see advertised by us for sale by Public Auction. All you have to do is check your list, and comply with the conditions.
The main object of this plan is to get real estate men to co-operate in liquidating properties promptly, thereby encouraging more activity in Washington real estate, and stimulating confidence of the buyer in being able to sell if the occasion should require.

Woman Leaps From Steamer To Her Death

Virginia Matron Chooses Spot Where Keene's Body Was Found.

Authorities were at a loss yesterday to explain the suicide of Mrs. Harriet Larkin Scott, 26, socially prominent Portsmouth, Va., matron, who leaped to her death in Chesapeake Bay from a deck of the steamer Northland Sunday night.

The mother of an 8-year-old son, Washington bound for a sightseeing trip, Mrs. Scott chose for her suicide almost the exact spot where the body of Charles F. Keene was found May 31. It is near the mouth of the Potomac River, off Smith Point.

A 30-minute search failed to recover the body and the Norfolk-Washington vessel resumed its course, arriving early yesterday.

A number of passengers who were on the deck, including a sister of Mrs. Scott, Mrs. L. A. Broughton, saw the woman rise abruptly from her chair, climb the rail, toss her purse into the air and jump, screaming, "Here's where I stage an act!"

Neither Mrs. Scott's mother, Mrs. J. W. Larkin, nor Mrs. Broughton could give a motive for the suicide. They had sailed for Washington with other members of a Portsmouth sewing club. Their party included the dead woman's son, Herbert Scott, jr., Mrs. E. R. Quillen, Mrs. L. B. Tweed, Mrs. H. T. Grissom, Mrs. L. R. Moreland, Mrs. Louis Forsythe and Mrs. Charles Savage.

Herbert Scott, husband of the victim, could not be reached in Portsmouth for comment but Mrs. Fannie Scott, his mother, said the woman appeared to be in good health and good spirits when she left home Sunday to board the steamer.

Mrs. Scott was well known in Portsmouth and had assisted in numerous charitable drives. She had been a member for about nine years of the Matrons' Sewing Circle, the group that was aboard the steamer en route here for sightseeing purposes.

McGrady Coming Home.

Geneva, June 7 (AP).—Edward F. McGrady, United States Assistant Secretary of Labor and delegate to the international labor conference meeting here, announced today he will sail for America Saturday because of labor conditions in the United States.

'Wisecracks' Mark Study of How D. C.'s 'Other Half' Lives

The question of how nongovernment employes in Washington make both ends meet intrigued the Senate sub-committee on District appropriations, a transcript of hearings disclosed yesterday.

Senator Thomas, chairman of the sub-committee, who subsequently proposed the establishment of an employment bureau that would hunt jobs for District unemployed all over the country, propounded the inquiry:

"Looking back over a period of 10 to 12 years, how have the people in this city been able to make a living?

"Of course, we know that great numbers live off the Government, but how do the other people make a living? There are no factories here of any kind."

Live Off Other People.

Senator Hitchcock (Democrat), of South Dakota, came quickly with the answer:

"They live off the people who live off the Government."

This dialogue was but one sample of sparkling exchanges that probably will make the Senate hearing record a better seller than the corresponding House document.

Senator Copeland (Democrat), of New York, suggested a new solution to the traffic problem during an exchange with Senator Capper (Republican), of Kansas.

"They tell me," said Senator Capper, "that the great number of fatalities and deaths are largely the result of pedestrians crossing the streets and on the streets, and that parking really has nothing to do with it."

Retorted Senator Copeland: "What you mean, Senator, is that we ought to park the pedestrians."

Confers Doctor's Title.

Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen added unwittingly to the merriment on one occasion by conferring a doctor's title on Senator Capper. He referred to the two doctors on the Senate committee, "Dr. Copeland and Dr. Capper."

Capper is a publisher and a newspaperman.

Following the lead of Chairman Collins, of the House sub-committee, the Senators questioned Poundmaster Frank T. Marks regarding his work.

Marks, after describing his pursuits of stray dogs, told the committee that the pound exterminated 1,200 cats last year.

"We had four stray horses this year," he added. "We also had one monkey and one alligator."

The problem of what to do with dogs was put before the committee more graphically by Mrs. B. G. McIlhree, chairman of the committee on beautifying school grounds of the Roosevelt High School Parent-Teacher Association.

Deplores Cats, Dogs.

"It is almost impossible to have a decent lawn or flowers," she complained, "for dogs and cats destroy everything.

"I have tried to induce our District officials to require dogs and cats to be kept on owners' premises, but have been told theer are too many dog lovers. Several have suggested I could protect the shrubbery on the school lawns by sprinkling a powder called 'Off-it' on the shrubbery, but I do not know where the money is to come from to buy the powder, or who could follow up and sprinkle it on the shrubbery after each rain.

"Also, it has been suggested to put a stump by the shrubbery, like the Federal parks do, in the hope that the dog will give the attention to the stump instead of the shrub."

Jury Questions Parkers.

Newark, N. J., June 7 (AP).—Called upon by the jury itself to clarify their defense, Detective Ellis H. Parker and his son, Ellis, jr., denied anew today they were connected in any way with the plot to kidnap and torture Paul W. Wendel.

Another Plea For Jordon Sent To Roosevelt

Another effort to save Thomas Jordon from the chair was made last night by Defense Attorney John M. Holzworth, who asked President Roosevelt to "personally take a hand" in the case.

Jordon, 36-year-old short order cook, was convicted of the murder of Mrs. Lizzie Jaynes in a holdup April 3, 1931, and sentenced to electrocution. During his two years in the District Jail he has had six stays of execution. Unless another is granted he will die on June 14.

"On the facts and evidence now before the Attorney General, Jordon should not only be saved from the chair but given a full pardon by you, and justice demands that nothing less than that be done promptly," Holzworth declared in his letter to the President.

Justice Department officials yesterday were completing their study of new evidence presented in behalf of Jordon by persons who claim he did not receive a fair trial and who assert it is now definite he could not have committed the crime for which he was convicted.

The findings of this study are expected to reach the Attorney General's office today and to become a part of the new investigation which the President directed seven weeks ago.
